INCOME TAX OFF 100 MILLIONS, IS U. S. ESTIMATE

Higher Rates Fail to Offset Slump.

Pay $30,500,000 Here

At midnight last night, the income tax deadline, $30,504,859 income taxes had been paid at the Chicago office. This was $6,709,114 less than was paid at deadline last year.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 16.—[Special.]—Millions of dollars poured into the treasury today and tonight, as income tax payers throughout the country rushed to file their returns for the 1930 calendar year before the deadline at midnight.

Although treasury officials do not expect to be able to make any definite predictions as to the collections for the first quarter before the end of the week, the hope was expressed that the receipts for March would run above 400 million dollars and those for the first quarter, ending March 31, well above 500 millions. At least one-fourth of the total tax due was paid with the income tax returns filed today, so that collections for the first quarter will run somewhat above the average for the four quarters.

Trade Slump Is Felt.

Indications are that the higher tax rate for 1930 income will fall short to offset the losses caused by the economic depression by around 100 millions. Last year's collections for the first quarter were 628 millions.

For the first thirteen days of March, the income and corporation tax collection was $35,655,000, a decrease of about $2,000,000 from last year. For the fiscal year through to March 13, the collection was $1,207,086,700, a drop of $32,000,000, indicating the probable collection for the fiscal year will be close to two billion two hundred million dollars.

Judging from the preliminary statistics of income for 1929, the number of individuals who made returns on 1930 incomes was about 4,000,000, over 2,000,000 of whom showed taxable income. Net income for 1929 was 24 billion, 800 million for individuals and over ten billion for corporations.

Incidentally, the treasury turnover today set all records since the war. The day's receipts and disbursements totaled more than three billion dollars. This resulted from last minute payments of income taxes, the sale of bonds and certificates of indebtedness, and the retirement of government obligations.

TAX DROPS $6,700,000

A total of $30,504,859 had been collected in income taxes for the first Illinois district since Jan. 1 when the office of Acting Collector Robert E. Neely closed last midnight, the deadline for the filing of returns. This was a decrease of $6,709,114 as compared with the same period for last year, when the figure was $37,213,973.

Although the deadline last year fell on March 15, the extra day allowed this year because of the intervention of a Sunday does not affect the comparison of the figures, which are based on collections made up to the expiration of the filing date. Thousands of returns are still in the mails and the final first quarter tabulation will not be available for several weeks, but it is not expected to reach $50,000,000, while last year it was more than $57,000,000.

Last year's collection up to the filing deadline was second only to the record breaking figures of $42,674,000, established in 1929.

149,200 Returns Recorded.

A total of 149,200 returns had been tabulated at midnight, as against 91,700 received when the first quarter payments were due last year.

The largest single tax was $1,200,000 and the corporation reporting it will pay the first quarterly installment to save interest. A man who gave his occupation as "clerk" scheduled the highest individual income, $1,000,000, and paid the first installment of a $500,000 tax. The lowest tax paid was two cents. Two individuals and one corporation reported losses of $2,000,000 each.

Much difficulty was experienced by the deputy collectors in convincing stock market speculators that paper losses could not be deducted unless the stocks had been sold. Many

BLIND WINEMAKER IS SAVED FROM JAIL BY EAST CHICAGO JUDGE

Andrew Vozar, 64 years old, 3734 Main street, East Chicago, has been blind since birth.

Most of those born without sight are in a large degree helpless, but Andrew overcame his handicap while he was still a youth. He became a winemaker. He didn't need to see to carry on that occupation. His delicate senses of smell and taste told him all that he needed to know about the juice of grapes.

But the police in East Chicago went to the Vozar home a few weeks ago, poured out twenty barrels of Andrew's wine, and arrested him. Yesterday he pleaded guilty to violating the Indiana liquor laws. Judge Martin J. Smith, sitting in the Criminal court at Crown Point, asked him if there were any extenuating circumstances.

"I made good wine," Vozar replied.

The judge fined him $200 and sentenced him to six months in jail, but suspended the imprisonment because he was blind.

TWO CONFESS IN HILLMAN HOLDUP, POLICE ASSERT

Alfred Martin, 22 years old, 3059 Elston avenue, and Fred Singer, 27 years old, 4507 Clifton avenue, were reported by the police to have confessed last night that they participated in the attempted robbery of Hillman's Pure Food store at 30 West Washington street on Jan. 24.

One employé of the store, Max Axelrod of 1606 South Trumbull avenue, was killed and another, Eugene Toro of 146 North Parkside avenue, was fatally wounded in a successful defense of $18,000 in currency which they were carrying to an upstairs office of the store. Toro died on March 4 of his wounds.

Martin and Singer were seized in the plant of the Ready Mixed Mortar company at 2533 Wellington avenue last Friday as they were using an acetylene torch to open a safe they had carried out of the offices of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company branch at 3501 Lawrence avenue. Questioned by Lieut. Philip Carroll and Sergt. George Schupolsky, they named a third man who was their accomplice in the Hillman shooting. Squads armed with machine guns and tear bombs were sent out to capture him.

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, March 17.—(AP)—Two attempts were made this morning to blow up the military academy here. The first was at 5:30 a. m. and the second attempt at 7 a. m. Bombs exploded both times but failed to cause serious damage. There were no arrests.

Mr. Lotus Goes for a Spin on the Boulevard

Detroit, Mich., March 16.—[Special.]—Bernard Lotus crowded a crowded hour into a few minutes yesterday. Carefree as the fabled people who ate of his name-sake, Mr. Lotus had spent the day going places and seeing things, principally the bottoms of glasses he had emptied rapidly.

Somewhere in his journeying about, Mr. Lotus had acquired a young woman companion. He called her Lily. Mr. Lotus decided that Lily was weakening, so he loaded her into his auto for a drive. Fresh air, he thought, would help her complexion and revive her spirits.

Curbs Too, Near Together.

Mr. Lotus bowled merrily down Kercheval avenue. He jiggled the wheel about to his own amusement and the consternation of other autoists.

Suddenly the auto left the street, climbed the curbstone and plowed through the grass plat to the sidewalk. A pedestrian saved himself with a broad jump which brought an immediate offer from a Michigan alumnus of a job if he would join the track team.

Mr. Lotus recovered himself, moving quickly away and tried to take the turn into Helen avenue. He misjudged his distance and neatly sheared the front porch off a house. He complained bitterly that the house had damaged his fender.

Drives Into Garage Via Window.

But he raced away again, this time down the sidewalk. For a block he did well, until a garage got in his road. He went in, taking the window with him. He was becoming annoyed at people putting houses in his right of way and offered to fight the garage man.

Lily decided she had enough and started home on foot. Lotus tacked after her, but she went faster on a straight-away than he could on a luffing larboard to starboard course. He quit with a snappy:

"G'wan home, I'm tired of you anyhow."

He snaked his auto out of the wreck of the garage. Three blocks further on he smashed into the parked car of Fred Stoetger.

Offers Battle to All.

Lotus chased Stoetger into his house to do battle. He saw 50 or 60 men outside and decided on bigger game. Going out, he broadcast his challenge:

"Do any of you so-an-so's want to be fought by me?"

Three police squad cars drew up as a result of riot calls and officers poured out like a blue cloud. Lotus was surrounded and captured.

"Mr. Lotus," said Judge Maher in court today, "I believe you are the perfect drunken driver. You have left nothing undone."

The attorney for Lotus said: "I'd like to get a few character witnesses for this boy. They will testify that he rarely drinks."

"He doesn't need to," said Judge Maher.

BOY IN 'MACHINE LUNG' IS SEIZED WITH PNEUMONIA

The sudden development of pneumonia caused a change for the worse early this morning in the condition of Charles Caughey, 7 years old, of 3622 South Union avenue, who has been kept alive for twelve days at St. Francis hospital in Evanston through the use of an artificial respirator.

He was taken to the hospital early in the month suffering from lung and throat paralysis, a complication rising from an attack of diphtheria. After being placed in the lung apparatus Charles showed definite improvement. However, while normal breathing was being gradually restored, his heart weakened.

Pneumonia developed last night and with it a further heart weakening. According to Dr. Noel G. Shaw the boy's chance for recovery is now doubtful.

PICK 3 TALESMEN ON 1ST DAY OF MURDER TRIAL

Crowd in Court to See Defendant.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Three jurors were selected tentatively by both sides at the opening sessions of the Leo V. Brothers murder trial yesterday in Judge Joseph Sabath's court. A fourth man had been passed by the state and was being considered by the defense at the close of the day.

As only ten men were examined during the day this progress indicates that the jury will be completed in three or four days, and the long awaited evidence against the man charged with the slaying of Alfred Lingle on the afternoon of June 9 last will be heard.

Three Picked as Jurors.

The three men expected to qualify are Frank J. Allerman, 5959 Rice street, optician and jeweler; Herman Isaacson, 3562 Palmer street, employé in the contract department of the Peck & Hill Furniture company, and Edward J. Brown, 541 N. Troy street, an employé of the sign board advertising department of the Standard Oil company.

The fourth man, passed by the state, is Frank J. Boerner, 3704 Monticello avenue, a construction foreman for the Commonwealth Edison company.

The opening scene of the trial was somewhat noisy and riotous, with bailiffs struggling with crowds at the door and photographers shooting flashlight pictures of the defendant, members of his family, or any one within range, but order was restored before the jurymen were brought in. The seats were filled quietly, the cameramen sent out, and the case proceeded in an atmosphere of dignity and peace. There was no squabbling among the lawyers, and whatever little disputes were raised were settled by a smile and a word from the judge, a man of benign appearance.

Battle of Young Lawyers.

As the attorneys squared away for the legal contest two young lawyers were pitted against each other. At the head of the prosecution side was O. Wayland Brooks, a quiet, smooth, black haired young man. Opposite him sat Attorney Tyrrell Krum for the defense, blonde and somewhat younger. Back of Brooks sat Charles F. Rathbun, special assistant state's attorney; Roy Arnold, investigator for the state, and John Holman, a legal expert for the state.

On the defense side, back of Krum, were Louis Piquett, a gray haired attorney; Harry J. Cantwell, an attorney from St. Louis who entered the case yesterday, and Attorney Henry Christy. Examination of the jurors was by Brooks, Krum, and Piquett.

Brothers Shows Interest.

Brothers sat in the midst of his attorneys, alert and interested in every incident of the trial. There was a little frown of worry on his forehead, and he turned frequently to look at the front row seat where his mother, Mrs. Rose Jessen, sat with his sister, Mrs. Esther Dick, and his sweetheart, Betty Cook. There was not much expression to read in his face as he looked that way. He also scanned the crowd carefully, looking for other friends.

Brothers wore the dark gray suit in which he was arrested on Dec. 21 in his south side apartment. It was neatly pressed and a white handkerchief was tucked nattily into the side pocket. His hair, growing low over his forehead and brushed back unparted, is chestnut and wavy. His eyes are gray. His body is powerful, his face rather heavy, and his complexion rough. Many girls were in the courtroom to gaze at him and at recess Miss Cook approached him and patted his shoulder and brushed a speck of dirt from his coat, adoringly.

Mother and Son Meet.

Mrs. Jessen, his mother, did not appear bowed down with sorrow. She is a large, white haired woman with a youthful face. She was busy with notes and papers and did not make much fuss over Brothers when they met at recess. The widow of the murdered Lingle was not seen in the courtroom.

Before the examination of jurors began the defense raised the question of a complete list of witnesses from the state, and also renewed its request for a transcript of the testimony from the state, on the plea that there was no money for the defense to pay for this. Mr. Rathbun at once agreed to

20 Killed; 118 Fight to Reach Barren Island

[Copyright, 1931: By the Associated Press.]

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, March 16.—Two parties of survivors, numbering about 60 men, from the wreck of the sealing ship Viking, which was blown to pieces yesterday with a loss of twenty lives, were reported tonight to have reached Horse Island, White bay, after a trek of eight miles over treacherous ice floes from the scene of the disaster. There were 138 men aboard the ship at the time of the explosion of dynamite or gun powder used for blasting ice floes. Meager dispatches said a third party of survivors was approaching the island, apparently assisting injured men.

The disaster occurred while the Viking, carrying Varick Frissel's sound movie expedition, was plowing through the ice fields to the grounds of the North Atlantic sealing fleet. The boat, in addition to its crew of 135, carried three expedition members—Frissel, who is a nephew of Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania; Harry Sargent of Boston, explorer, and A. E. Penrod, cameraman. The Frissel party was on its way to take additional pictures for incorporation into a drama of the sealing industry which Frissel, a 27 year old Yale graduate and fellow of the Royal Geographical society, made last year.

Girl Sends News of Disaster.

An 18 year old girl tonight was carrying on against tremendous difficulties in an effort to send through static filled ether news of those who were aboard the ship.

Listed unromanically on the records of the Mackay Radio company as O. Bartlett, the young woman, who serves as radio operator on desolate and barren Horse island, spent feverish hours tapping out messages for the outer world, many of which were never received.

It was 9 o'clock last night when the girl's first radio message flashed through the air, giving the first hint of the tragedy in the ice filled waters near the lonely island which she shares with three families.

Survivors Trek Over Ice.

"Heard terrific explosion this morning," she said. "Wreckage of burning steamer sighted about eight miles east of here. Also men traveling on ice towards island."

Then followed anxious hours of waiting, while she watched the human forms on the ice some miles away. While she watched she sent what little news she could.

"No particulars at hand, yet," she radioed. "Ice in bad condition. Heavy sea, wind blowing off shore. First crowd of men may reach island. Others have very little chance. Making very slow progress."

No Medical Supplies.

Then came a disturbing note. The three families who occupied the island made hasty calculations and this worried message came:

"People have only sufficient supplies for selves. No medical assistance here. No chance of getting to mainland."

The night dragged, while on the island the three families and the girl made what preparations they could to care for the mariners staggering toward them, through the arctic cold and against a shrieking gale.

Meanwhile, all the information at Miss Bartlett's disposal had been sent to government officials. There wasn't much. Simply that there had been an

CITY HALL SLUSH QUIZ BEGUN BY SPECIAL JURY

Get Bank Records in Galpin Inquiry.

The methods of the city hall political machine in collecting campaign funds — at least insofar as they affect police corruption—are under fire by the special grand jury. This became known last night when it was announced that some fifteen or more employés of the office of Christian P. Paschen, building commissioner, who was recently indicted on a charge of federal income tax evasion, are to appear before the grand jury today.

HOMER K. GALPIN. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

At the same time it was discovered that a secret subpoena duces tecum was issued last week for the records of the First National bank of Cicero pertaining to the bank accounts of the Hawthorne Kennel club, a dog race track which was allegedly operated by the Al Capone interests.

Question Galpin Today.

These records, it was announced, are pertinent to the questioning today of Homer K. Galpin, Republican party leader, who only recently returned to Chicago after an exile of nearly two years. Galpin was wanted by former grand juries for questioning, but he stayed out of the jurisdiction of those juries.

The jury, under the guidance of Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller, is on the trail of a $25,000 campaign contribution made by the kennel club, it was reported. The Check, so the jury information goes, was placed in Galpin's hands when four years ago he directed the city hall campaign.

"It seems strange that an organization not within the corporate limits of Chicago should make such a large contribution," commented one of the jurors. "The club, not being within the city, could not, under ordinary circumstances, have expected anything in return from the political organization to which the contribution was made. It may have been an indirect way of making a contribution for some organization which was operating within the city."

Mention Police Protection.

The jurors said they are interested to know whether such a large contribution was made with the idea that police protection would be granted to certain enterprises. It may have accounted, they said, for the inactivity of the police in their failure to molest places said to have been under the Capone control.

The subpoena duces tecum served on bank officials yesterday calls for all records, checks, bank statements, check stubs, and all other documents pertaining to any transaction of E. J. O'Hare, president of the kennel club, as an individual or as an official of the club. The subpoena also asks for any papers connected with any transaction made by any other representative of the club. The papers are to be produced today.

The employés from Paschen's office are to be asked, it is reported, about a charge that $50 was collected from every employé in the office. This money presumably is being collected, the jurors were told, for a city hall campaign fund. Even civil service employés, it is reported, were forced to contribute.

Solly Vision Before Jury.

Solly Vision, who is said to have been chief aid to the late Jack Zuta, slain vice lord, was also called before the special grand jury yesterday. It was indicated that he was being questioned about any possible city hall dealings he may have had.

Vision at first refused to testify before the jury, but he was brought before Judge John P. McGoorty as the first step in possible contempt proceedings. He returned to the jury room and indicated that when he returns on Friday, as was directed by the jurors, he will testify. He spent a brief time with the jurors after his visit before the chief justice.

During the hearing before the judge a transcript was read of Vision's testimony up to the time of his refusal to answer questions. He said that he was representing the Electrified Water company of New York. One of the questions read was as follows:

"Is that in connection with a contract with the city?"

The court stenographer inadvertently read Vision's answer to this question to be "yes" and he protested that instead he had replied in the negative. The reporter admitted his error.

Prosecutor Mueller refused to say at this time what deal Vision may have had with the city or what information the jurors have on the subject.

The remainder of the testimony indicated that Vision spent most of his time denying that he knew anything about Zuta or his business.

"I have not had anything to do in three and one-half years pertaining to any rackets," was one of his answers. He was also questioned regarding his possible acquaintance with Lieut. Stewart Moss and his knowledge of the Parody café shooting in 1927.

"There is nothing to excuse you from testifying," Judge McGoorty told Vision. "You are not on trial or accused of anything and you have been granted immunity by not being asked to sign an immunity waiver."

Attorney Israel R. Goldberg appeared to represent Vision.

Mrs. Kub Will Testify.

The other development of the day in connection with the special jury was the announcement that Mrs. Shirley Kub, former under cover investigator for Acting Chief Alcock, is prepared to go before the jury and testify. She is now under a four months' sentence for contempt of court for refusal to testify at previous hearings.

Attorney Harold Levy, representing Mrs. Kub, attempted to relieve her from the contempt sentence by filing a petition alleging that the special jury is illegal. Judge McGoorty held otherwise.

"This grand jury is of such importance that its disbandment would be a calamity, a recognition of defeat, and an acknowledgement that the people of Cook county are helpless," said the judge. "I hold, and I think properly, that this body is legal, and it is my hope that this jury shall function until its investigations are completed."

Mrs. Kub's attorney then said he felt sure she would answer satisfactorily all questions if given another chance before the jury. She, however, will have to wait for the return of Assistant State's Attorney Charles Lounsbury, who is in Hot Springs with his wife. He is expected to be away for ten days because of Mrs. Lounsbury's illness.

Ames Before Jury Today.

Maj. Carlos Ames, who was forced to resign as head of the civil service commission last week because Thompson was dissatisfied with the recent sergeants promotional list, will appear before the special grand jury this afternoon. He telephoned Assistant State's Attorney Mueller of his wishes to appear as a witness.

The former civil service chief declared the policeman's list was the fairest ever issued and that he was ready to prove so before the jury. The grand jury is curious to learn the situation underlying the dispute, it is understood. Both Prosecutor Mueller and J. A. Farmar, foreman of the jury, have described the list as extremely fair.

During the afternoon, George Sugarman, newly appointed to the civil service commission to fill the Ames vacancy, was elected president of the board. The election was held at the home of Bishop A. J. Carey, Negro member. The bishop, who is under indictment for the alleged sale of jobs, was too ill, it was said, to visit the city hall. The only votes cast were Sugarman were by himself and Bishop Carey.

FOUND DEAD IN BREWERY.

Viburno Balades, 265 Alexander street, was found dead yesterday at the bottom of an elevator shaft in the abandoned Gottfried brewery at 330 Alexander street. Police believed he toppled down the shaft while gathering wood.

TWO HOUSEWIVES TIED AND ROBBED IN THEIR HOMES

Trio Hold Up Montgomery Ward Cafeteria.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Patrick O'Brien, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary by Judge Peter Schwaba.

Edward Stiglish, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary by Judge John Prystalski.

Bandits piled up a mounting record of robberies yesterday, invading three homes and trussing up their victims, two of them housewives. Gunmen held up restaurants, filling stations, and committed two kidnapings.

The victims of the household robberies were Mrs. Bessie Wineberg of 1867 South Ridgeway avenue; Mrs. Mary Keefe, 60 years old, 4201 South Union avenue, and John Helstein, 1024 Ainslie street.

Mrs. Wineberg was alone at home when a man and a woman, both young, appeared at her apartment posing as prospective tenants for the vacant flat above. Unable to find the key for the apartment, Mrs. Wineberg invited the callers into her home.

Bound by Woman Robber.

As soon as the door was closed, the man whipped out a revolver, and threatened Mrs. Wineberg with death. He forced her into the bedroom, where his accomplice bound her hands behind her back with adhesive tape, and sealed her mouth. They took $665 in cash, a $350 ring, and a $500 fur coat. Mrs. Wineberg was not released until her 10 year old son returned from school.

Mrs. Keefe, owner of a rooming house, was sitting in the living room when two men knocked on the door. She opened the door, and was quickly forced back at the point of two pistols. The robbers shoved her into another room. One of them unpacked a coil of rope and bound her arms and feet. They searched the house, found $95, and left. Mrs. Keefe freed herself and called the police.

Robbed of Gems and Check.

Earlier in the day a robber called at the apartment of Helstein, an automobile salesman, threatened him with a revolver, and forced him to sit down while he bound him with rope. The gunman escaped with $550 in jewelry and a cashier's check for $3,000 on the Devon Trust and Savings bank. Helstein wriggled loose from his bonds a few minutes later.

Three young bandits dined at the Montgomery Ward and company cafeteria on the fourth floor of the mail order house at Chicago avenue and Larrabee street yesterday, waited until most of the other patrons departed, and then held up two women cashiers and five diners. They fled with $335. The cashiers, Miss Estelle Galavan, 2636 North Francisco avenue, and Mrs. Alice Patterson, 4825 Bernice avenue, were compelled to give up the money.

Robbers Get $900 Collections.

Wedged between two bandit cars, Clarke Washburne, 5036 Waveland avenue, an auditor for Leo Schueneman, poolroom owner, was held up yesterday in front of 1043 Barry avenue, and robbed of $900 in collections. Washburne was riding with Edward Mohr, the chauffeur, when the cars drove on either side. Three men alighted with drawn revolvers, took the receipts and some statistical reports, and drove away.

A bandit dressed in the uniform of a Yellow Cab chauffeur held up Matthew Kelly, cashier in the Thompson restaurant at 300 West Adams street yesterday, and stole $11. He escaped in a Yellow cab.

While driving his truck loaded with vegetables in Ashland avenue, near 16th street, Philip Damore, merchant at 722 West Randolph street, was held up by three men. One drove away with his truck. The others kidnaped Damore in their automobile and ejected him in Irving Park boulevard, outside the city limits. In another kidnaping, Edward Dickman, 3536 West Van Buren street, newspaper truck driver, was robbed of $150 by five men who stopped him at Madison and Des Plaines streets.

Held Up Twice in Day.

Lester Hespol, attendant at the filling station at 918 Jackson boulevard, was robbed twice within a few hours. In the first robbery, two men took $40. In the second, two other men held him up for $10.

In an early morning robbery three armed men held up Moe Rosenberg, Democratic committeeman of the 24th ward; his wife, and his niece, Miss Lail Kallis, in front of the Rosenberg home at 1230 South Independence boulevard, and stole $2,250 in jewelry and cash. Police were given good descriptions of the bandits and were seeking them last night. Rosenberg lost a $1,500 diamond ring. His wife surrendered a string of pearl beads valued at $250 and a $1,000 ring. Miss Kallis gave up a necklace valued at $500. Mrs. Rosenberg's ring was dropped by the robbers and recovered later.

In another morning holdup two gunmen entered the Clarkway restaurant at 306 South Clark street and obtained $73 after terrorizing Peter Pappas, the owner, and two employés.

George Connor, Negro, 22 years old, 3612 Federal street, was identified last night as the man who on Sunday morning held up Sol Bloomfield, 426 Briar place, and Mrs. Walter White of 4836½ Drexel boulevard on the south side.

WOMAN AWAITING JAIL TERM ASKS STATE CLEMENCY

The state board of pardons and paroles will hold a hearing at Springfield tomorrow afternoon on an appeal by Mrs. Laura B. Price, wife of Edwin Price, wealthy packers supply manufacturer, for reduction of a six months jail sentence by Judge Hugo Friend of the Criminal court.

Mrs. Price was found guilty on Nov. 1 of participating in a conspiracy to collect $17,900 insurance on jewelry taken from her in an alleged fake robbery. Evidence at her trial showed that the robbery had been planned in advance, and that she needed money to pay her gambling losses.

An appeal was taken from Judge Friend's sentence and Mrs. Price has not yet started to serve time in jail.

Recover Doctor's Stolen Auto; Germs Are Missing

The automobile of Dr. Edwin Reynolds of Berwyn, stolen Friday, was found yesterday, but the phials of typhold fever and smallpox germs in the car were missing. The auto had been stripped of accessories. Dr. Reynolds said there were enough germs in the phials to start an epidemic and expressed the belief that the thieves would shortly be found in a pesthouse. The car was found abandoned in the 900 block on Garibaldi avenue.

BABY FATALLY SCALDED.

Dolores Myrda, 18 months old, died yesterday in St. Mary's hospital of scalds suffered on Sunday when she overturned a kettle of boiling water in her home at 1027 North Hermitage avenue.

SHIP BLOWS UP; 20 DIE, 118 FIGHT TO REACH ISLAND

Blast of Dynamite Rips Movie Vessel to Pieces.

explosion on an unidentified steamer eight miles away, that the steamer was in flames and that men were walking across the ice toward the island.

Men Reach the Island.

Early in the forenoon, however, came the first specific news.

A trace of the girl's excitement entered the message, which began: "The men have reached the island in such exhausted condition they could give no coherent story. Impossible to wire further details now."

Impossible, just then, perhaps, but within a few moments she wired that the ship was the Viking; that the captain was seriously injured and that the cook, wireless operator and doctor were missing.

The one man who could relieve her and the man who could care for the injured were missing. Nothing to be done about it, so, a little later, she passed on the word that dynamite or gunpowder, used to free the ship when it became caught in ice jams, had exploded in the ship's stern, demolishing the vessel aft and setting her ablaze forward. It was believed the gunpowder might have been set off by a spark from a cigaret while a keg was being opened by a member of the crew.

Many Men Blown to Pieces.

If Miss Bartlett was suffering from fatigue or nervous strain from the ordeal under which she labored there was no hint of it in the distressing message that followed:

"Men below and asleep when explosion occurred. Many blown to pieces. Twenty are dead and injured unknown."

And then the ether filled with static. Of the messages sent out few were received.

Rumors of the explosion had reached here earlier, but it was known that the Viking was chartered for motion picture purposes and it was believed that what had been taken for a disaster was only a carefully staged scene. This belief was shattered only when Miss Bartlett's message was read to parliament by the prime minister and the government's agencies were marshaled and dispatched to the Viking's survivors.

The department of marine and fisheries arranged for the steamer Foundation Franklin to leave with doctors, nurses and supplies. The ship sailed at 1 p. m. today. The steamer Sagona, with three doctors, nurses, and supplies, left later. Telegraph offices and government departments were ordered kept open all night and all day tomorrow.

It was believed the rescue ships would not reach the island until tomorrow night. The rescue of those marrooned on the ice was made a more difficult problem by a strong northeast gale that was blowing the ice floes off land.

Veteran of Seal Hunters.

The Viking was one of the veterans of the seal hunters, having slid down the ways at Arendal, Norway, half a century ago. Her gross tonnage was 586 and she had been fighting the ice floes off and on since 1904.

There is a hospital at Glencoe, St. Anthony's, across the bay, where medical attention is available, provided the rescue craft are able to make that place through the floes.

KILLS SELF WITH SHOT GUN.

Stanley Pyewski, 54 years old, 7325 West 58th place, Summit, who had been despondent over ill health, killed himself with a shot gun in the bathroom of his home last night.

BRUNKERS REACH ARMISTICE AFTER DAY OF PARLEYS

Mother and Children Are Back in Home.

The controversy in the Lake Forest household of Albert R. Brunker, millionaire reformer, ended temporarily yesterday in a domestic armistice reached after an all day huddle participated in by Mrs. Margaret Gaylord Brunker, her attorney and a battery of legal talent representing Mr. Brunker.

Out of this conference Mrs. Brunker won the temporary custody of her two children and a reprimand of the North Shore policeman who early Sunday morning thwarted her plans to take her children along with her on a trip to Reno in search of a divorce.

Brunker Detained in East.

Mr. Brunker, whose recent alleged "exposé" of Chicago crime and corruption in a Boston speech was characterized by a special grand jury as largely hearsay chatter, was not present at the conference. He is in New York. Over the telephone last night he told his attorneys that press of business would hold him there for several days.

While Attorney John A. Bloomingston, representing Mrs. Brunker, announced that "the situation rests in the lap of the gods," he indicated the possibility of further legal action in the course of the next two weeks. What that action will be he declined to state.

Mrs. Brunker's attorney also announced that another conference will be held today at the Brunker home in Lake Forest and will be attended by himself and Walter B. Wolf and former Judge Claire C. Edwards, who are representing the absent Mr. Brunker.

From the statements of attorneys it developed that the bone of contention is a so-called gentleman's agreement drawn several months ago and by which the affairs of the Brunker household were being regulated. Neither Mrs. Brunker nor her husband has signed the agreement, although attorneys stated that there was an understanding between them that Mrs. Brunker was not to remove the children from Lake Forest without her husband's consent.

Terms of Agreement.

Other clauses in that agreement became known yesterday. They included a provision that on Christmas day and the birthdays of the children Mr. and Mrs. Brunker were both permitted to remain in the Brunker home, but that they were to see the children at different times of the day.

Early in 1930, this document states, Mrs. Brunker sought a separation from her husband "without cause or consent." The agreement was drawn to provide the parents an opportunity to reside with the children, it states. Mr. and Mrs. Brunker further agreed:

"That while the other matters that have arisen between them shall continue in their present state the foregoing understanding shall continue in effect so long as they are observed in good faith." Following the drawing up of the agreement Mr. Brunker went to live at the Deerpath inn while Mrs. Brunker stayed in the home. They exchanged residences monthly.

Mr. Brunker paid all the bills, and, according to agreement, the grocery bill must not exceed $150 a month. It was stipulated that Mrs. Brunker make no changes in the personnel of the servants in the home.

No Action Against Police.

Mr. Wolf said the achievement of the conference yesterday was to "restore the situation as it existed on March 14, last." Mr. Bloomingston decided that no suits would be brought against Chief of Police Frank Tiffany of Lake Forest or Chief Edward Maroney of Highland Park for illegal arrest, a threat hurled at the officers Sunday when they escorted Mrs. Brunker back to her home. However, Mr. Bloomingston observed that the conduct of the police was "high-handed and Russianistic, to say the least."

With all these matters ironed out Mrs. Brunker left the conference at 140 North La Salle street and was advised by her attorney to get "four-teen hours of sleep" to recuperate from the strenuous activities of yesterday and prepare for those of today. She retired at 6 o'clock last evening.

The two Brunker children, Barbara, 5 years old, and Robert, 2 years old, were, by agreement, returned to the Brunker home.

ARCHDUKE ALBRECHT TO GIVE UP RIGHTS TO THRONE FOR LOVE

BUDAPEST, March 16.—(AP)—Archduke Albrecht, 42, one time candidate for the Hungarian throne, left tonight for Belgium, where he will visit Archduke Otto to make formal renunciation of all his royal rights in order to obtain validation as a private individual of his marriage to a woman not of royal blood.

ARCHDUKE ALBRECHT.

Albrecht's wife, formerly Mme. Irene Lelbach, divorced wife of the Hungarian minister to Sofia, whom he married in England last August, is expecting the birth of a child. The Archduke hopes to make his marriage valid by obtaining a pronouncement from the Catholic church that his wife's first marriage was canonically illegal.

Archduke Otto, who recently became head of the House of Hapsburg and pretender to Hungary's empty throne on attaining his majority, is a student at the University of Louvain.

Judge Lyle Delays Return to Bench for a Vacation

Judge John H. Lyle of the Municipal court announced yesterday he would not return to the bench until the middle of April. His return, following a rest after his recent mayoralty campaign, was expected yesterday. Judge Lyle pointed out that by remaining off the bench until the middle of April he would be taking last year's vacation, which he had not received before, and this year's vacation.

HOOVER PLEDGES HIS SUPPORT OF 1933 FAIR BILL

Administration support of the $1,750,000 appropriation bill for government participation in the 1933 Chicago World's Fair was assured in a letter received yesterday by Rufus C. Dawes, president of the fair committee, from President Hoover. The President wrote as follows:

"Your letter of March 7 gives me an opportunity, which I gladly embrace, to express again my deep interest in the Century of Progress exhibition celebrating Chicago's centennial and to reiterate the intention of the administration to cooperate in every practicable way for its success.

"I shall be glad to propose to congress at its next session the authorization for participation of the federal government. It is my understanding that the large majority of congress favored it in the last session and that its failure was due to technical opposition."

Fair officials had hoped for the passage of the bill during the recent session but the measure went over until next winter.

JOHN P. BARNES SWORN IN AS NEW FEDERAL JUDGE

Attorney John P. Barnes was sworn in as a judge of the federal District court yesterday in the courtroom which he will occupy. Charles M. Bates, clerk of the District court, administered the oath, and Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson presided for the ceremony.

Speaking on behalf of his colleagues on the federal bench, Judge Wilkerson welcomed the new judge.

About 500 attorneys, politicians, public officials, and friends of the new judge, as well as his wife and four of his five children, were present.

U. S. FORESTER IS DEAD, WIFE SHOT IN SUICIDE PACT

Woman Tells of Decision for Death.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 16.—[Special.]—Carrying out a suicide pact, William H. Von Bayer, chief forester of the Indian bureau, today shot and perhaps fatally wounded his wife, Mrs. Greta Von Bayer, then shot and killed himself.

Dressed in a negligee and weak from loss of blood, Mrs. Von Bayer whispered to policemen who were taking her to Emergency hospital, "We agreed to do it."

"He had been ill and said he was going to kill himself," she told them before lapsing into unconsciousness. "I told him, 'Then you'll have to kill me, too. I can't live without you.'"

Pleas Fail to Dissuade Him.

She had pleaded with him, but he had been insistent. He had been too ill to work for several weeks.

Mrs. Von Bayer had been struck in the back by one bullet. Her condition is described as critical.

When found she was lying across her husband's body, which was clothed in pajamas and a dressing gown. The two were in the center of the living room of their five room apartment in the Chevy Chase apartments. Von Bayer had shot himself in the right temple with an old style .44 caliber service revolver.

A number of checks to firms which had rendered bills were in neat order on the piano.

Was on Sick Leave.

At Von Bayer's office at the interior department it was said he had recently suffered a nervous breakdown and was on sick leave. Neighbors reported that the two had always seemed deeply attached to each other, but said that they had seen little of Mr. and Mrs. Von Bayer in recent weeks.

Von Bayer was born in Washington in 1876 and was a graduate of Yale and Cornell universities. He met Mrs. Von Bayer while taking a post graduate course in Germany. Mrs. Von Bayer was an accomplished pianist and used the living room of their apartment as a studio where she gave piano lessons. Her brother, Richard Lorleberg, is a cellist and a member of the National String quartet in Washington. The Von Bayer apartment was the meeting place of a wide circle of scientifically and musically inclined friends.

In Service 20 Years.

Von Bayer entered the Indian bureau in 1910, after having served five years in the forestry division of the department of agriculture. It was said that he suffered a nervous breakdown in 1924 and at that time was absent on sick leave for a year. Colleagues said they had learned that Von Bayer had a revolver and had advised him to dispose of it, knowing his nervous temperament.

A neighbor, Mrs. George J. Brunner, heard the two shots shortly after noon and summoned the janitor, who ran into the street and hailed a policeman. The policeman entered the Von Bayer apartment and discovered the tragedy.

A NIGHT LETTER from Ring Lardner

Tucson, Ariz., March 16.—[Special.]—It is a cloudy day in this sunny state when half a dozen convicts don't escape from the penitentiary at Florence. The proprietors of same had better do something drastic if they want to keep enough customers to pay the help. Maybe they ought to reduce the rates or put a radio in every cell or engage a good hot dance orchestra to play during dinner. At least, whichever one of the guards happens to stay up latest at night ought to be sure the screen door is latched.

DR. NATHANSON MUST PAY U. S. $192,442 TAXES

The Foreman State Trust and Savings bank was ordered by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward yesterday to relinquish $192,442.32 from the $400,000 trust fund of Dr. Frank L. Nathanson, 3846 West Madison street, to satisfy the government's income tax claim against the physician.

John P. Barnes, counsel for the bureau of internal revenue, who brought the action, charged that Nathanson set up the trust fund, with himself and a daughter as beneficiaries, after he knew federal agents were investigating his income taxes. Mr. Barnes said criminal action was precluded by the statute of limitations.

CITY HALL RALLY OF G. O. P. CHIEFS IS CALLED A DUD

Many Leaders Are Absent from Called Meeting.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Mayor Thompson's effort yesterday to unite the Republican party behind his candidacy for a fourth term was pronounced a failure by even his own supporters, who discussed the situation privately.

The attempt was made by issuing invitations to all factional ward leaders to attend a meeting in the crystal room at the Hotel Sherman. And the outstanding fact about that gathering proved to be the number of important absentees.

Lyle Leaders Are Absent.

With few exceptions the big chiefs and the ward leaders who supported Judge Lyle and Ald. Arthur F. Albert in the primary of Feb. 24 were among the missing. None of the five Lyle leaders was present. Neither were any of the big Deneen leaders. Apparently the Thompson organization was only slightly, if any, stronger than it was in the contest for the nomination.

This reporter was asked to leave the meeting before it was called to order and a doorman attempted to maintain secrecy, but scanning the faces of those who entered and left the Crystal room produced a lineup like this:

PRESENT.	ABSENT.
Daniel A. Serritella	B. W. Snow
Louis B. Anderson	George F. Harding
Andrew C. Metzger	E. J. Brundage
Elmer A. Brown	Charles S. Deneen
James W. Breen	Roy O. West
William H. Reid	Robert E. Crowe
Homer K. Galpin	George E. Q. Johnson
Morris Eller	John A. Swanson
William M. Garrison	Charles V. Barrett
A. N. Todd	Dr. John Dill Robertson
Eden T. Brekke	W. R. James
Charles E. Peace	John J. Hoellen
Charles Burmeister	Thomas O. Wallace
Harry Klatzeo	John Massen
Christian Paschen	Arthur F. Albert
Edward F. Moore	Louis Nettelhorst
Ernest W. Withall	Edward R. Litsinger
William J. Balmer	John H. Lyle
Charles Graydon	Paul Rothenberg
John McKeone	Arthur Lueder
D. W. Jellema	R. C. W. Laubenheimer
G. A. Dahlberg	Thomas Brockmeyer
M. J. Faherty	Albert E. Loescher
Eugene Nauer	Clyde L. Day
George Hitzman	Charles Ringer

These lists are not complete but are considered an indication of the extent of the breach in the party over Thompson's nomination.

So impressed were the Thompsonites that they did not attempt any form of indorsement for Thompson, who spoke to them at some length. There was no roll call except by ward numbers and in several instances where the elected ward committeeman was absent there was some confusion, as there were two or three answers when a number was called.

So far as could be ascertained the only elected ward committeemen on hand who have lined up with Thompson since the primary were Brekke of the 37th and Frank Kalteux of the 39th. John L. East of the 5th and Charles Krutckoff of the 4th sat in the meeting for a while but it was reported that they will follow the lead of Harding and will not take an active part in the campaign.

The speakers at the meeting in addition to Thompson were Galpin, who is slated to appear before the special grand jury this morning for questioning about campaign funds; James A. Kearns, nominee for city treasurer, and City Clerk Smith.

Throughout the speeches ran a note of defeatism.

"I told my friends that my big fight wouldn't come in the primary, but in the election," said Thompson. "You know it now and you'll know it more before the election."

Galpin Calls for Fight.

"The situation is threatening, and you'll have to fight," said Galpin. "Unless you want to go out in the cold after the election you've got to stick together."

"The mayor is never strong three weeks before election days," said City Clerk Smith.

Thompson announced that he intended to "use a ball bat" in his campaign against the Democratic nominee, A. J. Cermak. He also said that he intended to use the public school system and the pupils to get his new campaign literature into the homes of the city. One of his proposed pieces of printed matter is a pamphlet containing newspaper snapshots of him beside the retouched photographs of commercial studios.

King Back in Campaign.

A large part of his speech was devoted to the king of England. He has brought King George back into the campaign by pointing out that Melvin E. Traylor of the First National bank is a member of the Cermak business men's committee and asserting that Traylor is seeking the presidency of an international bank.

Edward F. Moore, deputy commissioner of public works, who handles the labor organization end of the campaign, said emphatically that the mass-meeting in a loop theater tomorrow noon must be packed to overflowing as a demonstration of Thompson's popularity. He demanded that every job holder send at least one person to the gathering.

No Personal Altercations.

At an organization luncheon meeting Cermak renewed his promise not to engage in a personal altercation with Thompson at any time during the campaign.

"If the mayor is willing to make a campaign on our records and the issues," he said, "I'll gladly debate with him; but if he turns to personal abuse I'll ignore him and confine myself to telling the people of Chicago what I hope to do if I am elected."

W. R. Dawes inaugurated the Cermak "business men's hour" on the radio last night. This hour will be repeated at 8:45 tonight over WIBO with Brig. Gen. John V. Clinnin, another Republican, as the speaker, and with Grant Withers, movie star, and Miss Frankie James, leading lady with Al Jolson, as the entertainers.

G.O.P. VOTES HELP DEMOCRATS TRY DRY LAW CURES

Albany, N. Y., March 16.—(AP)—Without debate the assembly tonight passed two more liquor bills seeking changes in the prohibition law. In both instances enough Republicans voted with Democrats to procure passage of the measure.

One bill calling for a petitioning of congress to submit a liquor referendum to the citizens of the various states was passed by an 83 to 57 vote, with thirteen Republicans voting with Democrats.

The other measure, adopted by a 70 to 65 vote, with nine Republicans joining Democrats, would declare a policy for the state relative to the control of liquor within its borders and would provide for a commission of five to be appointed by the governor to devise a plan for the manufacture and sale by the state. Both measures were introduced by Democrats.

Passage of the bills by the assembly adds to the growing list of wet measures sent to the senate and awaiting action by that body.

Woman's Club Will Hold Mayoralty Mass Meeting

Both candidates for mayor were invited yesterday to address a mass-meeting of the Chicago Woman's club next Monday evening. Announcing the meeting yesterday, a statement said "the club is determined to hear both sides of the present political campaign issues." The committee on arrangements is headed by Mrs. Henry Hoyt Hilton, president.

Mrs. Timothy J. Grace

Her husband is engrossed in the marketing of municipal securities. She herself is occupied with the management of her household and with the care of a very active eleven-year-old son. Yet for all these occupations, Mrs. Timothy J. Grace, of 1423 Estes Ave., Chicago, still finds time to play golf, ride horseback and entertain at bridge. "Welch's gives me the energy to keep going," she says. "I always keep our refrigerator generously supplied with Welch's. Welch's serves our family not only as a beverage but as a food. I personally find it wonderfully bracing whenever I need quick pick-up energy."

for Buoyant Health

YOUR face tells a story to the world. If eyes are mirrors of the soul, no less is a radiant smile the mirror of good health.

Wholesome fruit such as Welch's Grape Juice as a part of the daily diet is the surest means of health insurance for the entire family. It is mildly laxative and non-fattening.

Drink Welch's—at breakfast, luncheon, dinner—every day throughout the year—and you will get all the concentrated goodness of America's own Concord grape. Loaded with quick energy and vitalizing elements, Welch's is brought to you scientifically pasteurized . . . ready for instant use. You'll find it wonderfully appetizing as a breakfast fruit.

1930 was a vintage year in the Westfield grape section of upper New York state. This means that today you enjoy an extra measure of that subtle bouquet, exotic flavor and lambent purple color which is the exclusive heritage of the Concord grape.

Children thrive on a fruit diet of Welch's. It supplies in abundant measure the liquids, mineral salts, neutralizing acids and fruit proteins which doctors declare so necessary to growing bodies. Many prefer it with one-third to one-half water added. The best plan is to keep a supply of Welch's in your pantry always. Then there will be no interruption to the safest, simplest method of supplying your family with Nature's tonic-food.

Welch's "by-the-bunch" is now available in the 10c Junior, the new sampler size, convenient for a single serving. It is the concentrated goodness of one and a quarter bunches of full-ripe Concords. Ask for Welch's at leading fountains, hotels, clubs and restaurants. Include it in your diet for one month—then check results. The pint bottle at 30c is most economical for household use. START NEW HUNT FOR NEWBY BODY IN FOREST TODAY

Golf Course Blood Stains Spur Inquiry.

A new search of the Elk Grove forest preserves, five miles northwest of Itasca, will be made today by police in an effort to find clews leading to the mysterious disappearance and supposed murder of Miss Norma Newby, 27 years old, 2706 Flournoy street. The woman was reported kidnaped on March 2 while in the company of Patrick J. Murray, 47 years old, 1641 West Marquette road.

The new search is prompted by the discovery yesterday of a blood stained patch of ground, a razor blade, and remnants of food in a glen on the golf course of the Itasca Country club. Cook county highway police attach significance to the find and planned immediately to go over every acre of the forest tracts. Particularly, they said, they will seek bits of clothing as clews and Murray's automobile.

Murray Tells of Robbery.

Murray and Miss Newby, friends for more than seventeen years, were riding in his automobile at noon on March 2. They stopped in a western suburb. Two men, he reported later, menaced them with guns. One boarded Murray's car and the other followed in another auto. They drove to the forest preserve, Murray said, where he was slugged and robbed. When he regained consciousness his car and companion were gone, Murray said.

Murray repeated his story of the holdup and kidnaping when seen in his home last night. His wife, Sadie, stood by him as he denied reports that his 17 year friendship with Miss Newby was other than platonic. According to Murray he has received a half dozen mysterious phone calls in which the caller hung up when his wife answered. He said the caller might have been Miss Newby.

Follow Other Trails.

Meanwhile police worked on half a dozen trails, one based on an anonymous letter suggesting the questioning of two "hard" brothers of an admirer of the missing woman. The authorities also are trying to locate a waitress, known as Elsie, a friend of Miss Newby, who left town with her mother on Friday. Detectives have asked Joliet police to locate William Sheehan, stepfather of Miss Newby, in the belief that if she is alive she may communicate with him.

BAILIFF OF CITY JUDGE KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

Edward Spiering, 53 years old, 2728 West 22d place, personal bailiff for Judge Joseph Schulman of the Municipal court, was fatally injured last night when he was struck by an automobile at California avenue and 22d street. Spiering was taken to St. Anthony's hospital, where he died early this morning. Donald Tracy, 18 years old, 425 Hannah avenue, Forest Park, driver of the car, took Spiering to the hospital, and was held by the police. This death and two others increased the county motor toll for 1931 to 240. The other victims:

Fred Shehorn, 30 years old, 3823 Wesley avenue, died in the county hospital of injuries suffered March 15 when he was struck by a hit and run automobile at Ogden and Damen avenues.

Minnie Simpkins, 32 years old, 3513 South Dearborn street, colored, died in the county hospital of injuries received Feb. 23 when she was struck by an automobile driven by Clarence Bergerson, 3857 Normal boulevard, at State and 31st streets.

BUSINESS WOMEN FORM GROUP TO SUPPORT CERMAK

A group of Chicago business women, many of them with Republican party affiliations, pledged their support toward the election of Anton J. Cermak as mayor last night at their initial organization meeting in the Hotel La Salle.

This group will work with the woman's independent committee which has established headquarters at the La Salle with Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank as chairman. Further organization of business women is planned for next Sunday at the home of Mrs. Fairbank.

Judge Harry Fisher in a short address advised the women to become active in building up sentiment for Cermak.

The woman's independent committee working for Cermak's election has as vice chairman, Miss Jane Addams, Mrs. Joseph Bowen, Mrs. E. A. Cudahy, Mrs. George R. Dean, Mrs. William E. Dever, Mrs. Parmalee McFadden, Mrs. James Morrison, Mrs. William A. Nitze, Mrs. Julius Rosenwald, Mrs. Walter Wolf, Mrs. M. A. Hirschl, and Miss Genevieve Corkell.

Reappoint Mrs. Hefferan, Plea of 30,000 Club Women

Concerted action for the reappointment of Mrs. W. S. Hefferan to the school board when her second term ends on April 30 has been started by 235 women's clubs in the city, representing more than 30,000 women. This was revealed yesterday in figures compiled in a recent poll conducted by Mrs. Elmer M. Naylor, president of the Morgan Park Woman's club, who heads the movement. According to Mrs. Naylor, the clubs have voted to petition both of the leading mayoralty candidates to promise the reappointment.

Promises Cermak G. O. P. Support in 8th Ward

Republican support for Anton J. Cermak for mayor in the 8th ward was promised yesterday by Attorney Seth E. Hough, secretary of the Republican organization in that ward. Hough, who backed Judge Lyle in the primary, declared that despite his politics he could not give his allegience to the city hall machine. Hough said he would urge all members of the Lyle ward organization to vote and work for Cermak.

CERMAK HANDLES "POORHOUSE" ON BUSINESS BASIS

Many Improvements Seen at Oak Forest.

"I should like to indorse the work in county charitable institutions under the administration of A. J. Cermak as president of the county board. He has shown a continuing interest in the welfare activities of the county, and it is my belief that under his administration there has been a steady improvement in all of them."

JOEL D. HUNTER,
Superintendent of the United Charities of Chicago.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Oak Forest infirmary presents a situation today which gives a good idea of the methods and policies followed by Anton J. Cermak as president of the county board in dealing with the social welfare problems under his control. It is, first of all, good business administration from a human viewpoint, with a minimum of political interference.

Oak Forest is the county poorhouse, where the old and destitute are sent. It is a pleasant place, far from the smoke and turmoil of the city. It spreads out like a vast English estate, with parklike approaches, a vista of forested knolls and farms in the distance, with gardens in the foreground.

Rooms Open to Sunlight.

The institution itself is far from the bleak old fashioned county poor farm. It is a low rambling structure in brick, built in wings so that all the rooms are open to the sunlight.

It is quite a stroll through this village of 4,192 population all under one roof. One may wander for seven miles along inclosed, heated corridors, observing the wards and the rooms allotted to the old couples.

There are two hospitals, one for general illness and one for tuberculosis. The inmates, who are free to go in and out of the home, if they have money and carfare, are found during the day time in the common sitting rooms for the women or in the main dining room, where the men gather to smoke and play cards and spin yarns. They all work a little if they can, but work is not forced and there is no pay for it, except extra tobacco for the men.

Food of Good Quality.

It is all open, sunny and clean, with kitchens giving a sweet odor of new bread, for they bake 2,700 loaves every day, and the butcher shops and store rooms crammed with food of limited variety, but good. They have a thousand pigs on the farm and last year produced $50,000 worth of produce there.

There is a big library, a Catholic chapel, a Protestant church, a Jewish synagogue and a Christian Science reading room, all under one rambling roof. The big ward rooms look clean and the old folks who putter about, or nap, or sew, are comfortably placed.

Frank Vanecek, who has been in county charity work for many years, is the superintendent at Oak Forest. The way he looks at things there has been a 100 per cent improvement in all departments under the Cermak régime. The greatest achievement, he says, has been to eliminate waste and bring down the per capita cost. The employés, who have cooperated to this end, have had their salaries raised three times, and the per capita cost is now said to be the lowest of any institution of its kind in the country.

Errs on Side of Economy.

It is probable that Cermak has erred on the side of economy, for there is an investigation under way now which indicates that in the matter of food at least the dietary problem has not been solved and the old folk are not getting just what they should in the way of variety. There is also a need for better nursing service and an improved occupational system.

It is characteristic of Cermak that when these matters were first brought to his attention some months ago he grumbled about additional costs and politics being back of the complaints, but when his attention was forced to the matter by publications he went at the job in a thorough way. He appointed a committee of social service experts and gave them free hand.

The American College of Surgeons is now finding out what must be done to bring the hospitals up to standard. Diet and occupational experts are busy, and it is planned to introduce a real social service department into the institution. A reform in the method of admissions, by more thorough investigation of each case, is also contemplated.

Many Features Added.

An institutional store, where the inmates get goods at cost; a dental clinic, library, two new X-ray rooms with expert operators, new instruments and equipment, and entertainment features have been added to the place under Cermak. Superintendent Vanecek says the industrial shops and farms and greenhouses save the county approximately $200,000 a year.

Other improvements are an electric bakery and ranges, a centralized barber shop, new water mains, a modernized fire department, new boilers, improvement in foodstuffs, a new cafeteria, and power machines in sewing rooms. Constant upkeep and repairs, to prevent waste through deterioration, has been followed.

Dr. J. T. Minke, who has charge of the medical work at the infirmary, says that his department has been given everything that it needs. In 1923 a consulting and advisory staff of physicians was appointed, headed by Dr. Otto L. Schmidt. They chose attending physicians to work in each of the five departments. The infirmary has since been recognized by the American Medical association as a suitable residence place for physicians for post-graduate work. It has still to reach a standard where it is recommended for interneship. Much research is going on at the hospitals in the diseases of the aged. First drug experiments were carried on here in sleeping sickness research. Northwestern university is conducting a study in nervous diseases and the Passavant hospital has a special laboratory there for the work in anemia.

ALD. A. E. LOESCHER, REPUBLICAN, BACKS CERMAK IN RACE

Ald. Albert E. Loescher [44th], a Republican, announced his support for Anton J. Cermak, Democratic nominee for mayor, in a speech last night at a Democratic ward meeting in Belden hall at Lincoln and Belden avenues.

During his six years in the council Ald. Loescher said that he always felt he belonged to Thompson's party although often he was compelled to vote against "extravagant appropriations, waste and inefficiency" in measures backed by the administration. He said he was relieved of any feeling of party loyalty when Thompson opposed the Republican candidate for United States senator last November.

15,000 TAXPAYERS HEAR DISCUSSION OF REFORM PLANS

More than 15,000 taxpayers attended seven massmeetings in various parts of the city last night and listened to speakers describe proposed methods of tax relief. The meetings were arranged by the Chicago Real Estate board as the first step in its drive for members in an organization which will have for its purpose a solution of the tax problem.

Complete reform of the present taxing system was urged by State's Attorney John A. Swanson speaking at the Fenger High school. Other speakers were Albert W. Swayne of the Real Estate board and Ald. Sheldon W. Govier. Another audience in the Midway Masonic temple heard Prof. Simeon Leland of the University of Chicago discuss the tax problem.

Large crowds listened to speakers in the Broadway armory on the north side; Guyon's Paradise ballroom on the west side; the Northwest Lions club, 4306 West North avenue; the West Englewood Masonic temple, and the Falconer school, 3000 North Lamon avenue.

BACKS BILL TO PUT ALL COUNTY WORKERS UNDER CIVIL SERVICE

The county board yesterday unanimously indorsed a bill pending before the house at Springfield which would place all of the county's 4,000 employés under the civil service merit system. A resolution indorsing the bill was introduced by President A. J. Cermak. At present, approximately 35 per cent of the county employés, those under direct control of the commissioners, are under civil service. A public hearing on the bill is scheduled to be held at Springfield today.

Returns

For investment purposes consider real estate. The annual return in real estate is much higher than in stocks, averaging 20 per cent, without any losses. Stocks offer only one chance in a hundred for financial independence. Real estate investment makes independence almost a certainty. Land is the basis of all wealth.

Controlled Roasting

gives Hills Bros Coffee a flavor no other coffee has, because that process roasts the blend evenly . . . continuously

a little at a time

ONLY HILLS BROS CAN USE CONTROLLED ROASTING. THIS PROCESS PREVENTS VARIATION IN FLAVOR. TODAY, TOMORROW, NEXT YEAR . . . HILLS BROS COFFEE ALWAYS HAS THE SAME EXQUISITE FLAVOR

A flavor no other coffee has! That's what you will find in every can of Hills Bros. Coffee because Controlled Roasting—the process that develops that smooth, savory flavor—belongs to Hills Bros. exclusively.

The common method of roasting in bulk does not roast coffee evenly. Invariably some of the batch is overdone—some underdone. But since Hills Bros.' famous blend is roasted evenly, continuously, a few pounds at a time—every berry is roasted to uniform perfection.

No can of Hills Bros. Coffee will ever "go stale." It is always fresh because air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is completely removed and kept out of the vacuum can in which the coffee is packed. Ordinary cans, even if air-tight, do not keep coffee fresh.

Ask for Hills Bros. Coffee by name and look for the Arab—the trade-mark—on the can.

To those whose only thought is to find The Car of Cars

No satisfaction can be deeper than the sure knowledge that one has bought the car of cars—and paid no premium for that performance and prestige. The three things which can make one sure, are, of course:

A · · · Long-sustained high repute and unusual social acceptance.
B · · · Outstanding dignity and impressiveness of appearance.
C · · · Engineering soundness developed through the years and expressed in richly comfortable riding quality.

In these respects, the new Pierce-Arrow can surely be said to isolate and distinguish itself among the few fine cars which the buyer can consider.

Long-sustained high repute and universal acceptance—these are surely conceded to Pierce-Arrow.

Outstanding dignity and impressiveness of appearance—surely Pierce-Arrow proclaims itself on any boulevard or highway.

Engineering soundness and rich riding quality—nothing in these respects can be asked or procured beyond Pierce-Arrow.

To be literal and exact—the capacities of Pierce-Arrow's superb eight-cylinder power plant, with the added safety and smoothness of free wheeling, will assert themselves triumphantly in any test.

In this community, careful buyers are scrutinizing fine cars with special thought of Pierce-Arrow—seeking the satisfaction of owning the car of cars.

We promise them without reserve that the new Pierce-Arrow will acquit itself faultlessly in any and every comparison.

TELL OF POLITICAL FAVORITISM AT JOBLESS HAVEN

150 Men Get Extra Meal for Aiding Mayor.

Complaints that the old Criminal Courts building at Austin avenue and Dearborn street, now a shelter for homeless unemployed men, is being used for political purposes were investigated yesterday. It was revealed that 150 men who did none of the actual work of the shelter were given three meals a day, while other non-workers got only two meals a day.

The 150 men who obtained three meals a day, it was learned, distributed pledge cards for Mayor Thompson before the primary of Feb. 24, obtaining signatures and returning them to the shelter. Men who refused to distribute the pledge cards, and men who were not in the shelter at the time and thus did not have a chance to join the privileged class, are served after the 150 men have eaten. There are also 50 men who work regularly in the shelter who get three meals a day.

The shelter was opened by the Tower Town Food and Shelter, Inc., an organization of near north side women. Mrs. T. D. Collins, who heads the group, was informed last night of the extra meal given the special 150 men.

"I'll change all that tomorrow," Mrs. Collins said. "I had no idea anything like that was going on."

The authorities at the shelter are now feeding 4,400 men daily.

Of half a dozen men interviewed among the regular workers in the shelter all of them were satisfied with conditions there. It was from other men about the building that the information on the special bread line of 150 was obtained.

APPROVES PLANS FOR BRIDGE OVER LITTLE CALUMET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 16.—[Special.]—Plans for a new bridge across the Little Calumet river at South Halsted street were approved today by the war department. The plans were submitted by the state of Illinois through its department of public works and buildings.

According to the war department, the plans for the new bridge conform to the requirements of a board of engineers established to make a preliminary examination of the Calumet river, the Little Calumet river, Lake Calumet, and Sag channel, with a view to providing a connection with the waterway from Chicago to the Mississippi river, authorized by the river and harbor act of 1930.

The bridge is to be located above the "forks" of the Little Calumet river, which is the head of navigation for commercial vessels and the present limit of federal improvement. Clearance will be provided for present and prospective navigation, the department stated.

AVIATRIX PLANS NEW ATTACK ON ALTITUDE MARK

Akron, O., March 16.—(AP)—Determination to put more than eight miles of space between her biplane and the earth was announced today by Miss Frankie Renner, 30, Akron airplane saleswoman, who claims a new feminine altitude record.

In a flight at Akron last Friday she pushed the plane to what, she says, was 33,000 feet above the earth.

Miss Renner will have to beat eight miles by more than 2,000 feet to capture the world's record, since the present world's record for men is 42,166 feet, set by Lieut. Apollo Soucek of the United States navy. Ruth Nichols recently flew to about 30,000 feet.

GENERAL MOTORS FRIGIDAIRE

ADVANCED REFRIGERATION

It makes droopy, dejected garden things pertly crisp and sprightly!

What wonders the Frigidaire Hydrator works with wilted greens and languid vegetables! ● Celery that has given up the ghost, so to speak, stands up like a Grenadier after a sojourn in the cold-moist magic of the Hydrator! ● Lettuce that has lain down to die comes from its dewy, frosty depths crisp and succulent and newly inviting! ● In the Frigidaire Hydrator all sorts of fruits and vegetables and salad greens find and keep just-out-of-the-garden freshness. ● In most Frigidaire models the Hydrator is conveniently suspended so that food may be stored under and around it—it occupies that just-under-the-shelf space that is usually wasted. ● What a great saving and what a great service are housed in the conveniently compact Hydrator!

The Frigidaire Hydrator to keep and restore garden-fresh crispness to fruits and vegetables is one of the many outstanding advantages of Frigidaire Advanced Refrigeration. There are many others. It is these major improvements, developed by Frigidaire, that have made household refrigeration so healthful, convenient and economical. We invite you to come in at your first opportunity and learn all about them.

POLL INDICATES SWING TO CERMAK ON NEAR S. SIDE

Whittles Rival's Lead in Negro Wards.

Pre-Campaign Poll

Candidate.	Previous. Vote.	Yesterday's Vote.	Totals to date.	Pct. to date
Cermak [D]	10,502	510	11,012	59.89
Thom'son [R]	6,224	1,004	7,228	39.30
Stout [A]	146	8	154	.81
Totals	16,872	1,522	18,394	100.00

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

In THE TRIBUNE straw vote yesterday in the motion picture theaters of the colored area Mayor Thompson received 65.96 per cent of the votes. His Democratic opponent, Anton J. Cermak, obtained 33.51 per cent, and the remaining one-half of one per cent was given to Ernest Stout, candidate for mayor on two tickets.

However, in the total of votes Cermak is still leading by a margin which would forecast his election by upwards of 200,000 votes, if the voting were today instead of on April 7.

In the previous poll at street corners in the area in which are situated the theaters which were canvassed yesterday, Thompson obtained 73.05 per cent of the straw votes cast, and in the 1927 survey he polled 74.99 per cent of the votes in the First, Second, Third, and Fourth wards.

Change Is Puzzling.

The reason why Thompson has dropped to 65.96 per cent of the straw votes taken at the theaters yesterday is not apparent. It is not believed that anything which has been said or done since the street poll was taken has influenced voters in the first four wards to the extent indicated since the street poll was taken.

It is politically possible for a Democrat to carry the First, second, Third, and Fourth wards. The late mayor, William E. Dever, accomplished this in 1923. He obtained 61.89 per cent of the votes of the four wards and Lueder, the Republican candidate, got only 35.17 per cent.

These four wards represent about 100,000 prospective voters on April 7, if the revision of the registration did not cut into the potential voters too heavily.

Vote at Movie Houses.

The theaters polled yesterday and the straw votes for each candidate at each are shown in the following tabulation:

Ward, theater—	Cermak.	Thompson.	Stout.	Tot.
2 Vendome, 3134 S. State	17	99	0	116
3 Oakland Sq., 3947 Drexel	123	50	0	173
3 Shakespeare, 936 E. 43d	105	35	0	140
3 Indiana, 219 E. 43d	34	176	1	211
4 Regal, So. Pkwy. and 47th	30	192	3	234
4 Metr'p'litan, 4064 South Park way	18	82	0	100
4 Willard, 340 E. 51st	56	321	4	381
4 Vista, 822 E. 47th	113	49	0	162
Totals	510	1,004	8	1,522
Per cent	33.51	65.96	.53	100.00

Poll Totals Differ.

Four years ago the Vendome was canvassed four times. On the first poll it showed nine votes for Dever to 156 for Thompson. On the second visit it registered 11 votes for Dever and 324 for Thompson. On the third call it was 16 for Dever and 239 for Thompson, and on the fourth time around it was 27 for Dever and 121 for Thompson. It appears from a comparison of the 1927 and 1931 polls at this same theater that Thompson was stronger four years ago among the colored people than he is today.

The colored area is the only large district in the city where Thompson has been found to have an advantage in public sentiment.

An attempt will be made tomorrow to present the straw votes from the remaining motion picture theaters of the south side.

For Warm Air, Steam and Hot Water Heating Systems —Old or New Homes

It is a remarkable fact that of the thousands of Silent Automatic oil burners installed every year, the great majority are really sold before a salesman even calls.

Across back fences, around luncheon tables . . . wherever home heating is discussed . . . neighbor has told neighbor and friend has told friend about Silent Automatic's year-after-year dependability, uniform heating efficiency and economy of operation.

So, in every city in which "Silent" has been introduced, the good-will wireless has built whole neighborhoods and communities of Silent Automatics around a single installation. Silent Automatic dares say "Ask ANY owner", simply because the thing responsible for "Silent's" world leadership is what ALL owners say about it.

Of course, there are definite engineering reasons for this enthusiastic testimony . . . the rugged simplicity of "Silent" design and construction; the "Wiping WALL-FLAME" which gives you all the heat value from fuel oil.

But the experience of owners is of more concern to you than mechanical features. Silent Automatic asks you only to look at the FACTS which are yours for the asking . . . and especially at the one fact of overwhelming owner satisfaction which has made "Silent" outsell all other domestic oil burners, year after year.

BARE FOILED PLOT FOR AN OUTBREAK AT NEW PRISON

National Guard Ready to Curb Convicts.

Prison officials yesterday let it be known that the same kind of discontent which brought on a riot Saturday in the old Joliet penitentiary was prevalent also in the new Stateville penitentiary, and that precautions had been taken to prevent a wholesale escape of prisoners.

WARDEN HILL. [Associated Press Photo.]

"A special corps of guards was assigned to Stateville on Saturday," said Warden Henry C. Hill. "Six large saws, which could be used in cutting bars, were found in one cell. These had been smuggled in and a close watch was kept on the whole prison when it became apparent that help from the outside was expected by some of the convicts. Our information indicated that it was planned to smuggle firearms in to the prisoners."

Other developments in the prison situation, which is to be the subject of investigation by a special legislative committee beginning on Friday, included:

1. The death of George Jakowanis, 24 year old convict who was shot down while Guard Capt. Davenport was being beaten during the riot. His death was the second growing out of the disorder.

2. A disclosure that the resignation of the Rev. George L. Whitmeyer, prison chaplain and critic of the administration, had been made at the request of Col. Frank L. Whipp, state superintendent of prisons.

Charges Against Chaplain.

3. Statements by Warden Hill to the effect that Chaplain Whitmeyer had acted as messenger for prisoners, carrying their letters and increasing discontent by telling them "what the prison needs is a good riot."

4. Announcement that the 1,100 convicts who participated in the rioting were still locked in their cells 24 hours a day, and kept on a diet of bread and water and one sausage a day.

5. Discovery that Joseph Gentile, a Chicagoan sent to prison for a part in the $80,000 International Harvester holdup several years ago, had sent a code message, concealed in a short story he had written, to his wife, and had given it to the chaplain.

Order Guardsmen Ready.

When the news of the death of Jakowanis spread by grapevine telegraph through the cells where the rioters are held there was a new outburst of imprecation against the prison officials. That the situation is regarded as having serious possibilities is evidenced by the orders sent to National Guard units to stand ready for immediate service in the prisons.

Chaplain Whitmeyer, although he admitted he had referred to the killing of three escaping convicts on Feb. 22 as murder, denied that he had ever made any inflammatory statements to convicts or that he had carried any messages for them. All documents turned over to him, he said, were passed to the deputy wardens for consideration. The Gentile code, he said, was one of the writings he had taken to the administrative authorities.

"Even before the attempted Washington's birthday escape," the chaplain added, "I told Deputy Warden Erickson that a number of the men were plotting to get Capt. Davenport; to catch him in the yard and beat him. I told Capt. Davenport and he laughed at me."

He attributed the outbreak to dissatisfaction within the walls over the state parole board's actions and to treatment of the convicts by Erickson and Davenport.

Chaplain Whitmeyer was appointed to his place last August by Gov. Emmerson on recommendation of Judge De Witt T. Hartwell of Herrin. He was pastor of an Episcopal church at Herrin before going to the prison.

Willing to Tell Story.

He declared that he was being "framed," and that he was willing to tell his whole story, but would not go voluntarily before the investigating committee on Friday.

The other side of the controversy about his actions included the report that the Secret Six of the Chicago Association of Commerce requested his removal on the ground that he advised prisoners not to talk to that investigating body's operatives.

All except one or two of the 43 convicts who wrecked the penitentiary kitchen on Saturday were still in solitary confinement yesterday. The 668 inmates who were not involved in the riot were marched to the mess hall for meals as usual and were sent to work.

Representative Michael L. Igoe [Dem., Chicago], a member of the investigating committee from the house of representatives, visited the prison in the morning. He expressed surprise when he was told that Jakowanis had died. He talked with Michael Casselli and Joseph Kwoka, the wounded convicts, in the hospital.

CONTINUE RAIDED SHOW CASE.

Frank Benham, manager of the Empress theater at 63d and Halsted street, and six of his employés, charged with taking part in an indecent show, were arraigned before Judge Graber yesterday. The case was continued to March 26.

REVEALS 19 PCT. INCREASE IN TAX RATE IN CHICAGO

First Bills to Be Put in Mails Tomorrow.

An approximate increase of 19 per cent in city tax bills was indicated yesterday when County Clerk Sweitzer announced the 1929 tax rates. The rates varied slightly for different sections of the city, but the taxpayer, as a general rule, may expect to receive a bill larger by about one-fifth than the previous tax of 1928.

The 1929 tax rates for each $100 of valuation in city townships—exclusive of small park districts—are shown in the following table, with the figures for 1928 given for comparison:

West Chicago	$5.18	$6.03
South Chicago	5.15	6.15
North Chicago	5.31	6.29
Hyde Park	5.15	6.15
Lake	5.15	6.15
Lake View	5.34	6.38
Rogers Park	4.60	5.53
Jefferson	4.60	5.53

Increases in Tax Shown.

Thus, a citizen with an assessed valuation of $1,000 on his property in South Chicago paid a tax bill of $51.50 in 1928. This year, with the same valuation [most valuations for 1929 remained approximately the same as in 1928], his tax bill will be $61.50. In the Lake View district, on the same valuation, the 1928 bill was $50.34. The 1929 bill, due this year, will be $62.80.

Bank stock assessment bills in the South town district, which includes the loop, will be the first to be placed in the mails tomorrow. Country town personal and real estate bills will be placed in the mails on Thursday. The first city real estate bills will not be ready for mailing until about April 1, according to County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough.

Cut Rates on Two Items.

In the items making up the total city rates, exclusive of the small park districts, the state, sanitary district, city and school rates were increased, while two items, the county and forest preserve rates, showed slight decreases. The following table shows the various rates on a $100 valuation:

	1928.	1929.
State	.30	.39
County	.46	.45
Forest preserve	.10	.09
Sanitary district	.46	.57
City	1.75	1.99
School	1.53	2.04

The west park rates showed a reduction from the previous year, while the other park rates showed an increase. The following table shows these comparisons:

	1928.	1929.
West park	.58	.50
South park	.55	.62
Lincoln park	.45	.46
Lincoln park bonds	.31	.25

Country Due for Increases.

In the country, many of the municipalities reduced their rates or tax levies because of the increases in property assessments caused by the reassessment. Thus, there were smaller increases in rate percentages than in the city. However, substantial increases in the country tax bills are expected.

In calculating the probable size of their tax bills this year, rural property owners must add town, road and bridge, village, park and school district rates to the rates for state, county and forest preserve in order to find the total rate. The average suburban property owner will find his tax bill approximately as much larger as the city property owner, it was said. In some cases in the suburbs, a larger increase will be found.

Total County Valuation.

The aggregate valuation of real estate, personal property, including capital stock and railroad assessed valuations, in the county was $4,408,233,632 for 1929. This figure is an increase of $65,242,142 over the 1928 aggregate of $4,338,891,490.

The tax rate for Evanston was made up of the following items:

Sanitary district	.57	N. E. pk. dist.	.12
City of Evanston	1.11	N. Shore pk. dist.	.24
Evanston s. w. park dist.	.03	Mosquito abatement dist.	.03
Evanston first pk. dist.	.15	Joint school dists.	4.29

The tax rate of Oak Park was made up of the following items:

Sanitary district	.57	Mosquito abatement dist.	.04
Vil. of Oak Pk.	.95	Combined school districts	2.77
Park district	.19

Adopt 1931 County Levy.

The county board yesterday adopted its 1931 tax levy of $21,023,252, which includes levies for the corporate, highway, and bond and interest funds. At the same time the board adopted a resolution directing the county controller to dispose of 1931 tax anticipation warrants not to exceed 90 per cent of the aggregate levy, which would be approximately $19,000,000.

Assistant Controller Michael J. O'Connor said he would attempt to sell $2,000,000 of the warrants today.

Princeton, Ind., March 16.—[Special.]—The county grand jury today returned an indictment against Dr. Jerauld K. Cunningham, prominent Princeton dentist and business man, charging him with first degree murder in the death of Marion White on the Cunningham farm near here. Report Hoodlums Worried.

Hoodlums were said to have been more concerned with their income taxes than in previous years, presumably because of the convictions of several notorious gangsters, but they were reluctant to schedule illicit sources listing "various sources" instead.

About 10,000 returns were filed at the federal building yesterday and long queues were formed in the corridor leading to the cashier's office. The lines thinned in the evening. But the office remained open until midnight. Another 1,000 were assisted with their returns at the main public service office of THE TRIBUNE, 1 South Dearborn street, bringing the total given this aid to approximately the same as last year's figures, 17,900. Four deputy collectors were stationed at the service office.

MOLINE BANK OFFICER'S THEFTS OVER A MILLION

Moline, Ill., March 16.—(AP)—Embezzlement of $1,109,000 from the People's Savings Bank and Trust company of Moline was laid today in a formal joint statement by officers of the bank and of Deere & Co. to R. C. Shallberg, vice president and cashier of the bank.

The statement said the shortage "has been made good in full by Deere & Co. and by certain directors and stockholders of each institution." Shallberg confessed Saturday to peculations, but their amount was not revealed until today. Shallberg said that he had taken the money to spend chiefly on real estate in scattered cities. It all came, he said, from the cash accounts of Deere & Co.

SEARCY ASSAILS TACTICS AGAINST DRY LAW REPEAL

Warns Republicans They Invite Defeat.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 16.—[Special.]—The proposal of professional drys to tack a 1932 referendum on the O'Grady repealer of the Illinois prohibition law, brought a blast tonight from Senator Earl B. Searcy [Rep.] of the Sangamon-Morgan district. He dwelt on the Anti-Saloon league as the old man of the sea on the neck of the Republican party. He echoed a sentiment prevailing at the statehouse these last eleven weeks that unless the Republican legislature carries out the popular mandate on repeal, the Republican party might well fold its tent like the Arab and steal away from the 1932 election a couple of jumps ahead of another Democratic landslide.

The O'Grady and McDermott repealers come up Wednesday in license committee and some drys for a week have been talking of an effort to attach a referendum clause. Liberals have pointed out a referendum would not be accepted by the house and if stuck on by the senate, the effect would be to land the bill in joint committee with a possibility of a failure, in which event the Republicans have been gloomily saying the Republicans would collect the blame, and the Democrats would have material for the next governorship campaign.

Talk of Legislative Reprisals.

Liberals tonight say the count shows 27 votes in the senate for repeal—26 is a majority—and the referendum proposition is said to be staggering from criticism, some of which comes from senators who vote dry.

House leaders on the eve of tomorrow's resumption of the sessions, tonight are talking louder than ever of reprisals if the senate does not come out of its eleven weeks coma and expedite action. They speak of an organized movement to hold up appropriation bills and administration measures unless the repealer soon gets to a final vote.

Senator Searcy of the capital district, who was a sergeant in France, tonight said he would press his joint resolution No. 1 this week, calling on congress to call a convention to repeal or amend the 18th amendment, action similar to that taken a few days ago by the Massachusetts legislature. The Searcy measure has been snoozing for eleven weeks in the executive committee. On the repealer itself, he urged quick action.

Calls Referendum Subterfuge.

"This proposal for a referendum on the mandate for repeal of state prohibition," said Senator Searcy, "is a subterfuge, an effort to pass the buck by sidesteppers.

"Too long the Anti-Saloon league has been vamping the Republicans to destruction. Now the butter and egg man shows signs of breaking away from the blandishments, the political gold diggers demonstrate their entire willingness to destroy the Republican party without mercy on the first occasion, when the party does not do its bidding. The league has the soul of a siren and a vampire.

"Now they talk of a referendum in 1932 on the referendum of 1930. It's time for the Republican legislature to wake up and show some initiative on this greatest of social problems. Eleven weeks have been spent in senatorial langour. Republican prospects next year are poor enough at best. And if our party leadership is not more responsible to the needs and demands of the citizenship those prospects in 1932 will be nil. The people will have no use for a Republican ticket which broke faith—I make this constructive criticism as a strong Republican party man."

Reapportionment is one of the chief topics of the week in the house, which on Wednesday will consider the Schnackenberg resolution for a joint committee to prepare a "fair and just" revamp of legislative districts.

Sentenced for Robbery Which Ended in Shooting

John Humaj, 30 years old, operator of a soft drink parlor at 2700 West 24th place, pleaded guilty to a charge of robbery at Ottawa yesterday and was sentenced to one to twenty years in the Joliet penitentiary. With Peter Niedwiski, an ex-convict, he held up a gas filling station at Peru, Ill. Niedwiski and Frank Franks, a Peru policeman, were shot and wounded in the chase that followed the robbery.

Girl, 5, Injured While Playing with Shotgun

Louise Gillen, 5 years old, 4720 Wentworth avenue, was injured yesterday when her father's shotgun was accidentally discharged. She and a playmate, Mildred Brown, 10 years old, 4922 Wentworth avenue, found the weapon, which was loaded with a blank cartridge, and were using it as a toy when Mildred pulled the trigger. The younger child's ear was torn and her face burned by the discharge.

ANOTHER WOMAN VICE QUIZ TALKER DEAD IN NEW YORK

Chemists to Determine if Poison Killed Her.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 16.—[Special.]—This city's reputation for crime and corruption continued to grow as another day passed without any definite action toward a civic housecleaning. There were several murders and mysterious deaths over the week-end and out of them came one death that may prove to be another serious blot on New York's name.

JOHN CLARKE. [Tribune Photo.]

Georgia Gray, slim, pretty red-haired one time companion of stool-pigeon Harry Gibson and a witness in the vice scandal investigation, died under mysterious circumstances Saturday night in Bellevue hospital. Today Chief Medical Examiner Charles Norris began an autopsy and ordered a chemical test of the dead woman's organs.

Held as a Material Witness.

Last month Georgia Gray sat in the witness chair at the police investigation and gave damaging testimony against Plain Clothesman Leigh Halperin charged with vice graft and the framing of innocent women. At the conclusion of the Halperin case, she was held in $1,000 bail as a material witness in the case of Halperin's partner Patrolman Sullivan.

A week ago Georgia Gray was taken ill in her 72d street apartment. Her illness was said to have been pneumonia. Friday, a private ambulance took Georgia to Bellevue hospital where she was registered as "Violet Smith, aged 25, a dancer." Saturday night she died. A routine autopsy was performed and her death was entered on the records as having been caused by "lobar pneumonia." Then her identity became known, just how it was not revealed, and a chemical test of her organs was ordered. Dr. Norris said there was "no hint she had been poisoned," but that "I am having this test made because of her connections."

The peak of disorganized public clamor for a city-wide clean up was passed over the week-end. The cries against corrupt police, dishonest alliances between politicians and financiers, strangely profitable contacts between the underworld mob and the political gang and against the fat bank accounts of minor ward henchmen have begun to take definite form.

Must Fight Or Get Out.

The time has come for action and the calling of names, and Tammany, from the mayor to the last ward heeler, must fight or get out.

The first body blow of the fight was struck this afternoon with Mayor Jimmy Walker basking in California sunshine where he had gone to "cure a bad cold." Commissioner Samuel Seabury and his counsel, John Kirkland Clarke, opened the investigation ordered by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain and his office.

Mr. Seabury's first announcement was that he had drafted three aids from the staff that still is investigating the magistrates' courts.

With Tammany's admission that public opinion had reached the point where "the time has passed for making light of the uprising in this city and the temper of the public should be met with dignity and seriousness" interest shifted to Albany.

Tonight the state capitol holds the key to Tammany's fate. Gov. Roosevelt has or soon will have in hand the final draft of the city affairs committee's demand for a wide, impartial investigation of New York City's government. At the same time Republican State Chairman W. Kingsland Macy, who believes that only a legislative inquiry can clean up New York, is pushing to the front a second test of the measure calling for legislative action. The next twenty-four hours, it is believed, will decide whether there is to be a legislative investigation, an investigation ordered by the Democratic governor, both or neither.

In other scandal circles there was considerable activity. Max Steuer, who is pressing for the trial of the Bank of United States officials, fought in court today for immediate trial. Decision was withheld.

KIRKLAND SENTENCE FOR DRAVES MURDER IS SET FOR MARCH 24

Valparaiso, Ind., March 16.—(AP)—Sentencing to life imprisonment of Virgil Kirkland of Gary, convicted of the murder of Arlene Draves, scheduled for today in Porter Circuit court, has been postponed until March 24, Judge Grant Crumpacker announced.

Habeas corpus writs to free Paul Barton, Leon Stanford, Henry Shirk, and David Thompson, also held for the death of the Draves girl, are being considered by defense attorneys. The four were jointly indicted with Kirkland for the slaying, which occurred at a liquor party in the David Thompson home last November.

The habeas corpus writs will be based on the contention that the four other defendants had no part in the death of the girl.

Meanwhile, Oscar B. Thiel, Gary defense attorney, is working on a new trial motion for Kirkland.

3 JURORS PICKED ON FIRST DAY OF BROTHERS' TRIAL

let the defense have the transcript as soon as it is delivered to the state.

Mr. Brooks handed the defense a list of five additional witnesses after a discussion in chambers. These were Patrick Campbell, 7514 Cornell avenue; Daniel Mills, 7635 Rogers avenue; Clark Applegate, Owensboro, Ky.; the Rev. John Reynolds, Notre Dame, Ind., and Marcus David, 3600 Sunnyside avenue. It was agreed that when the out of town witnesses arrive the defense will have opportunity to examine them.

Indictment Returned Jan. 12.

At the opening of the case Mr. Brooks explained that the trial of Brothers was on an indictment returned Jan. 12 last, and the charge was murder. Brothers, he said, was also known as "Buster," and as Louis V. Bader.

As the examination proceeded it was evident that despite the publicity attendant upon the killing of Lingle and the arrest of Brothers the selection of the jury would not be greatly delayed because of the number of men with fixed opinions encountered. Several were excused for this cause, and two peremptory challenges were used by each side, for reasons only known to the attorneys.

Both sides wanted to know what newspapers were habitually read by the jurors, and Mr. Brooks raised the question as to whether the fact that Lingle was an employé of THE TRIBUNE would have any influence on their minds. He wanted to know if they had any feeling against the man or the institution that he worked for. No such feeling was disclosed.

Defense Makes It Issue.

Mr. Piquett developed this theme still further, showing that the defense at the start at least is seeking an issue here. He wanted to know if the jurors knew any one connected with THE TRIBUNE, particularly Mr. Rathbun, a member of the law firm employed by THE TRIBUNE; whether they were financially interested in the paper in any way, whether they ever did any advertising in it, whether any investigators for the paper, particularly Jacob Manasee, had ever talked with them, whether they knew the publisher, Col. Robert R. McCormick. Nobody, it developed, knew any one mentioned or had any of the interests indicated.

The defense sought to find out whether the jurors were interested in any reform organization, while the state elicted information on the subject of possible prejudice against the testimony of policemen. The defense questioned as to whether the fact that a Catholic priest, Father Reynolds, was to be a witness, would have any bearing on the attitude of the jurors. The popularity of Coroner Bundesen was also mentioned as a matter of possible interest to jurors, as he is on the witness list.

Find No Special Prejudices.

No sparks of special prejudice or special interest were struck anywhere. Men had read of the case but for the most part had passed on to the market page or the sporting page without any special impression being left in their minds. The defense asked particularly as to which of the jurors had read "an 18 column article printed at the time of Brothers' arrest."

This had been read by a few and opinions had been formed from it, a fact which resulted in the dismissal of at least one man.

Brothers watched the jurors closely and gave his opinion on each man in a whisper to his attorneys.

Questioned on Death Penalty.

When questioned by the prosecutor as to the possible necessity of inflicting the death penalty in this case, no conscientious scruples against this were found in the jury box. Mr. Brooks explained carefully that he was not suggesting that this would be the disposition of this case, but only wanted to know their thoughts in the event that the evidence to be heard resulted in a verdict that would put this problem up to them.

"There is no case here without the evidence," he said. "It makes no difference to you what has been said or written about it. The law envelops Brothers as well as the community. All we ask is that you enforce the law."

A special venire of 100 men has been called for this case Wednesday morning. The first panel of four is expected to be completed early today.

Denial that Robert E. Cantwell Sr., veteran Criminal court lawyer, would appear as defense counsel for Brothers, was made last night by his son, Attorney Robert E. Cantwell Jr. A statement that the elder Cantwell would participate in the case was made earlier in court by Attorney Piquett.

"This is erroneous," said the son last night. "My father, his physician, and myself conferred, and it was definitely understood my father's condition will not permit him to be a lawyer in the case, and he will not be."

Stepfather Shoots Girl Dead, Then Kills Himself

Edinburg, Tex., March 16.—(AP)—C. D. Walker, 30, and Christine Moss, 14, his foster daughter, both of San Juan, died today of wounds received in a shooting in the Walker home late last night. Mrs. Walker told officers her husband shot the girl and then himself. The family had just returned from a trip to Reynosa, Mexico. Mrs. Walker said an argument between Walker and the girl preceded the shooting, but she did not know what started the quarrel.

WHEN CHILDREN CRY

CHILDREN often cry for no apparent reason. Many times we can't guess what is wrong. The crying may mean a touch of colic; the little bowels may be sluggish—or some other upset. It may mean any of the common little ailments that children suffer. To bring quick comfort to your little one, give a few drops of Castoria. Most upsets of children are soon soothed away by this pleasant-tasting remedy that children all love.

In five million modern homes, Castoria is a mother's first thought when a child is out of sorts, feverish, cross, doesn't eat right or sleep right. When bad breath, coated tongue, or languor tells of constipation. These five million wise mothers know that children should never be given stronger medicines meant for the fully developed systems of grown-ups. Castoria is gentle—safe, yet always thorough and effective for a child of any age. It may be given to the tiniest infant for any little upset. When buying, look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on wrapper.

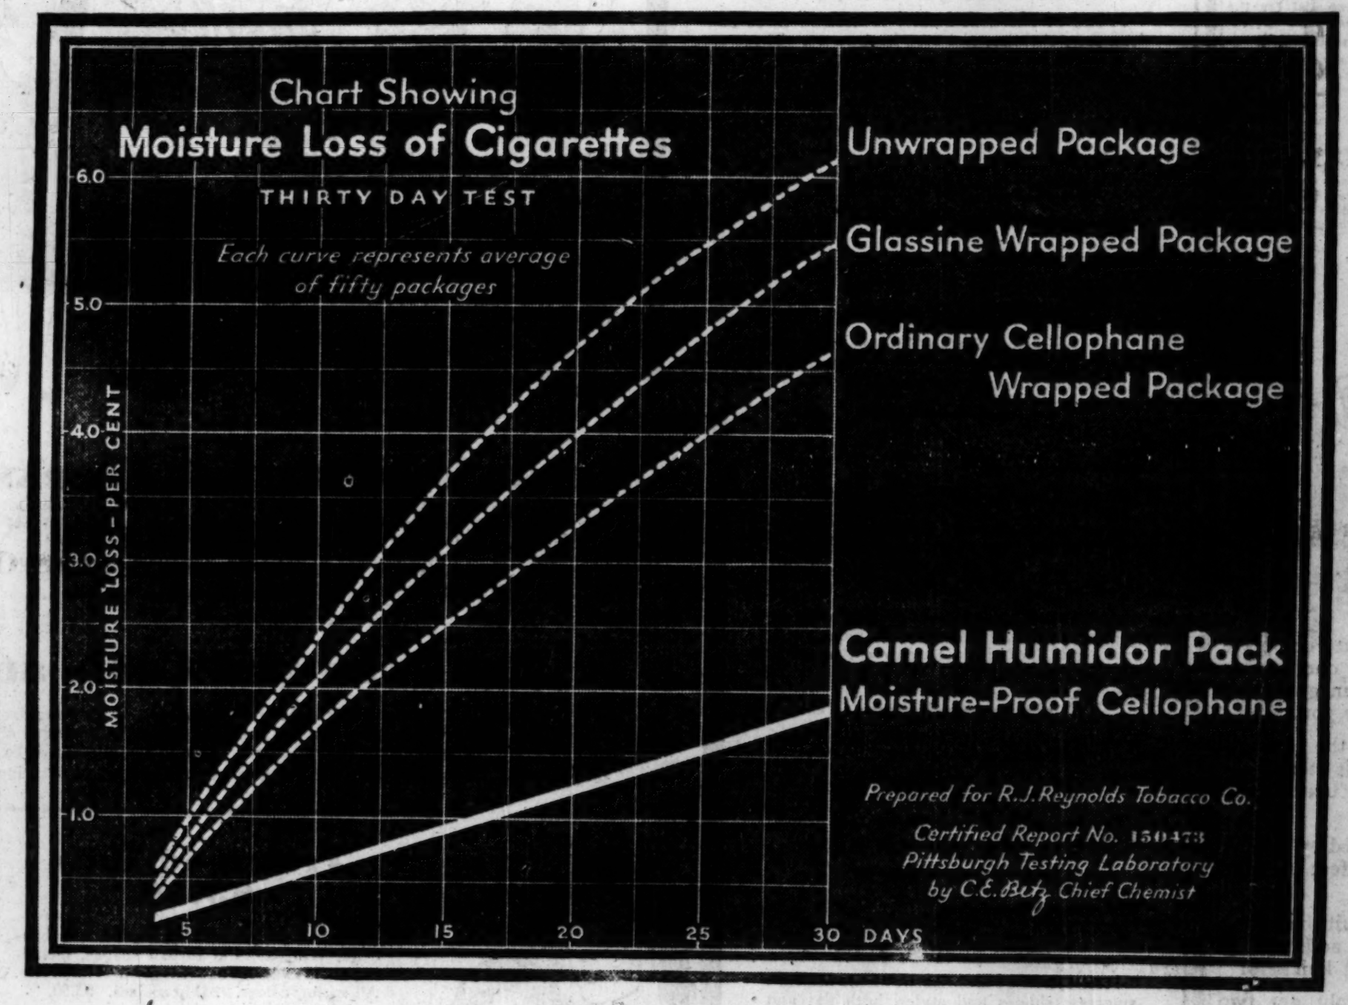
Smoke a FRESH Cigarette!



Cigarettes in prime condition have a moisture content of about 10%. It will be seen by the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory Chart that cigarettes in the ordinary wrapped package lose more than half of their total moisture in thirty days and that only the Camel Humidor Pack delivers cigarettes to you in prime condition

THE whole country is talking about the throat-easy mildness and the prime freshness of Camel Cigarettes in the new Humidor Pack.

The above chart prepared by the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory tells you why.

Please examine it carefully. It is an unfailing guide to cigarette selection and enjoyment.

As you can quickly see by the three upper curves on this interesting chart, cigarettes that lack the protection of the Humidor Pack lose their moisture rapidly from the day they are manufactured.

And day by day as this moisture disappears, the smoke from these cigarettes becomes harsher, hotter, more unkind to the smoker's throat.

Not so with Camels!

The Humidor Pack is moisture proof and sealed air-tight at every point. It protects the rich, flavorful aroma of the choice Turkish and Domestic tobaccos of which Camels are blended.

Make these tests yourself

It is so easy to tell the difference between parched dry cigarettes and fresh prime Camels that it is no wonder everybody is reaching for a fresh cigarette today.

Your fingers identify stale, dried-out tobaccos at once. While a Camel is flexible and pliant.

Your ears can tell the difference too. For a dust-dry cigarette crackles under pressure.

But the real test is taste and there is simply no comparison between the rich mildness of a Camel and the hot, brackish smoke from a stale, dry cigarette.

Switch to Camels just for today then leave them tomorrow if you can.

R. J. REYNOLDS TOBACCO COMPANY, Winston-Salem, N. C.

CAMELS

Artificial heat in houses and apartments soon dries the moisture out of cigarettes wrapped the old fashioned way. It is the mark of a considerate hostess, by means of the Humidor Pack, to "Serve a fresh cigarette." Buy Camels by the carton—this cigarette will remain fresh in your home and office.

More Upon The Same Subject

In a previous page, two weeks ago, we talked of the capacity for work on the part of American wage-earners, that comes from well-fed bodies.

But there is a prettier subject than that to be dealt with here.

And that is the capacity for super work that comes from socially fed bodies.

Sloan of General Motors can send out an order today to speed up automobile production and he will have a quarter of a million men working at thirty per cent greater capacity within twenty-four hours.

And it isn't merely our plentiful supply of bread and meat and potatoes that does it.

It's the side dishes and the tablecloth that turn the trick. The lettuce salad and the canned tomatoes. The steaming apple pie and the hunk of cheese. And the good coffee that washes them down the gullet to the satisfaction of life.

And, none the less, it is the silverware taking the place of wooden handles, and the table linen supplanting the oil cloth that play their part in this stupendous capacity for work of this new wage-earning America.

A recent check-up of five hundred newly-weds in America's wage-earning group showed that four hundred and eighty-five were starting married life with some set of silverware.

"Very interesting," you say, "but what have silverware and tablecloths and canned tomatoes and apple pie to do with the making of more automobiles?"

And the answer, of course, is not to be found in the books on economics but in the books on sociology. Or, in another book which casually mentions that "man shall not live by bread alone".

We are building a group of wage-earners here in America such as the world has never known before. A group running into millions upon millions who are not only physically fit to do more than ordinary work, but are mentally fit to know why.

To supply a wage-earner with a can of rich, finely flavored soup for dinner and a silver spoon to eat it with, may seem like the utmost of economic waste. But so too is the idea of a forty horse power automobile to carry him to work. When you think of taking the power of forty horses to bring one bricklayer from his home to his job, you have pretty nearly reached the height of absurdity if you want to figure the thing out on the old economic basis. But if you want to figure it out on the basis of our new social order, you get the height of efficiency.

There is no bricklayer in the world who can lay bricks as fast or as efficiently as your American bricklayer. There is no steel worker in the world who can run up steel as fast or as efficiently as your American structural steel worker. There are no railroad men—engineers, conductors, firemen, brakemen—who can handle traffic or freight in as great numbers or quantities and with as great speed and efficiency as your American railroad men.

If you don't believe this, try to get the same things done in Europe. Any man who has tried to put up a string of branch factories in England or on the Continent will give you a tale of woe regarding the objections and obstructions and delays he has met with, which would seem hard to believe if the lines of his effort weren't written in his face.

Here in America, any manufacturer who has played fair with his help can speed up his work whenever he wishes. And there seems to be no limit to the amount of that speed.

All he has to do is to go down to his factory foreman and say:

"Jim, I've got to have a hundred more washing machines or vacuum cleaners or automobiles a day for the next sixty days."

And Jim, without batting an eye, will say, "All right. I'll tell the boys."

And there isn't a Shipping Department in America that won't be glad to work nights to see that the stuff gets out.

There's nothing strange about this. The boys in the Shipping Room would all like to have automobiles. The boys in the factory all have automobiles but would like to have new radios. Yes, and silverware and table linen, laid on a table of socially selected foods—satisfiers of eyes and of appetites, not merely fillers of empty maws.

Here at True Story Magazine where we get such a widespread reflection of wage-earning America, we can already see that this new social order has developed into one of the most remarkable incidents in history. Through the thousands upon thousands of letters and manuscripts that pour, in an endless stream, into these offices, we can read the answer as plainly as if it were written on a mountainside. And the answer is that:

The desire is the incentive.

Every time you create the desire amongst wage-earning America for any of the good things of life, you create the incentive to get them.

And with such wonderful incentives always within reach, even work ceases to be a sullen affair and becomes a glorious adventure in search of the good things of life.

No wonder the advertising pages of True Story Magazine have a pulling power so great that it seems unbelievable. No wonder the American Advertisers are finding the greatest advertising return for their dollar between its pages.

THE INDIAN AND THE AMERICAN REVOLT.

The British government in India arrested some 60,000 native subjects last year, nonconformists and noncoöperators carrying out the resistance policy of the nationalist congress. The federal government of the United States arrested 68,000 citizens in the same period for offenses against the Volstead act. The British government was dealing with a serious revolution which stirred India profoundly and had given Great Britain extreme concern. The American government was trying to enforce one police law intended to prevent the use of intoxicating beverages.

In prisoners the score of the United States, in dealing with the personal habits of its citizens, was higher than the score of the British government in dealing with revolution, although the British measures were regarded as excessive. Furthermore, the United States, in a year of enforcing the Volstead act, had more killings than there were in India in a year of revolution.

Ten years of prohibition have made the United States a greater battlefield than India struggling for freedom. It is the judgment of considerate citizens that this cannot go on. The disorders increase rather than subside. In 1927 the federal government commenced 50,000 prosecutions under the Volstead act, in 1928 there were 73,000 begun, 76,000 in 1929, and 80,000 last year.

As the resistance and nonconformity grows the temper of repression gets more savage. Its acts become less responsible and more violent. There is more difficulty in finding reputable persons as agents for enforcement and lawlessness in the name of law increases.

India may come out of its revolution before the United States finds relief from its noble experiment if statesmanship wins in the one and fails in the other.

GIVE THEM TO THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

The hens of Mount Athos must go, and because the members of the monk community on that famous Ægean peninsula have refused to exterminate them in accordance with the ruling of their synod the matter will go to the international court of justice at The Hague. The synod will ask that Greece be required to enforce the old monastic constitution, approved by Emperor Constantine Monomachos in 1045, by which all females, human or animal, must forever be excluded from the Mount Athos.

Hens presumably are female, and, though the synod in its holy innocence evidently has just discovered it, the rule nine centuries old must be enforced. From the old days, when to be female was to be somewhat cursed by God and women were temptations to the devil and little more, the rule survives. The male sanctuary and paradise on the Chalcidice peninsula must be purged of all vestiges of the female principle.

The case clearly is one for the league of nations. For years influential voices have urged a series of mandates for the league of nations. We suggest that the hens of Mount Athos be established as the league's first mandate. A mandate such as this probably would be well within the league's power of enforcement. Arbitrative methods could be employed between the hens and the monks after the league's well known custom.

WAR PROFITS.

The question of universal conscription in wartime is being argued before a commission meeting in Washington under congressional authority. Congress ordered the hearings under pressure from various organizations, chiefly of veterans who remember that, while their members were risking their lives at the front for $30 a month, many of their fellow citizens at home were being paid extravagant wages and profits.

This contrast is striking and the resentment is easy to understand and sympathize with. Col. Leonard Ayres, in his testimony, attempted to show that the veterans' sense of injustice is founded upon myth rather than fact. Corporation profits, he said, were less in 1918 than in 1916, before the United States declared war. Wages continued to rise after the war and were higher when the soldiers resumed civil occupations than in the war years. The figures are interesting, but they are not convincing. The fact remains that men engaged in the rough carpentry of building barracks were sometimes paid as much in a day as a soldier received in a month.

If that were all there were to the controversy, those who argue for universal conscription, or the conscription of wealth, as it is sometimes called, could claim the victory; but the universal conscriptionists have overlooked a most important consideration. Why do wages, prices, and profits rise in wartime?

They rise because governments know that the way to increase production is to increase price. Profit is the standard, certain, inevitable incentive to greater effort on the part of agriculture and industry. Its effectiveness has been proved so often that no one questions it. Perhaps it is possible to produce the same results without the same incentive, but the risk is too great to take when the lives of individuals and the nation are at stake. It is curious that men will brave death in battle with no thought of material reward, but must be induced with cash to increase the output of a biscuit factory. This may seem fantastic, but there is a vast amount of experience to attest its truth. Even the bolsheviks have rediscovered it.

ELEVATED STREETS.

Bills now under consideration in the state legislature are intended to permit the expenditure of gasoline taxes on the extensions of state roads within city limits. Chicago now contributes something like 40 per cent of the state highway fund, but the state does not build a foot of road within the city. The need for adequate highways is greatest in Chicago where traffic is densest.

The phrasing of the measures in question, house bills Nos. 369 and 370, is ambiguous. According to Director Cleaveland of the state department of public works, the bills would permit the state to construct elevated highways through Chicago. Others think not. There should be no doubt upon the point. The only way that Chicago's arterial streets can be made both safe and serviceable is by elevating them to avoid cross traffic. The legislature will have failed of its duty if it does not authorize the use of state funds for this purpose in unmistakable language.

WORDS.

Words are strange things, and in no land have they stranger and more romantic stories than in America. They wear away like pebbles in a swift stream. They gather moss and soil from the earth. Into America scores of peoples have come bearing their words. Aliens have come striding into the language here as into a field of tall grass. In mastering it they have left their marks upon the English tongue. Alien peoples, new times and new environments, and a different tempo of living have brought into existence an American language.

Words have their deaths and transmutations. A great biography of words—and sometimes their obituary—such as the Oxford Dictionary can be the most exciting reading. The words there are small friends with long ancestries and gossip of their own. Some of them came over in the Mayflower. Some of them arrived last week. Some are orphan words with no apparent parentage. Others are as old as the races that use them. The English, father; the Anglo-Saxon, fæder; German, Vater; Latin, pater; Spanish, padre; Greek, pater; Sanscrit, pitar; French, père, and Jupitar obviously are one word, and ho the story goes of the strange, tangled course of language. A type of automobile once called a coupay becomes for most Americans a coop. A closed vehicle to seat one person, borne on two poles by two bearers, becomes for the adaptable Yankee a two seated, inclosed automobile. Somehow the word sedan was carried into English. The best guess indicates Italy as its homeland, and the Latin sedes as its ancestor.

So they come: father or milk or brother with long and stately lineage, jinx or jazz, 'woozy or hobo with no lineage at all. Employé, matinée, café, garage come, raw immigrants from France, and boom, boost, boss come, even rawer Americans. Those who probe into the anatomy of words, men such as Jesperson or Craigie or Mencken in "The American Language," are overwhelming with their verbal cases. The American r, for example, as sounded in corn is far older than the English lack of it. Only when Dr. Johnson protested publicly against the "rough, snarling sound" of r, says Mencken, did the English finally extinguish it. And today many an English purist would like r back again.

And America erodes and wears away even the proper names. Pershing once was Pfoersching. Custer was Küster. Rosecrans was Rosenkrantz. Poe was Pfau. Doolittle was de l'Hotel. Hoover was Huber. Bunker of the Hill fame was Bon Cœur.

And so it goes. Words change and gather different meanings. They wax and wane and shift like stars across the sky. To an Englishman bloody is a wicked, wicked word. A bug to an Englishman is just one kind of bug and that objectionable. An Englishman will talk about his kidneys or his liver, but stomach is indelicate. He smiles slyly and calls it Little Mary or some like euphemism. Words, words: the doughboy carried flour for biscuits on his practice marches and so came by his name. Words are not always real, and for many it is hard to tell what is word and what is real.

The Other Side

A UNION OF LAWMAKERS.

[Akron Beacon Journal.]

We now have the American Legislators' association, an organization launched to forward "a program for practical improvements in state legislation." It will have its headquarters next to the University of Chicago. Twelve advisory boards—composed of outstanding national authorities in each of the principal fields of legislation—have been formed by the association to coöperate with a similar number of standing committees made up of leading state legislators. The 12 legislative subjects on which the association is focusing many of the best minds of the nation in the interest of better and more coördinated laws are: Taxation, crime, health, labor, courts, administrative efficiency, transportation, legislative efficiency, agriculture, education, social welfare, and mental hygiene.

This new organization begins its service with a subsidiary council composed of five representatives and five senators from each state—480 councilors in all. It is "designed to use every means for welding a closer feeling of coöperation between the states, to the end that there may be a general legislative improvement and a reduction in the bulk of the statutes which have already been enacted by each commonwealth."

Lawmaking industry in America has reached an impressive degree when it needs 480 councilors to give effect to its work. The association is essaying an audacious task. All the voters in America have failed to keep their state legislatures in leash. With hardly an exception they have proceeded in the past to do pretty much as they darned pleased, without reference to popular will or interest. If the legislative union can rope and hog tie these outfits and bring them into better subjection to national sentiment and interest the nation will bless its effort. But having tried the job itself with only failure for its effort it should not be blamed for being rather skeptic of what the 480 councilors will be able to do.

QUITE THE BOSS.

"Has Bill got a job?"

"Yes. He's working with thousands of men under him, now."

"Foreman or something?"

"No, keeping the grass mowed in a big cemetery."—Exchange.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

GREETINGS TO THE OTHER 503!

Admitting that in spite of the hard times and general depression we are one of the 504 happy people in the U. S. A. who, according to the last income tax returns, pay taxes on an income of one million dollars or more every year, we hasten to congratulate the other 503.

Fellow members of the Five Hundred and Four club—we certainly ought to hand it to ourselves. Coming down Rush street yesterday morning three men at intervals of only a block or two apart asked us for a dime to get a cup of coffee. However, it is better to earn money than to beg it, and instead of giving them dimes to spend on bootleg whisky, or second hand autos, or installment radio sets, we directed them to residences which still had a little snow left on the sidewalk. We told them to get jobs shoveling off the snow, or to wait for the next snowfall, and earn their money. Then they would appreciate it a great deal more.

Nobody, least of all those birds roosting under the Boul. Mich. bridge this winter, realises what a great strain a million dollars rolling in every year is. A man with 10 or 15 bucks has it pretty soft. A little to the grocer, a little to the butcher, a little to the landlord, some to the wife, and shoes for little Bobby, and it's all gone. No more worrying about what to do with the money.

But a million dollars coming in every year! Now, there's a problem, fellow members of the Five Hundred and Four club, that we have to meet bravely and face calmly. Of course, we can buy a steam yacht. You who have tried to support an automobile know what overhead is. And a steam yacht! Well, friends, you one and all know that after you've owned a steam yacht for awhile you get the idea that you bought an ocean liner of at least seventy thousand tons, and that when you got her there wasn't a bit of furnishings aboard her except a lantern and a box of matches.

But even a steam yacht doesn't dig such an awful hole in a million bucks that come pouring in each and every year. Of course there's castles in England and bacarat at Monte Carlo. They help a lot. But we haven't got it near as soft as a man who can make a dent in his pile by buying a dish of ham and eggs or having a patch put on the seat of his pants.

Fellow members of the Five Hundred and Four club, we've got our own troubles, but who sympathizes with us? Nary a simp.

THE ORIGIN OF EELS.

In ancient Erin, so I've been hearin', in days gone
veerin' into the past,
If in the gloamin' ye went a-roamin' ye'd like come home in a manner fast.
For where ye went ye'd find snakes in plenty, eighteen or twenty before ye'd stir.
Long lank and lean ones! Or stripey green ones!
I think ye've seen ones the kind they were.
Some pretty maiden with shamrock laden would be upbraidin' her chosen boy.
"I'll not go walkin'. There's no use talkin'. These snakes are balkin' all peace and joy."
The lads gave battle with fife and rattle. A big noise, that'll soon drive them out!
They killed a few ones, but twenty new ones would come to view ones they'd put to rout.
Said Good Saint Patrick, takin' a fat stick, "I'll show 'em that trick'll lay 'em low."
Each mornin' daily with his shillelagh he struck out gayly with blow on blow.
He did determine to stop all sermon until these vermin should feel his frown,
He took a notion, with much commotion into the ocean to drive 'em down,
If you go eelin' you'll see 'em wheelin' in loops or stealin' among the reeds.
Just catch and fry one! Sure when ye try one thank Pat, The High One, for his fine deeds!

AND NOW a United States mail truck loaded with Uncle Sam's mail is halted and the driver killed by dry enforcement officers who figured the truck was a rum runner. But the U. But it seems that everything Uncle Sam's got left doesn't count for much compared to the sacred 18th. And he hasn't got so darned much left.

CAPE TOWN, SOUTH AFRICA, brags of discovering the most deadly plant in the world—adenia—of which one ten-thousandth part of a grain is sufficient to kill a person. Silence, Cape Town. Don't let the dry enforcement officials down at Washington hear about adenia; they'll be putting it into commercial alcohol so the scofflaws won't drink it. Or maybe they've been putting it in already. But adenia isn't going to scare the scofflaws. Nothing does. They'll be bragging about their adenia cocktails before long.

DIET FOR THE TEETH.

"IN any case it seems possible to predict that we are within reasonable distance of getting complete control of dental caries by diet alone, both by producing perfect teeth and, even when the teeth are badly formed, by inhibiting the destructive action of bacteria on the teeth." This statement was made by Dr. Edward Mellanby of the University of Sheffield, England, in an address given before the eighty-first annual session of the American Medical association. It was based on comprehensive investigation on adults and on children, running for several years.

The work has been done by Dr. Mellanby and various physicians and dentists associated with him. The diets they use supply plenty of vitamin D. Among the foods and medicines which occupy a prominent place in their diets are meat, eggs, and cod liver oil. In their opinion decay of a tooth is dependent more on the poor quality of the tooth substance than it is on the action of bacteria and decomposing food. A good diet has some power to change a tooth of poor structure into one of better quality.

Dr. Mellanby also spoke of diet for pellagra. He said there are two kinds of this disorder, though the two may be combined in the same patient. One kind is characterized by skin trouble; the other by cord and nerve trouble. The kind that affects the skin is cured and prevented by foods containing yeast, wheat germ, eggs, and milk, and other foods rich in vitamin Pp. The other kind is cured and prevented by canned salmon, good meats, carrots, spinach, and other foods rich in vitamin A. If the two kinds of pellagra are combined in the same person the curative diet should combine the two groups of foods.

Dr. Mellanby offered another suggestion but said he was not able to prove his point. It was that diets rich in vitamin A be fed to people whose resistance to bacterial infection was low. His especial recommendation was that such diets be used with women who had puerperal septicemia, or childbed fever. Possibly it may prove of service in other forms of streptococcus infection. The foods rich in vitamin A are carrots and vegetables containing other pigments, meats, milk, and butter.

LET THE SCAR ALONE.

S. S. writes:

1. Last October I was struck in the mouth by the end of some one's hand or elbow. As a result of the blow my lower lip was cut and began to swell. I sucked the blood out of it and the swelling went down, but it has never healed completely. Again and again it swelled, resembling a blister. I squeeze it out, but the swelling returns. Is the squeezing harmful?

2. The swelling is absolutely white. I have been noticing another somewhat similar beginning to expand. Sometimes I bite at a sore in order to get into the pus. Is this harmful?

3. Does smoking irritate the sore? I smoke either pipe or cigarets.

4. What is the cause of mouth [lip] blisters? Are they signs of other diseases?

REPLY.

1. Why do you squeeze the sore? Let it alone.
2. It is. Quit it.
3. It may. Quit it.
4. I presume you mean fever blisters. If so, the right name is herpes. They may be caused by fever, indigestion, faulty diet.

CAUSE OF ARTHRITIS.

R. H. E. writes:

1. What is the cause of arthritis?
2. Is there any possible cure for a person who has had this trouble in his knee joints for twenty years?
3. I have had varicose veins, but had them cut about 4 years ago. I was relieved for a time, but am bothered as much now as I ever was. Is it possible for me to get relief from this?

REPLY:

1. Arthritis means inflammation of a joint. There are several kinds of arthritis and they are due to several causes.
2. My guess is that this person has a chronic arthritis of the hypertrophic type. I am guessing that he has some grating and stiffness in the joint, but no great deformity. If his trouble has lasted twenty years it is not likely to get much better.
3. If the trouble warrants it, have them cured by the injection method.

D. W. A. writes: What is physiotherapy? I cannot find it in any dictionary.

REPLY.

It is treatment by means of physical agencies such as heat, cold baths, electricity, massage.

Your dictionary must be in need of a little physiotherapy.

A RISKY BUY.

Chicago, March 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Friends took a loan on their furniture and have never paid any interest or paid the loan, as they were down and out. They were put out of their apartment, had their furniture stored, and never paid storage charges. The storage company will hold their furniture for one year and then sell it. If we buy it, can the loan company take the furniture away from us or make us pay the loan? MRS. H. O. D.

If you buy from the owner furniture which is subject to a validly recorded chattel mortgage the mortgage holder would be entitled to collect out of the furniture in your hands.

VALPARAISO, Chile.—The German cruiser Dresden was sunk by its own commander after being attacked by British in Cumberland bay on Juan Fernandes island—neutral waters—while riding at anchor, it was charged by the officers of the Dresden, who were brought here on the British auxiliary cruiser Orama. Other ships were damaged by the fire of the British ships, and a woman and child ashore were killed, according to the Dresden's officers. The Dresden had put into Juan Fernandes because of damaged machinery and was anchored about a quarter mile off shore when attacked by the British cruiser Kent and the Glasgow and Orama.

SALONIKI.—The British light cruiser Amethyst on March 14 made a dash into the straits, disregarding the mines and gun fire from the Turkish forts, and had penetrated nearly to Nagara when it was hit by twenty-two shells. Twenty-eight of the crew were killed and thirty wounded. The Amethyst succeeded in getting back to the squadron without further damage.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Wilson indicated that strong protest would be made by the United States government against the action of Great Britain and its allies in subjecting neutral commerce to the numerous restrictions imposed by the British order in council, just received.

CHICAGO.—The Tremont house, which has a history reaching back to Chicago's village days, was sold to Northwestern university for $500,000. The old hostelry, which, barring fires, has had a continuous existence since 1832, is to be remodeled and is to be used as the home of some of the post-graduate schools of Northwestern. It began as a saloon and boarding house and doubtless will end as the home of graduate departments of the great Methodist institution of learning.

CHICAGO.—The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad has passed practically into the hands of James J. Hill. Arrangements are about completed whereby the Burlington system is to be leased to the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroad companies, the latter guaranteeing 7 per cent dividends on all Burlington stock.

PARIS.—Count Boni de Castellane and M. de Rodays, editor of Figaro, fought a duel in the Parc des Princes at Neuilly. There was only one exchange of shots. M. de Rodays was wounded in the fleshy part of the right side. The Count de Castellane was unharmed. M. de Rodays' wound is not believed to be serious. Count de Dion managed the proceedings and when both had answered his question, "Are you ready?" in the affirmative, he gave the command to fire. Public opinion is distinctly in favor of De Rodays. There are indications that a popular reaction against dueling is setting in not only in Paris but throughout France.

NOTRE DAME, Ind.—W. Bourke Cockran, the New York orator and lawyer, has been chosen this year by the faculty of the University of Notre Dame to receive the Laetare medal. The ceremony of conferring the honor will take place tomorrow, Laetare Sunday, which takes its name from the fact that the introit of the mass for that day begins with the words, "Laetare Jerusalem."

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Fully 50,000 persons passed by the coffin of former President Benjamin Harrison as the body lay in state for nine hours in the rotunda of the capitol building.

LONDON.—Paul Kruger, one of the Boer leaders, has written to President Brand of the Orange Free State that the Boers are not rebels and that they are willing to be a republic under the protectorate of Great Britain.

NEW YORK.—The alleged suicide of Gen. Emory Upton, U. S. A., at the Presidio in San Francisco startled army officers here and many of them are of the opinion that he was the victim of a cowardly assassination. Gen. Hancock, close friend of the dead officer, said that suicide of no officer in the service could amaze him more.

ST. PETERSBURG.—Acting on secret information, a corps of sappers and miners discovered a mine laid in a small street, the mouth of which was in a shopkeeper's residence and the other end of which was in the riding school of the residence of the new emperor. It is evident the nihilists do not consider they have done enough injury by the assassination of Czar Alexander. Six squadrons guard the czar's palace and detachments of infantry and Cossacks almost surrounded the winter palace.

VIENNA.—An order is published here preventing the importation into Austria of swine, pork, bacon, or sausage from the United States.

NEW YORK.—Bishop Potter has appointed a commission to determine whether the Rev. Mr. Cowley, who has spent a year in the New York state penitentiary for cruelty to children of the Shepherd's Fold in New York City, shall have an ecclesiastical trial.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The commission of Frederick Douglass, United States marshal for the District of Columbia, expires tomorrow. It is understood he will be reappointed by President Garfield.

A DISILLUSIONED IOWAN.

New Hampton, Ia., March 14.—It is all very interesting, very archaic to read of those ardent prohibitionists going back to pre-Volstead days to dig up a crime exhibit to compare with the Kirkland debauchery.

Every modificationist who has read history or reached maturity knows that since the days of Adam there have been such crimes. Our case against the prohibitionists is that they and their highly paid propagandists such as Billy Sunday assured us that all such crimes would end. We could close our jails and hell would freeze over.

Some of us temperance advocates were deluded into thinking the prohibitionists might be right, so we stood by and let them have their way. With a prohibition amendment enacted, it became a mockery to talk or promote temperance, so all temperance work was dropped. The combined results are evident to all.

Crime is rampant, accompanied by hypocrisy, graft and bootleg liquor. It is Babylon all over again. Never since the days of Nero have we witnessed such depravity. Let us hope that in the near future our sane, intelligent, upright citizens will come into power, eradicate this prohibition delusion and hypocrisy, and save our nation from the fate of pagan Rome.

ANNA M. HERRMANN.

FAVORITES.

Chicago, March 11.—Yesterday morning traffic on Warren avenue at 8:45 o'clock was slower than usual, owing to the snow. However, everything moved along at a reasonable speed until we reached the viaduct, which is about two blocks west of the police station. Here every one was slowed down to a snail's walk, remaining motionless for many minutes at a time. Reason: An empty patrol wagon parked in front of the police station in one of the traffic aisles, leaving room for only one car to pass that point at a time. (There was room for the patrol wagon in the yard alongside of the police station.) Is it to be wondered at that the average citizen sometimes has a feeling closely akin to hatred for the Chicago police department?

Ride west on Madison street about 6 o'clock in the evening. West and east of Crawford avenue you will find cars parked double, leaving only the street car track clear—yet there is usually a policeman at each corner.

Ride west on Jackson boulevard between 5:30 and 6 p. m. See the cars parked under the signs which say "No parking between 4:30 and 6:30." Result: The buses get out in the middle of the street and stay there. Every one is hurrying to get home, and there is a continual weaving in and out of the east bound lane with the usual accidents, frayed nerves, etc. This situation could be remedied by the police department if they so desired.

Almost every morning a policeman stands at Jackson and Sacramento boulevards. Near him is a sign reading, "No parking from 7:30 to 9:30." Yet within a stone's throw he can count 20 or more cars parked on Jackson boulevard. RALPH HAYWOOD.

AN APPLE REMEMBERED.

Chicago, March 11.—Some twenty years ago while residing in one of the states further west I ran across what was called a golden russet apple. It was always green of color with patches of so called rust on it. It was of delicious flavor and possessed a perfume that was exceedingly pleasurable. I am wondering if any reader can advise me where such apples can be secured in this section of the country, as I have not seen one for years. A. L. E.

CONFISCATION OF WEALTH.

Chicago, March 13.—If our government can draft young men and place them in the trenches at the risk of their lives, surely it would be a small matter to commandeer surplus wealth during an emergency such as exists at the present time. LILLIAN G. ROSS.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF LANDLORDS.

Chicago, March 13.—Tenants, beware! Before signing a lease inquire into the financial responsibility of your landlord. Consider my experience. Four years ago I moved here from a small town downstate. Upon the promise that the premises would be thoroughly renovated I moved into a six family apartment building. Only a minimum of cleaning was done prior to my taking possession. For more than 30 days it was impossible for us to settle. Each night the aged father-in-law of the owner painted and varnished, saying this was necessary because of vacancies, high cost of labor, excessive taxes, etc., and the building didn't pay its cost of upkeep and a fair return.

Next we moved into a three family building. The owner lived on the third floor. He and his wife were janitor, engineer and what-not. Garbage was emptied at infrequent intervals. Halls were cleaned only occasionally. Although we paid $90 a month in advance, the owner said he couldn't afford to provide for better service to the tenants.

Now I'm leaving a two flat. The poor widow who owns it can't afford to do the necessary decorating. For my $100 a month for the last year I've had insufficient heat, practically no janitor service, and unkempt premises because of her indolent son to whom she looks to do this work. Poor returns on her investments, high taxes, et al. make it impossible for her to do the little we want done before renewing the lease. Before I sign up this time I'll ask the landlord for his rating in Dun or Bradstreet. G. H. B.

FOR THOMPSON.

Chicago, March 11.—Judge Lyle would have been a change from the Thompson-Cermak type of politician and it is to be regretted he did not beat Thompson. It is to be hoped Senator Deneen will keep with the Republican candidate, as Mayor Thompson has his good points, and if he had kept as fine as he was his first term he would have been the best liked mayor Chicago ever had. Mayor Thompson's first term was the beginning of prohibition, and wet as he was, it was enforced even if he was made to enforce it. As to the World's Fair, I believe the Europeans would enjoy meeting him. They have heard of him. At least he has a good U. S. A. name. O. R. M.

REWARDED.

Evansville, Ind., March 11.—I am one of the winners in your recent "Stamps of the Nations" contest. I received my check today, but I can't begin to express my appreciation to you for this prize. Although I've entered a good many contests this is the first, absolutely the first time, that I've ever won anything. Needless to say, I'm very proud of my achievement. O. B. ALLEN JR.

THE FOX VALLEY.

Geneva, Ill., March 10.—Your "Save the Fox River" editorial, which appeared on your editorial page March 4, and your story reporting some of our ambitions, activities, and accomplishments, which you published in your Metropolitan Sunday section March 1, created much additional valuable support.

The many comments and clippings which we have received show that your readers in this region also appreciate your interest and assistance in this general welfare work.

HOOVER TO SET SAIL THURSDAY FOR PORTO RICO

Hurley and Wilbur Will Be in "Stag" Party.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 16.—[Special.]—The battleship Arizona, carrying President Hoover and a party of cabinet members on a spring vacation trip to the Caribbean, will sail from Norfolk early Thursday, the White House announced today. As now planned, the vessel's first halt will be at Porto Rico, where the President will be entertained by Gov. Theodore Roosevelt and taken for a tour of the island. Later the President will spend a day in the Virgin Island, probably devoting a few hours where there is deep sea fishing for barricuda and kingfish.

GOV. THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

The presidential party, including Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of the Interior Lyman D. Wilbur, White House aids and a number of newspaper men and photographers, will leave the capital late Wednesday, traveling by train over night to Old Point Comfort, near Norfolk. The party will be strictly "stag," as not even Mrs. Hoover will accompany the President.

Rush to Brighten Up Ship.

Rush orders to have everything ready for the President by Thursday were sent tonight to Capt. Charles Seymour Freeman, commanding the recently modernized Arizona.

To have a full complement of ninety officers and 1,244 men aboard during the test run, additional personnel have been ordered to Norfolk from New York and other navy yards. Arrangements also have been made to have two destroyers, fully manned, ready to accompany the Arizona as an escort to doubly secure the safety of the battleship's distinguished guests.

The Arizona is fitted as a division flagship and the quarters designed for the division commander will be utilized by the President. Other members of the party will have to take such quarters as are assigned to them, with indications some of the battleship's guests may have to sleep in hammocks. According to naval officers, the Arizona will be fully manned, even to the gunners in the turrets and the crews for the two observation planes that now are a part of her regular equipment.

Takes Along Officials.

While the cruise principally is for recreation, the President has taken with him officials from all departments interested in insular government. Capt. William R. Furlong, who handles navy island matters, will be in the party. Capt. Charles Russell Train, navy aid; Capt. Joel T. Boone, White House physician; Lawrence Richey, White House secretary; Col. Campbell Hodges, military aid, and Richard A. Jarvis, chief of the White House secret service, will complete the party. Secret service men will fly direct to Porto Rico to arrive there ahead of the President.

PRESIDENT APPOINTS BOSTON NEWSPAPER MAN TO AKERSON POST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 16.—[Special.]—Theodore G. Joslin, Washington correspondent of the Boston Transcript and a close personal friend of President Hoover, was appointed today to fill the vacancy in the White House secretarial staff created by the resignation of George Akerson several weeks ago. Mr. Joslin's task will be that of arranging the President's calling list, handling visitors at the executive offices, and maintaining contact between Mr. Hoover and the newspaper men.

White House officials said late today that some re-allotment of secretarial duties will be made before Mr. Joslin actually takes office, some time in April.

Mr. Joslin has had considerable experience as a reporter on political subjects and enjoys a wide acquaintance among public men. He was born in Leominster, Mass., 41 years ago. He attended public schools and graduated from the Leominster High school in 1908.

Mr. Joslin married Rowena Hawes of Reading, Mass., in 1918. They have two children, Richard H. and Robert E. Joslin.

MOSLEMS PICK JERUSALEM FOR ISLAM CAPITAL

Will Direct World Drive from New University.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 16.—A distinct movement is afoot to make Jerusalem—instead of Mecca—the center of Islam and to direct from there an active propaganda campaign to revive Mohammedan power. The newly founded Moslem university will be the chief implement of the propagandists, it is understood.

The new move was started with a sensational splash by Moulana Saukat Ali, the younger brother of Mohammed Ali, trenchant leader of the Moslems in their quarrels with the Hindus at the round table conference on India here. He delivered a speech in the mosque at Haifa upon his departure from Palestine recently marshaling the faithful, ridiculing their subservience to western and "infidel" customs, and demanding unity in the creation of a Pan-Islamic power.

Launches Drive at Funeral.

Saukat Ali had gone to Jerusalem for the burial of his brother, who died during the conference, in the mosque of Omar, a tribute that is paid but a few chosen followers of the prophet.

He chose the occasion to launch his firebrand campaign. Five years ago his dead brother sowed the seed of Pan-Islamic unity as a political power. During his tour of Palestine, Egypt, Arabia, Iraq, and Persia, Mohammed Ali spread the doctrine of Islam's revival as a world power.

Saukat Ali explained how the all-India nationalist congress had succeeded in creating a mass movement in India. Education, along national lines, suited to develop and train the youth of the country for active propaganda, was the keynote of the Indian congress movement. It was education, Saukat Ali urged, which would stir up the Arab and Moslem population throughout the world.

Raise $500,000 at Funeral.

Thus definite guidance was given Moslem leaders in Palestine. Saukat Ali appealed to them to become the leaders of the Neo-Pan-Islamic movement of cultural development. He roused their sense of patriotism. It fitted in with his purpose that leading representatives of Turkey, Persia, Arabia, Mesopotamia, Egypt—all the Moslem countries—had come to Palestine to do honor to his brother.

The following donations were given on the spot by the various national representatives: Turkey, $75,000; Persia, $50,000; Iraq, $35,000; Arabia, $85,000; Palestine, $150,000; Egypt, $95,000, and India, $100,000; a grand total of $590,000. Sheik Abdul Aziz Althaible, a noted leader of Tunis and Algeria, made a personal donation of $5,000 and promised to send student volunteers for propaganda work.

IMAGINE A CITY OF 3 MILLIONS WITH TEN CAFES!

Then You Have a Picture of Moscow.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MOSCOW, Feb. 18.—[By Mail.]—Imagine a city of more than 3,000,000 inhabitants where one can practically count all the public restaurants on his ten fingers. This is somewhat exaggerated, but it illustrates how communism, food rations, and high prices work out.

Nearly all of the state industries and businesses operate their private coöperative eating halls for employés. Not only mills, factories, railways, street car lines, and such large institutions, but smaller organizations, as well, and even office staffs of various departments of the government have their own lunchrooms.

Apart from the workers, who eat at their places of business, the overwhelming majority of the rest of the people eat at home, prepare their food on one burner kerosene stoves, and consume the result on the edge of the bed. So there are mightily few left to patronize the remaining "stolovayers" still in existence.

Two Good Restaurants.

For foreigners and the white collar workers there are only two restaurants in the capital, and they are in the Savoy and Grand hotels. Last autumn, when the food shortage became so acute, there was such an invasion of outsiders in these restaurants that no tables nor food were available for the guests of the house.

So a portion of each dining hall was roped off for the guests of the establishment and the rest was opened to the public with a guard at the door to let in only as many as there were tables to accommodate. Frequently there are lines of people waiting outside the public entrance of the Savoy to get a table.

Prices are stiff, considering the lack of choice and the sameness in taste. All the meats look and taste like breaded veal cutlets or wiener schnitzels. They bread and fry lamb, mutton, beef, and pork, when there is pork. And it is cooked in "Russian butter," which is ordinary butter gone rancid and unfit for table use. The use of lard is unknown.

Dinner Menu at Hotel.

Here is today's menu at the Savoy hotel:

	*Price, rubles.		*Price, rubles.
Clear soup with rice	1.25	Filet bitky [Hamburger steak]	1.60
Fish soup	1.75	Fruit jelly	.75
Consomme	1.00	Tartlet	.75
Salmon steak	2.00	Chicken cutlet	4.00
Roast turkey	2.50	Fried goose	2.00
Ox tongue	1.75	Roast beef	2.75
Mutton chop	2.20	Tea	1.50
Poached eggs	1.60	Coffee	1.50

*In Russia a ruble is worth about 50 cents.

With most orders, German fried potatoes, swimming merrily about in grease, are served, and with other orders, cabbage, either white or red, salted. Occasionally there is cauliflower, which costs 6 rubles. Canned peas are 4 rubles. There are plenty of onions and most meats are fried with them.

Price of Drinks High.

Drinks cost real money. In these two hotel restaurants a big schooner of beer—and Russian beer is nothing to write to Germany about—costs two rubles, or $1. A small carafe of vodka, containing about three of the thimble size glasses they serve it in, costs three rubles and 90 kopeks. White wine is twelve rubles a bottle and red wine is a little cheaper.

The only liqueur on the market is Dutch curacoa in the regulation little stone bottles, and that is ridiculously cheap for some unknown reason. One can get a bottle, nearly a liter, for 9 rubles. Russian cognac is 20 rubles a bottle in a store and four rubles "a shot" in a restaurant, served in tiny ponies, even smaller than vodka glasses.

Eating Found a Racket.

The eating game is not the great racket here that it is outside. Many men, and women, too, for that matter, only work in order to get a crack at the company restaurant and be sure of one hot meal per day without the bother of preparing it themselves.

"What do you do?" I asked a woman who is employed in the office of a brick making concern.

"I don't know, I get down every morning at 10 o'clock and work until 3 o'clock and then have dinner in the company restaurant," she replied. "Sometimes I file away papers, other times I read."

Charged with Grain Pool Fraud; Held to Grand Jury

Elwood M. Grim, 34 years old, 7361 Greenview avenue, charged with operating a confidence game, was held to the grand jury by Magistrate Harry H. Porter of Evanston yesterday. His bonds were fixed at $10,000. It is alleged that Grim falsely represented himself as a salesman for James E. Bennett & Co., brokers, and swindled four victims of more than $2,800 with a fraudulent pool in wheat trading. Irving L. Brown, 1460 Sherman avenue, Evanston; Dr. Michael L. Melyn, 9200 Cottage Grove avenue; Fred Maurr, 10314 Rhodes avenue, and Dr. Elsear La Mothe, 31 North State street, were the alleged victims.

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE

POLAND TO FACE TRIAL AT GENEVA OVER MINORITIES

See Germany and Russia as "Prosecutors."

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, March 16.—The minority question will again come before the league of nations at the May session. Poland will appear as the defendant. The Ukrainians are the chief accusers. Germany and Russia, it is openly charged here, will be the prosecuting attorneys and the instigators of the charges against Poland.

Down in the southeast corner of Poland some 4,000,000 Ukrainians live. They insist that Lwow is a Ukrainain city and demand that the Polish government establish a Ukrainian university there. The Poles are unwilling to increase the Ukrainian control in this part of the country and want to establish the university at Stanislawow, a more purely Ukrainian city. The Ukrainians protest against this.

Refuse Land to Ukrainians.

Another cause of the Ukrainian-Polish conflict is the attitude of the estate owners in this portion of Poland, who are largely Poles. Under the pressure of high taxes and the low selling price of agricultural products, the Polish landlords throughout the country have been obliged to sell large portions of their estates. This development has been proceeding quietly in most parts of the country, but in Polish Ukraine the nobility and landlords preferred to sell to Polish peasants rather than to Ukrainians. The Pilsudski government admits this is a mistaken policy and is seeking to remedy it. Land hunger is one of the chief causes of this conflict.

The relations between the Ukrainian peasants and the Polish landlords were unpleasant during Austrian times. The Austrian régime promoted these differences, but the attitude of the Polish landowners after Poland achieved independence did not improve the situation. The former incompetent and inefficient governments which preceded the Pilsudski dictatorship were influenced by the landowners and the situation became worse.

Organize Military Organization.

The Ukrainians organized a military organization, with a terrorist branch, which began to throw bombs in Lwow and to burn Polish estates and the farms and barns of Polish peasants. Poles charge the Ukrainians were led and financed by Russians and Germans.

The Polish government was faced with three alternatives. It could arrest and execute the terrorists, but this measure savored too much of the methods of the bolshevik cheka. It could declare martial law and officially admit that the situation had got beyond the control of the civil authorities. Or it could adopt the former Russian method of dispatching a punitive expedition and beat the inhabitants into submission.

Punishing expeditions were sent out. This, the Pilsudski government admits, was another mistake, for the expeditions, it is charged, did not distinguish between the guilty and innocent. The peasant terrorists who crept through the fields at night to set the homes and barns of their Polish neighbors afire were treated roughly. They were arrested and whipped.

The Pilsudski government has announced its intention of granting a form of national automony to the Ukrainians, but declares it does not wish to deal with the "present soviet-German inspired organization."

J. B. ASWELL, HOUSE VETERAN, DEMOCRAT, IS DEAD IN CAPITAL

Washington, D. C., March 16.—[Special.]—Death continued to play politics today as the passing of Representative James B. Aswell [Dem., La.], ranking minority member of the house agricultural committee, changed the makeup of the house to 217 Republicans, 215 Democrats, and one Farmer-Labor member.

Representative Aswell died in his apartment here this morning of a heart attack. He had planned to leave tonight for his home in Natchitoches, La. He was 62 years old and had served in the house for nine consecutive terms. His widow, Ella Foster Aswell, is seriously ill.

His is the fourth death among house members of the next congress. Representatives John F. Quayle and David J. O'Connell, both Democrats of New York, died last winter. Their successors, Matthew V. O'Maley and Stephen A. Rudd, are both Democrats. Representative Henry Allen Cooper [Rep., Wis.] died last March 1. His successor has not been chosen.

He Tries Out Fire Dept.; Now He'll Test the Jail

Detroit, Mich., March 16.—(AP)—Fire alarm bells jangled in downtown stations. The firemen leaped to their apparatus and dashed away.

Arriving at Brooklyn avenue and Abbot street, whence the alarm came, they found John Canute, 60, his eyes glued to the second hand of his watch.

"Boys, boys," he said, "you've done much better time than that."

John Canute will serve a 60 day sentence in the house of correction.

Kills Self with Shotgun as He Lies in His Bed

Lying in bed, Joseph W. Schuster, 52 years old, of 1636 Byron street, placed the muzzle of a shotgun against his chest early this morning and fired. He was killed instantly. Police were told he had brooded over unemployment as a stone cutter.

INTER-AMERICAN HIGHWAY PARLEY OPENS IN PANAMA

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

PANAMA, March 16.—President Alfaro welcomed at the presidential palace today the delegates to the second conference of the inter-American highway commission, which opened here today to continue its work in connection with the projected highway from this city to Laredo, Tex., and be the Central American link in the proposed pan-American highway, eventually joining New York and Buenos Aires.

Señor Alfaro expressed faith in the early completion of the highway and confidence that it will contribute much to better feeling and understanding in the countries through which it will pass. He pointed out the part that highways in the United States have played in wiping out sectionalism. He said the highway will strengthen the bonds of continental solidarity which ought to exist between the countries of the new world.

T. H. McDonald, chief of the United States delegation, in responding to the president said the road would open a new outlet for American tourists, and it is expected that many, instead of touring Canada, would turn southward for a more complete change of scene.

Of the several sections of this 3,500 mile highway the farthest advanced is that in Mexico, which is not sending a delegate, since it has but sixty miles to complete. The Panama National highway already extends close to the Costa Rican border.

JOHNSON CALLS PARTY IGNORING RADICALS LOSER

Ayres Scorns Dry Law for Democrats.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 16.—[Special.]—Taking advantage of this open season on political trends, Senator Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.], and Representative William A. Ayres [Dem., Kas.], joined the forecasters today and let fly a pair of warnings—Senator Johnson's being a summons to the Republican party to take notice of the "progressives," and Representative Ayres' demanding that the wet Democratic leadership "lay off or be laid off."

Dubbing himself a "philosophic onlooker who long ago marked his own course, and prefers to follow it," Senator Johnson applauded the recent "progressive conference," and asked whether anyone could imagine the standpat wing of either majority party "meeting together with earnest and able experts and publicly discussing economic problems?"

Johnson Points to Nonmembers.

He recalled names and figures, as of last November, which the Republican party would be willing to forget.

"The Republicans in command of the party machinery may jibe and jeer," said he, "but let them take stock of the Republican party. Less than six months have passed since New York was lost to Republicans by three-quarters of a million votes and Illinois by a like number; since Massachusetts and Ohio, the cradle of Republican presidents, repudiated Republicanism; since Kansas, the rock ribbed Gibraltar of the Republican party, defeated even the acknowledged spokesman of the President.

"If politics only are to be considered, let my Republican brethern reflect that something is radically wrong somewhere. Somebody should ascertain what it is."

Prohibition Issue a Sham.

Representative Ayres explained that he was "among those Democrats who deplore the effort that is being made to lead our party astray upon the issue of prohibition."

"As an issue to be passed upon by the national convention of the party," he said, "or to be inserted in the platform upon which our candidate shall run, it is false and a sham."

He did not care for Chairman Raskob's recent attempt to bring prohibition to the fore, nor Mr. Raskob's proposed amendment turning the problem over to the states. In fact, said he:

"The situation will be tragic indeed, if the great party of Jefferson and Jackson permits its leaders to make prohibition, or the wet and dry question, an issue in the next national campaign, when the economic problems are so serious as to affect the well-being of every individual. This is the time when the Democratic party must establish a new economic system as its dominant issue."

GERMAN REDS CRY "REVENGE"; RAID FASCISTS, SLAY 1

Murder of Communist Stirs Up Storm.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 16.—Guerrilla warfare between the Fascisti and Reds flamed anew in Germany today following the murder of Ernst Henning, a communist member of the city council of Hamburg, by three Fascisti, who gave themselves up to the Hamburg police today. A band of communists, clamoring for revenge, tonight stormed the Fascist headquarters at Altona, killing one Fascisti and wounding another, probably fatally.

The Fascist party today officially condemned the murder of Henning and induced the three killers to give themselves up. Adolf Hitler, supreme chief and idol of over 6,000,000 Fascists in Germany, in a proclamation described the killers as "victims of a systematic campaign of blood and murder organized by the Communist Anti-Fascisti league, which the authorities have never taken the trouble to suppress." Asserting that an untold number of Fascisti have been killed by the Reds, Hitler expressed hope that this drama "will draw the attention of Germany to the suffering of tens of thousands of German Fascisti, who are at the mercy of their enemies, defenseless because of their political creed."

Hitler to Pay for Defense.

Hitler asked a prominent lawyer to defend the three killers. Hitler said he would foot the bill out of his own pocket.

Dr. Paul Goebbels, reichstag leader, today appealed to the police for protection. He said he feared attempts on his life and reported that a bomb had been sent to his home. When the police came to get it, they found it was only a boy's torpedo made of black powder. The police charge that Dr. Goebbels tried to fool them and are preparing to sue him for gross misconduct.

Communist and Fascist papers have been prohibited in Hamburg. It was feared they might whip the rage of the population to a dangerous pitch.

In the reichstag today the Socialists demanded new and more severe punishments for political murders, while the communists demanded that their Red Front fighters be allowed to return to the streets to take part in the fight against the Fascisti.

Two Fascist Chiefs Stabbed.

BRUNSWICK, Germany, March 16.—(AP)—Two local Nazi [national Socialist] leaders, who had gone to rent an assembly hall for a meeting, received stab wounds tonight in an encounter with Republican reichsbannermen. Two bystanders also were hurt.

Reds Sentenced.

KASSEL, Germany, March 16.—(AP)—Eleven communists who raided a meeting of Fascists in a café at Grebenstein last January were sentenced to from 4 to 28 weeks in jail today for breach of the peace. Eighty-seven others were acquitted. It was testified that 200 beer steins and 72 chairs were demolished in the riot.

INDIA'S PRINCES WARNED TO END TYRANNIC RULE

Viceroy Urges Rulers to Halt "Slavery."

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BOMBAY, India, March 16.—The last of the oriental potentates left in this democratic modern world were today given tactful but firm hints that the medieval autocracies they maintain must give way to more liberal forms of government and more in tune with the age.

These hints were delivered by Viceroy Lord Irwin to seventy ruling princes during an address at their annual session, which opened at New Delhi today. Presumably he merely uttered the sentiments of the British government, which for the last 100 years has fostered the world's greatest anachronism—petty states ruled by tyrants who held the authority of life and death over their subjects, existing alongside the British India provinces with all of their pretenses toward western democracy after the English model.

Viceroy Surprises Princes.

"There should be some effective means of ascertaining the needs and desires of your subjects and keeping close touch between the government and the governed," Lord Irwin told the surprised maharajahs, many of whose subjects are little better than slaves. "The reign of law must be based either expressly or tacitly on the good will of the community. Individual liberty and rights must be protected."

The viceroy continued, suggesting that public law, which in many states is the scandal of all India because it is merely based on the maharajahs' will, must be made "secure from arbitrary interference."

Referring to funds received from taxation, a great slice of which goes to the princes for buying luxurious motor cars and maintaining beautiful women, Lord Irwin said:

"Taxation should be as light as circumstances permit and proportionate to the means of the taxpayer. The personal expenditures of the rulers should be kept down, so that as large a proportion of state revenues as possible be available for the development of social welfare, education, agriculture, and housing."

Can Keep Their Crowns.

The viceroy revealed that the British do not intend to cede the princes' crowns to any responsible government of India.

"Your personal and dynastic relations are likely to continue through the viceroy with the crown of England, and your guarantees will remain under the same conditions as heretofore," he pledged.

Lord Irwin concluded by congratulating the princes on their acceptance of the principle of a federated India. The All-Indian Moslem league, also meeting at New Delhi, today reaffirmed the demand of Aga Khan that Indian Moslems be granted 33 1-3 per cent representation in the central government.

Reds Jeer Gandhi in Riot.

BOMBAY, March 16.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi, before whom millions of Indians prostrate themselves, was hooted, jeered and hissed by communists tonight when he tried to make a speech here.

"Down with him, down with the congress and British imperialism," the communists shouted as the gentle little man climbed a platform in the center of a tremendous crowd. He seemed in a daze as the communists rushed the platform, ripping a congress party flag from its staff. This had never happened to him before in a lifetime of peaceful fighting for Indian independence.

A communist clambered on the platform and harangued the crowd, abusing Gandhi for "betraying the workers" by failure to provide for the release from prison of labor agitators under his truce with the viceroy.

There was utmost confusion as Gandhi's men hauled the speaker down, tore from his hands the red flag which he would have placed at the staff, and restored their own banner. The disturbers were removed and Gandhi began to speak.

He did his best to get the viceroy to turn the labor leaders loose, he said, and he would keep on working to that end if it seemed in the interest of the independence movement. Then, turning to other phases of the political situation, he reiterated that the congress party meeting at Karachi would reassert the resolution passed last year at Lahore declaring for unequivocal independence. The party delegates at the next round table conference, he added, will make the same demand.

14,335 Prisoners Released.

LONDON, March 16.—(AP)—Capt. Wedgwood Benn, secretary for India, told the house of commons today that as a result of the Irwin-Gandhi agreement 14,335 political prisoners, 13,927 men and 408 women, had been released in India up to last Friday, March 13.

Report Minor Operation on Philip Snowden 'Successful'

TILFORD, England, March 16.—(AP)—A minor operation performed today on Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, ill with cystitis after an attack of influenza, was reported "very successful." The attending physicians and surgeons announced "an operation for drainage of the bladder was performed on Mr. Snowden this afternoon by Sir John Thomson-Walker."

* * * A vital influence IN THE LIVES OF OVER 2,600,000 MODERN WOMEN

"My Mother doesn't realize..."

"I AM sixteen, and still sharing a room with my ten-year-old sister. I have been begging my mother to let me have a room of my own—but she just doesn't realize I am not a baby any longer. She says I am being priggish.

"I showed your article about a girl's own room to my father, and he understood. So now I am having a room of my own. I can't thank you enough.

"Every month I am the first one to open the Ladies' Home Journal. I read the Sub-Deb page first of all. But there are lots of other things in it I like, too."

Being sixteen years old is a matter of delicate adjustments—more so today, it seems to us, than it was twenty years ago. Mothers of half-grown-up youngsters will find wonderfully helpful and illuminating suggestions in Mary Roberts Rinehart's remarkable article, "Your Child and the Movies," in the April Journal.

"It's like another honeymoon!"

"MY husband and I were getting on each other's nerves. The pretty little home we had fitted up five years ago was down-at-the-heel—and so depressing!

"Then came your marvelous suggestions for spending our $500 to make it new and just up-to-the-minute! It's been lots of fun—almost like another honeymoon—and far more charming than we could ever have dreamed of. You thought of just the right little touches to harmonize our living room, and pull it all together, as decorators say.

"If other women are as grateful as I am, your mail bag must be crammed to bursting with 'thank-you' letters."

It isn't the size of the income—but the taste and judgment with which it is spent that count. The Journal counsels the $2500-a-year household as enthusiastically as the $10,000 establishment.

"I was a Nit-wit at housekeeping"

"I gave up a job to get married, and I must say I found housekeeping in a little apartment all by myself pretty drab, compared with the excitement of an office.

"Now I look back on it, I think my husband was a sport to put up with the half-hearted sort of cooking I did.

"Then I bucked up and decided to put at least as much pep into housekeeping as I had into my job. The Journal was my best aid. You make it seem a worthwhile and full-size job to run a house—and a husband—successfully."

The spirit of fair play which animates this young wife seems to us to forecast a successful marriage. The Journal is proud to have been of service. And on the subject of marriage—Brenda Ueland has written an article for the April Journal, so full of truth and wit and dazzling good sense, we believe it will provoke discussion between men and women at countless dinner tables.

More than a magazine—a dynamic force!

actively influencing the lives of 2,600,000 modern women . . .

creating, with every issue, new tastes, habits, ideas in myriads of homes . . .

the Ladies' Home Journal is trusted for leadership in all that is new, challenging, complex in modern life. The letters on this page are typical and significant.

REBEL GENERALS SEIZE PROVINCE IN SOUTH CHINA

Oust Governor and Defy Rule by Nanking.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PEIPING, March 16.—Political and financial conditions in China are becoming worse with the danger of further hostilities affecting both the north and south sides of the Yangtze river district, according to official reports and dispatches received here today.

Yong Yun has resigned as governor of Yunnan province in south China, while four of the leading generals there are trying to arrange among themselves the organization of a new government. These generals have refused to reduce their armies as ordered by Nanking. Other reports state the governor, who had held this post since 1929, was overthrown.

The situation between the Kwangtun and Kwangsi provinces is also critical, while communism apparently gains in other regions.

Refuse Money for Troops.

Conditions in the Shansi province are becoming acute and may get out of hand since the bankers of Peiping and Tientsin have refused a demand for $2,000,000 with which to demobilize the defeated northern troops.

A conference has been called in Mukden in an effort to raise funds to disbandon rebel armies in Shensi and Shansi provinces as well as portions of Chili and Honan provinces. Several hundred thousand opponents of Nanking are still undemobilized in that area.

The total number of undemobilized troops reaches nearly 1,000,000, among whom the communist agitators are reported to be making headway. Anti-foreign feeling is steadily increasing, all adding to Nanking's troubles. Apprehension is also felt for inter-provincial hostilities with the approach of warmer weather.

Reds Stir Up Miners.

Communist organizers are active in the coal mining region of Tangshan and east of Tientsin.

The failure to obtain either a silver or gold loan throws gloom over the Nationalist government, while commerce is showing greater decreases since new customs duties and other taxes fail to meet expenses. Dissatisfaction among members of the government is increasing as a result.

DROPS DEAD IN EVANSTON.

John Schobner, 35 years old, fell dead yesterday in the Evanston Cake shop at 1729 Sherman avenue, Evanston, where he was employed as a baker.

NATHAN APPEARS TO AID O'NEILL IN PLAGIARISM CASE

Says Play's Idea Is Not Unique.

New York, March 16.—[Special.]—Eugene O'Neill, "the best of the lot of American playwrights," is "a very stubbern fellow, very vain, who seldom takes suggestions about his plays," George Jean Nathan, author and dramatic critic, testified today, opposing a charge that the dramatist plagiarized Miss Georges Lewys' "Temple of Passas Athena" in his nine act play, "Strange Interlude."

GEORGE JEAN NATHAN.

Mr. Nathan was a witness for the defense in Miss Lewys' suit for $2,000,000, on trial in federal court before Judge Woolsey, and he swore that in 1923, four years before the suit was brought, O'Neill had planned to write the play.

They were walking up 6th avenue, he said, when the dramatist admitted his ambition. As O'Neill planned it then, "Strange Interlude" was to be "a play dealing in great detail with the life of a woman from her youth until the age of forty-five," and her endeavor to recapture lost ideals "through the introduction of a lover."

Says Plot Is Not Uncommon.

"Most of O'Neill's plays are pretty much the same," said Mr. Nathan, and he added that the idea of selective fatherhood, the central theme of Miss Lewys' book, appears in several plays.

This testimony, on cross-examination by former Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan, Miss Lewys' lawyer, was punctuated by a series of debates between the critic and the counsel.

"How long have you been connected with Mr. O'Neill?" Mr. Cohalan asked.

"Do you mean financially connected?" said Mr. Nathan.

"Is that your only meaning?"

"In sound English, yes."

"You set yourself up as a judge of sound English, do you?"

"I do," said Mr. Nathan.

Over the witness' standing as a critic there arose another passage when Mr. Nathan testified that all the "first rate" students of the drama rated O'Neill the country's greatest playwright.

"O, are there any other first rate critics?" Cohalan asked. "I thought there was only one."

Twenty First Class Critics.

But Mr. Nathan held that there are twenty—they went unnamed—and that they agreed about the dramatist, O'Neill.

The critic and the playwright met first in 1919, Mr. Nathan testified, and several times, with Henry L. Mencken, co-editor of Smart Set, discussed the writing of "Strange Interlude."

Several of the O'Neill plays Mr. Nathan considers "very bad, indeed."

BATTLE TO FREE U. S. BEAUTY IN HUSBAND KILLING

NICE, France, March 16.—(AP)—Efforts to have Mrs. Charlotte Nash Nixon-Nirdlinger freed on bail while officials decided whether charges shall be brought against her for the killing of her husband, Philadelphia theater owner, were accelerated today.

It was reported that Attorney Pascalis, dean of the Nice bar, had added his plea to those of the two attorneys engaged to defend the 26 year old American beauty, who has said she acted to protect her own life when she shot and killed Fred G. Nixon-Nirdlinger late last Wednesday night after a quarrel in their Riviera apartment.

If bail is refused by Magistrate Vachier it will mean the young wife, who was selected as "Miss St. Louis" in 1923, will have to spend in a squatted, sun baked prison on the outskirts of Nice the five hottest months of the year. The task of obtaining bail was difficult because there was no witness to the quarrel who could support the wife's plea of self-defense.

ARGUE CHICAGO RADIO STATION CASES APRIL 14

Commission Sets Date for Oral Pleadings.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 16.—[Special.]—The high power controversy in broadcasting, in which four of Chicago's leading stations are embroiled, will be reopened before the federal radio commission next month under action taken today by that agency.

The commission designated April 14 as the date on which it will hear oral arguments on the sweeping report of its chief examiner, Ellis A. Yost, in which he selected W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S station, along with seven other leading broadcasters in other parts of the country, as the best qualified for the eight remaining superpower assignments of 50,000 watts—the top power permitted.

In all, two dozen stations are involved in the case, which has dragged along since last fall. Those which were not selected in Chief Examiner Yost's supplemental report, filed last month, hav protested and have demanded a formal hearing before the commission itself. The commission today designated the April date for the hearing, at which the eight stations will defend the recommendations of the chief examiner that they be accorded these preferred positions.

How It Is Now Divided.

Besides W-G-N, which now is licensed for 25,000 watts, the Chicago stations involved are WMAQ, operated by the Chicago Daily News, now licensed for 5,000 watts; WBBM, operated by the Columbia Broadcasting system, now licensed for 25,000 watts, and WCFL, operated by the Chicago Federation of Labor, which operates limited time with 1,500 watts.

In addition to the Chicago stations, stations WHO-WOC, Des Moines, WCCO at Minneapolis, and WTMJ, Milwaukee, were applicants for the maximum power and competed with the Chicago stations for the two remaining high power assignments in the fourth radio zone, in which all are located. Mr. Yost selected WCCO, along with W-G-N, for the two preferred assignments.

Station WCFL, which sought to dislodge W-G-N from its choice cleared channel at the same time, was disqualified by Mr. Yost in his first report, submitted in December, because it was not, in his opinion, eligible for the high power or the exclusive channel and was not properly a party to the high power hearing. Station WTMJ, a regional station, was excluded from consideration for the same reason.

Oral Argument by Zones.

The commission announced today that the oral arguments on the Yost recommendations would be heard by zones, beginning with the first zone and taking up the remaining zones in numerical order.

The commission also announced its intention of reducing the allowable frequency deviation of all broadcasting stations from the present maximum of 500 cycles to fifty cycles on either side of its channel, as a means of curtailing heterodyne interference for the listener. It set April 20 as a date for a hearing

CARDINAL MAFFI, TWICE SPOKEN OF FOR POPE, DIES

PISA, Italy, March 16.—(AP)—Cardinal Pietro Maffi, twice a papal possibility, died here tonight. He was 72 years old. The last sacraments of the church were administered Feb. 24 when he insisted on arising from his bed and kneeling at an altar to receive the host. The pope sent his second benediction early this morning.

Pietro Maffi, archbishop of Pisa, a close friend of the royal family and was a man of science and of letters, one of the outstanding figures in the Catholic hierarchy. With Cardinal Gasparri, former papal secretary of state, he shared the honor of wearing the "Collar of the Annunziata," the highest gift of the crown. This honor was conferred on him shortly after he had married Prince Humbert of Piedmont, heir to the throne, and Princess Marie Jose of Belgium last year. He was widely known as an astronomer and a teacher of philosophy in his earlier years.

He was a man of independence, for in 1911, when the king was regarded as under a technical ban of excommunication, he blessed the monarch and Italian troops embarking for a campaign in Libya. Later, when the king was at his nearby hunting lodge, he invited the royal party to visit his cathedral. Less than ten years ago the archbishop shocked the traditionalists again by offering the city of Pisa a monument to Galileo, who, like many another early day scientist, had had his disputes with the church.

MRS. ALICE BLAIR WILL GIVES TWO MILLION TO SON

Mrs. Ellen Y. Blair, a daughter-in-law, was given $20,000, and Mrs. Anna Webster of Santa Fe, N. M., an intimate friend, was left $10,000 and Mrs. Blair's sapphire ring and sapphire and diamond pin and bracelet.

Detroit, Mich., March 16.—(AP)—Harry K. Long, 75 years old, contemporary of P. T. Barnum in the circus world, who thrilled circus fans with his spectacular leaps over the backs of 20 elephants, was buried here today. He died Friday. SCHROEDER IS SENT TO PRISON AS TORCH KILLER

Indianapolis, Ind., March 16.—(AP)—Harold Herbert Schroeder tomorrow will take a 175 mile automobile ride to the state prison at Michigan City, where he will serve "not less than two years and not more than 21 years" on conviction of voluntary manslaughter in the death of an unknown hitch hiker near here last spring.

Schroeder, who was found guilty by a jury in Criminal court last week, was sentenced today by Judge Frank P. Baker. When asked by the court if he had anything to say before sentence was pronounced, the 35 year old Mobile garageman replied, "No. Nothing at this time."

The prisoner was shown a picture of Harold Webb, 24, whose mother, Mrs. Louise Crooks, living near here, had told Judge Baker as the case was going to the jury that she believed her son had perished in Schroeder's burned automobile.

"Does that look anything like the man?" asked Ira M. Holmes, defense attorney.

GET AFTER THAT COLD!

Don't snuffle along with a cold. At the first sneeze use Mistol freely with the special dropper that is in every bottle. You'll be surprised how quickly Mistol clears your head and soothes sore nose and throat membranes. If your voice is husky, or your throat sore, gargle Mistol. Doctors use it. It soothes, heals, and checks infection.

THE SIXTH JOURNEY

BY ALICE GRANT ROSMAN

SYNOPSIS.

John Falconer, a successful architect, returning home to England from Cape Town, meets Hilary Revel, author of travel books, on shipboard. During the journey home their acquaintance grows into a friendship neither wishes to end.

John tells Hilary of his daughter, Judith, born of a café singer while he was a soldier. His wife, John says, had magnanimously adopted the child. Hilary suspects such magnanimity. John's sister Gertrude became Judith's legal guardian when his wife died.

Hilary had taken her war-invalided brother Hugh away from home ten years ago to give her younger sister Christine and brother Stephen a better chance. Now that Hugh was dead, Hilary was returning home. Hilary is not met when the boat docks, and John takes her to her door. Hilary's stepfather, the only sympathetic member of her family, tells her that Hugh left her his possessions in trust, to be settled on her at her marriage or to buy her an annuity at the age of 40 if still single.

The next day after their return John takes Hilary to luncheon. He tells her he loves her and asks her to marry him and Hilary accepts.

Judith leads a lonely life in her auntie's home. She has a private teacher, Miss Mead, while her cousins are away at school. Her cousin Prue is her only friend in her aunt's house. Her father she knows as Uncle John. She senses she is different in some way from other children. When Aunt Gertrude hears of her brother's engagement she sends Judith to the country. Then she invites Hilary and John to dinner. John is uneasy about Judith not being in school. He thinks it unfair to drag Hilary continually into the question of the child, and Hilary feels that he has had enough interference in caring for Judith. John writes Gertrude for the truth. She replies that she cannot, as a decent citizen, send a waif of dubious parentage among other children.

Judith, at the farm of her former nurse Tracy's brother, is badly treated by the old servant. She has had no mail since her arrival.

INSTALLMENT XX.

BEWILDERING DAYS.

There had been no letter again, and this was Tuesday. She had been away ten days. To Judy it seemed much longer than that and every morning she looked in surprise at Mr. Tracy's calendar with the monster sheep on it, hanging beside the kitchen mantelpiece, because the days were so bewildering. Tuesday used to be history morning, and she had always liked it—a jolly day; Wednesday French, and not quite so jolly because Miss Mead was worried by French, and to remember that and be careful when you wanted to get on to the next page and the next, was sometimes difficult. But even Monday, when she had had to sit along writing essays out of her head, because Aunt Gertrude always wanted Miss Mead to address committee envelopes downstairs, seemed jolly now, when all the days were the same and all dreadful.

There was no getting up at half past seven any more and splashing joyfully in the bath, which was so safely far from Aunt Gertrude's room that you could splash, even if you had to mop the splashes up afterwards with the cloth Jane kept hanging behind the bathroom door. Cecil and Midge were dreadful splashers and never wiped up, but Judy did not really like the wet floor, quite apart from the possibility of getting scolded if Aunt Gertrude found it. At the farm she was called at six and, however heavy with sleep, she could jump up by this time because she knew if she didn't Tracy would come in and shake her awake—Tracy, who was no longer Tracy, or even Nannie, but wished to be Miss Tracy, just as she was Judith and not Miss Judith any more. ["I don't care," thought Judy scornfully to that.] Judy, used to her daily tub and regular hand washings with warm water and scented soap, suffered dreadful discomfort at not feeling clean.

The only tub at the farm was a tin one, carried into the scullery on

"There, at least she's clean!" said Tracy.

Saturday night and filled with water from the copper. She had to get into it all naked, although she was thirteen, with Tracy coming in and out and telling her to scrub herself properly. As though she wouldn't! This echo of an old humiliation made the little girl burn all over even now as she walked out the farm gates in the lovely summer morning. On Saturday night, though she was ashamed of it and rarely cried, she had wept into her pillow, wept even more dreadfully than that night long ago when she knew she would have to leave Aunt Sylvia's beautiful house.

It had all begun when she was being taken from her second home to her third. Her second had been after her father went away, and it was with a lady who made hats and dresses. Judy remembered what fun it had been to play with the ribbons and scraps of silk and to see other ladies come in to "try on," looking so queer as the bodices and skirts were pinned around them and snipped and pulled by Mrs. Bowen's quick fingers. Mrs. Bowen was always quick and always busy, but nice too. She would take a little piece of stuff, snip briskly, run it through the machine and it would come out a doll's hat or a petticoat when Judy hadn't known it was to be anything for her at all. And then she would laugh and say, "And that will be two kisses, madam," as if Judy were a lady who had ordered a frock or a hat.

But one day Mrs. Bowen had fallen down and not been able to get up again, and people had come running and carried her away. Judy, very sad and frightened, was looked after by a neighbor, and the dress half made, with all the pins still in it, hanging on the funny round thing, like a person without a head or feet, stood in the workroom neglected. Every time the neighbor looked at it, she said, "Dear, dear, poor thing!" and frightened little Judy more than ever though she did not know why.

At last a splendid car had pulled up outside. Judy was used to cars; she had sat in them often in her father's garage beside her first home of all, and even ridden in one between her father and mother, but not anything as fine as this. Nor had she seen a lady as lovely as the one who got out, followed by Tracy [not lovely at all and looking cross] in a black dress. The lady was Aunt Sylvia, and she was very fair and soft and sparkly in her long grey coat and furs. Judy had been dressed in her best clothes and lifted on to the little seat in the car without feeling even astonished or afraid, because she was so dazzled by the lady. She could not remember the drive much because she had fallen asleep and then been wakened and led into a large house, which she knew now was a hotel in London. She was given food and had then gone to sleep again in a strange bedroom and been wakened once more by Tracy, and pulled to her feet while the lady looked on. "Don't be so rough, Tracy, you'll frighten her," she had said and laughed. "Go along, Judith, and have your bath."

Judith had thought it queer to have a bath in the afternoon, but Tracy had hauled her away and the dreadful business began. Her best frock, of which she had been so proud, her petticoat with the lace edge which Mrs. Bowen had sewn on it to please her, her little vest and knickers, were one by one removed and, held in Tracy's thumb and forefinger at arm's length, flung into a corner with a sniff of disgust. Judith lifted into the bath, was scrubbed and scrubbed until she was sore, as though all the filth of the gutter was gathered upon her small body and in her short dark hair, which Mrs. Bowen had always kept so burnished and neat. At last, dressed in new, soft clothes from head to foot, but shaking all over, she had been led back to Aunt Sylvia's room.

"There, at least she's clean!" said Tracy.

Shame and hate had been born in Judith at that bitter hour, she could not name them yet though she was still too young to realize that what she had experienced that night was not in the least what Tracy had said. For the first time in her life she had felt herself unclean.

In time when Tracy became "Nannie" Judith grew used to being scrubbed by her ungentle hands, just as she learned to bear her harshness and blandishments with a like indifference. When Aunt Sylvia was at hand to hear Judith was Nannie's darling and her lamb, but it didn't matter. Nothing mattered in this house where beauty walked with her. Color and form sang like music to the little girl who was John Falconer's daughter, and though she had known love and kindness before and after, but never from, it was to the home at Hampsted that her own love turned with passionate longing and regret. Human loves had perhaps been to fleeting in her changing life; her heart was given to tall stacked chimneys and mellow bricks, to the curve of a staircase, to rooms where grace and soft hues enchanted the sight at every turn. Aunt Sylvia was part of the house like a lovely picture—she was never much more than that. Night and morning the little girl was allowed to kiss her cool cheek and sometimes she was taken by Aunt Sylvia in the car and into the drawing room to be shown to guests. Judy loved to look at her; she was so cool and amiling and her hair shone like the sun. Her hands were white and soft, but once in the beginning Judy had done a dreadful thing. She had tried to tuck her own small fist into Aunt Sylvia's, and for the first and only time had seen anger on her face.

"Don't paw, Judy . . . I can't allow you to do that, it isn't nice." Judy, retreating scarlet and distressed, had learnt her lesson. Never since had she offered a caress to anyone.

Good morning!

"Fifty million Frenchmen CAN'T be wrong!" says a line of this play.

Perhaps they can't. I can—and maybe am in my opinion that the movie at present on the Oriental screen is one of the least entertaining hodgepodges ever made.

Save for its charming tinting [the film's all in technicolor] and the presence in the cast of several expert craftsmen who can't be blamed for failure to make silk purse successes out of sow's ear rôles, I can't hand "Fifty Million Frenchmen" a thing.

The lines are stupid and, often, crudely and leeringly suggestive. Situations are silly without being funny. The story, a nightmarish olio with scenes laid in Paris, isn't interesting enough to waste much space on. It concerns the doings of a lot of supposedly sane people who get a world of exercise by acting just the other way. Olson and Johnson, well known as vaudeville entertainers, may make you laugh—but they mighty near made me cry.

Ho hum.

But, as I said—I CAN be wrong.

"TWO WORLDS."

I cannot love you as is your meed
Because your creed is not my creed.

Produced by British International.
Directed by E. A. Dupont.
Presented at the Cinema Theater.
THE PLAYERS.

Norah Baring, John Longden, Benita Ayrton, C. M. Hallard, Constance Carpenter, Donald Calthrop, Miriam Elias.

It's hard to believe that the man who made "Variety" and "Atlantic" nanned the megaphone for this long, erratic, dull movie!"

Did Director Dupont set out deliberately to create, as a novelty, a film with no continuity whatever? Probably not, but the fact remains that "Two Worlds" makes your head ache from trying to figure out the causes of the effects—and WHY Austrian soldiers should all speak with an English accent. The officers enunciate like Oxford men and the privates indulge in cockney.

It beats me.

The principals in the cast display considerable ability as mummers, but they are too handicapped by story and direction to make any headway with an audience. Photography is splendid and some of the sets are most interesting.

The idea behind the story is, I gathered, to stress the pity of the fact that racial and religious differences between Jew and Christian should be permitted to interfere with true love.

Item: It is hereby suggested that theaters changing feature pictures each week but continuing to run a "short" from the week before, advertise at what hours their new attraction starts. Also that the management of chain treaters, showing assorted long features, forbear to show an identical "comic" in each of their houses.

Few folks either have the time or the inclination to sit through the same thing twice—or thrice.

See you tomorrow!

NEW STYLES CALL FOR PETTICOATS, SO SOCIETY GIRLS HEAR

Return to the days when women wore womanly petticoats—sometimes three or four—is in its initial stages.

So the Junior Friends of Art indicated yesterday while having final rehearsal for the fashion show at 2:30 p. m. today in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel. Miss Emily Brown Pope, one of the 12 girls who will model fashions, and their manager in the show said, among her final instructions:

"Now, girls, I want to warn you again not to forget your petticoats. You simply cannot wear these new evening and afternoon dresses without them.

"If you remember the last fashion show that some of us were in—and how some of the girls came without petticoats and then had to wear those filmy, feminine dresses—and, well, it was terrible. Particularly when they turned the spotlight on them. We don't want anything like that at our first fashion show."

The girls who will model also include Virginia Woodland, Sue Bradley, Betty Dixon, Helen Powell, Frances Bosworth, Ann Small, Mary Churchill, Laura Schriner, Frances Wood, Sarah Wood, and Frances Weary.

Today Belongs to St. Patrick, Patron of Erin

Thousands Will Attend Festivities.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Sure, and it's St. Patrick's day.

And just to substantiate that statement, commuters, look around you and count a fair proportion of green shirts and neckties, buttonhole bouquets of shamrocks, and smiling Irish colleens. And if you listen carefully you'll catch snatches of gay plans for dinners, dances and balls in honor of St. Patrick to be held here, there, and everywhere about Chicago tonight.

Chief among these will be the annual banquet of the Irish Fellowship club at the Palmer house. There Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, and Senator James Hamilton Lewis, will speak. A touch of Erin will be introduced in the musical program in which Sarah Ann McCabe, Chicago soprano, and William Rogerson will sing. Michael Igoe is president of the club and will act as toastmaster.

One of the largest gatherings will be the annual Celtic ball at White City, to be attended by 50,000 Chicago Irish. This will be given by the United Celtic-American Societies of Chicago. The guests will wear real shamrocks from Ireland.

Another 10,000 sons and daughters of the old sod will gather at the 131st Infantry armory, 16th street and Michigan avenue, for their twelfth annual reception and ball given under the auspices of the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic. There will be Irish dancing and exhibitions of step dancing by Miss Marie Shanahan and other young colleens in Irish costumes of the tenth century. A number of men who saw service in the Irish Republican army will be present.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians in Chicago will celebrate St. Patrick's day with a dance and entertainment at Ashland auditorium, Ashland avenue and Van Buren street. The climax of the evening will come with the selection and crowning of St. Patrick queen. Judge John P. McGoorty is to be the speaker of the evening.

On the north side the Connaught Men's club will hold a celebration in the Marigold gardens, Grace street and Broadway. Judge Joseph Burke is expected to be a guest of honor.

In the loop the Central Lions' club will meet at the Midland club this noon and will hear the Rev. Father J. F. Walsh of Loyola university talk on the "Sentiment Conveyed by St. Patrick." C. Earl Sutton is president of the club.

Exhibits at the Field museum of special interest today are reproductions of four shrines of St. Patrick included in a collection of Irish antiquities. These shrines are elaborate productions of Irish art in gold and silver set with gems.

Tonight the University council of the Knights of Columbus will hold their annual dance and card party at the Sovereign hotel with entertainment by loop theater stars.

New Yorkers Plan Parade.

New York, March 16.—[Special.]—At 2:30 tomorrow afternoon New York's Irish will swing up 5th avenue and the annual parade in honor of the patron saint of Ireland will be under way.

The parade this year will commence at 44th street and disperse at 110th street after a review by Grand Marshal John F. Curry, Tammany Hall leader, and other dignitaries.

More than eighty organizations will be represented in the twenty-seven battalions that will form the column.

Flowers and plants valued at $1,000,000 were on view today at the opening of the annual flower show at the Commercial museum. More than 30,000 plants made up the display. An array of orchids valued at $100,000 occupies a 3,000 foot space.

HARP ONCE OWNED BY THOMAS MOORE FOUND IN THE EAST

Philadelphia, Pa., March 16.—(AP)—The harp that once belonged to Thomas Moore, Irish poet, was found today in an obscure corner of the museum of Drexel institute.

Green and covered with gilt shamrocks, the harp was an enigma to museum attendants until it was learned that George W. Childs, former newspaper publisher, had bought it from Moore's family several years ago and subsequently gave it to the museum. It was found during a rearrangement of exhibits.

The name plate reads: "J. Egan, 30 Dawson street, Dublin, Harp maker by special appointment to his majesty George IV. and the royal family."

Lent Day by Day

ST. PATRICK

By the Rev. Father W. E. Corcoran

[Quigley Preparatory Seminary.]

[By the Rev. Father W. E. Corcoran Quigley Preparatory Seminary.]

"Young men see visions," says the Bible, "and old men dream dreams." This day is in commemoration of a young man's visions fulfilled and of an old man's dreams come true. The vision came hundreds of years ago to a youth called Patrick, who had been stolen from his home and sold into slavery in Ireland. It was the noblest vision that could come to a man; it was not a vision of external accomplishment but of internal conquest; not the vision of doing something great, but of being something great.

It is a vision that is seen only on the mountain of prayer when truth is transfigured, a vision that grows only in solitude. It was in the hours of prayer and meditation through the quiet hours of the day and the lonely hours of the night when he was tending his master's sheep, that the slave beheld growing ever brighter and more alluring this vision of personal greatness.

Goodness, say the philosophers, is the diffusive of itself. How natural was it for the vision of personal goodness to expand into another vision, the daring desire that some day he might be the means of turning these people whom he had learned to admire and love from the pagan religion of the Druids to the knowledge and love of Christ.

If St. Patrick conquered Ireland for Christ, it was only first of all because he conquered himself. If he had a vision of Patrick the apostle, it was only first because he had a vision of Patrick the saint. His chief claim to greatness is not his missionary activities but his personal sanctity. "He that conquers himself is greater than he who takes cities or whole kingdoms."

THE STAGE

"TWELFTH NIGHT."

Shakespeare's comedy, given at the Harris theater March 16, 1931, with Jane Cowl as star, under the auspices of the Dramatic League of Chicago.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

JANE COWL'S staging of "Twelfth Night," which was revealed at the Harris theater last night as the last item of the Dramatic League's season, might be described as a trinket classic. It is a "novelty" in the gift-shop sense of the word—a bit of prettiness and ingenuity; a whimsical variation of a standard article made to catch the eye and to evoke a pleased, tolerant smile. Without intending to be satirical, I should say that this is "cute" Shakespeare.

As a romantic frolic, it lacks the gusty Elizabethan note. It is graceful; it is charming; it is almost dainty. It gives the impression that Shakespeare was a subsidized court poet writing a garden show for the casual amusement of a group of perfumed noblemen and their delicate mistresses. Fritz Leiber's blunt production—our most immediate standard of comparison—was, I am sure, closer to the Shakespearean intention of a spirited and robust romp.

But this "Twelfth Night" should appeal to the capricious taste of modern playgoing; it is something different. It should be observed; it is well worth adding to your Shakespearean memory box. I may add that any delay in attendance will cause you to miss it, for it is in Chicago only for the week.

Against the background of a fantastic sea coast one finds a huge book occupying the center of the stage. Feste, a black-and-white clown, briskly opens its cover, turns its leaves. [He serves the performance like a Chinese property man.] This scholarly duty reveals areas of conventionalized scene painting, representing the shores of Illyria, the chamber of the lovesick duke, the garden of the melancholy Olivia, the cellar in which Sir Toby does his serious drinking, and the street where the masquerading Viola, alias Cesario, fights her comic duel with that eminent poltroon, Sir Andrew Aguecheek.

It could be argued that these quick changes of locale, with scanty suggestions of the alleged environment, are directly in line with the stage technique of Shakespeare's full blooded period. And yet the general treatment of the play is in the style of the modern art theater, in one of its fluttering moods. The bard himself would probably say of it: "Too much art and not enough zest." He might also grumble: "I put some of my best poetry into these lines, but they treat it like prose."

Miss Cowl's Viola is candid, suave and realistic. She plays the romantic hoyden as if she were a well bred girl who had dressed up in boy's clothes to gratify a mild sense of humor. The character is a pleasant variant of Jane Cowl, with the usual gestures, but not a notable contribution either to her career or to the glamorous traditions of Shakespearean acting.

Walter Kingsford finds the Rabelaisian oafishness of Sir Toby beyond his reach, although his intentions are excellent. Leon Quartermaine is a crisp, finical Malvolio, hardly eccentric enough to find the full value of that infatuated eccentric. Arthur Hohl is as good as any of the Aguecheeks of my experience; but I cannot recall one who was as comic as the character I find in the text. Jessie Ralph is an effective Maria, although I prefer the jade as a soubrette rather than a "character woman."

This "Twelfth Night" is Shakespeare in a decidedly modern interpretation. From my point of view it is too modern. It smacks of the studios of art colonies rather than the seething pit of an Elizabethan playhouse.

Peggy Hoover, Aged 6 Today, Will Celebrate

Goes to Asheville to Be with Her Father.

Washington, D. C., March 16.—(AP)—Peggy Ann Hoover, eldest of President and Mrs. Hoover's grandchildren, left Washington tonight for Asheville, N. C., to celebrate her sixth birthday tomorrow with her father, Herbert Hoover Jr.

She was accompanied by her brother, Herbert Hoover III., who will take part in the birthday celebration.

Peggy Ann and Herbert, who is called Peter by his grandparents, have not seen their father for more than six months, although they have talked with him over long distance telephone several times since coming to spend the winter in the White House. He is recuperating from illness.

Joan, the baby, who is less than a year old, will remain at the executive mansion with her nurse.

Mrs. Hoover will go to Asheville some time this week to spend a large part of the ten days President Hoover expects to be away on a trip to the Caribbean.

After all, a birthday party in the White House would have been merely another birthday party in the White House for Peggy Ann.

Two years ago, thirteen days after the inauguration, Peggy Ann's birthday was the first family festival under the Hoover administration. As gracious and dignified of manner as any grownup hostess, Peggy Ann was feted at a 4 o'clock tea, in the oval room on the second floor, now Mrs. Hoover's private sitting room.

The tiny table in the center of the room, spread for Peggy Ann and Herbert III., with milk instead of tea and children's cookies instead of rich cakes, was the only juvenile note.

The pink roses, the silver service, the embroidered linens were exactly the same as for any distinguished guests on any adult occasion—much to Peggy Ann's delight.

Doug Fairbanks' Auto Hits One of His Admirers

CALCUTTA, India, March 16.—(AP)—Douglas Fairbanks, the noted movie actor, was almost mobbed by Indian admirers on his arrival here today from Rangoon. In the stampede, an automobile in which the actor was being driven to his hotel struck and injured an Anglo-Indian boy of fifteen.

EARTH'S CORE SOLID, PRIEST SAYS AFTER STUDY OF ITS QUAKES

St. Louis, Mo., March 16.—(AP)—If Father James B. Mac Elwane, noted seismologist of St. Louis university, has interpreted a mass of scientific data correctly, the earth, that well known oblate spheroid, is not unlike a huge baseball slightly flattened by some cosmic Babe Ruth.

The center is a solid—not liquid—core, probably of iron and other heavy metals, with a diameter about three-fifth that of the globe itself.

Around this, corresponding to the twine that encircles the hard rubber center of the baseball, is a mantle of rock.

Finally, there is the "cover," a crust of soil and surface rocks only a few miles thick.

Six years of research into all available records of a south Pacific earthquake, ideally located for his purpose, led Father Mac Elwane to his conclusion regarding the nature of the earth's center, a moot point among men of science for centuries.

"Every earthquake," the Jesuit professor explained in discussing the significance of his newly published findings, "sends out two types of waves — longitudinal waves, like sound waves, and slower moving waves of shear or twist. On a seismograph they are readily distinguishable.

"That the 'sound waves' should travel through the core to the opposite side of the earth proves nothing about the makeup of the center, for sound waves pass through both solids and fluids. But if the shear waves are transmitted, then the core must be solid, for it is not possible to twist up a fluid so that it will fly back like a spring when released.

"It so happened that an earthquake occurring June 26, 1934, near the antarctic continent, was half way around the earth from many of our best observatories. Examination of their graphs revealed not only that the shear waves passed through the earth's center, but also that the area of emergence of the sound waves formed a clear pattern."

A STRAIN ON THE FAMILY TIE

All Indulgence Is Not Pampering, Says Mrs. Bevans

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"Building the Baby," a book on the care of the baby by Carolyn C. Van Blarcom, will be sent postpaid by the Public Service Department of The Tribune on receipt of 65 cents.

Two well known psychologists stood on two different lecture platforms not long ago and interpreted the same situation in two diametrically opposed ways. I'm sure what they said will interest you, as it did me.

Said one: "One of my earliest recollections is of being at my grandparents' home in the country for all of every summer. Those were the happiest days of my childhood. There seemed to be no cloud in my sky—I think grandmothers and grandfathers are usually good for children. When with them they are free from the constant disciplining of their parents."

Said the other, reading a case record: "Here is an earliest recollection of a little child. She remembers best of all being with her grandmother, sitting on a little stool, talking to her. She was undoubtedly pampered by the grandmother in her early childhood and still longs for such treatment. Grandparents always pamper children —and pampering produces dependence and inferiority," etc.

Such radical disagreement on the subject of grandmothers! Undoubtedly each was both right and wrong.

When two authorities as outstanding as these express exactly opposite views on the same subject it is very interesting to one who is constantly studying children. Also, it should make thoughtful mothers and fathers realize that they must not accept conclusions without weighing them against their own experience.

For instance, we can't accept either of these generalities about grandparents. And certainly not the second one, about grandparents not being good for children.

All grandparents don't pamper children, and if they did, some of the things that are called pampering are good for children. To be, for example, in a place like some grandparents' houses, where a child can do a great many pleasant things because there is no reason why he shouldn't—where grown people always have time for him (the parents of a busy family are often too busy?)—to have more pleasure or eventfulness or more of the richness of outdoors than is possible at home is not being pampered. If all this can be called indulgence, it is a wholesome sort of indulgence and gives color and fuller experience to a child's life. More power to this kind of grandparents!

We must be openminded and eager to use new ideas of child guidance—but we must use our intelligence and experience on them before accepting them.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Eight o'clock was bedtime for little Billy, 5 years old, so he was taught where the hands on the clock would be at that time. One evening, his mother wishing to get him into bed at 7:45, turned the clock in the living room ahead to 8 o'clock, and then went to Billy and told him it was bedtime.

Billy looked at the clock, ran to the kitchen where his grandmother was and asked her the time by the kitchen clock. Grandmother replied, "A quarter to eight." Mother, in search of Billy in a few minutes, found him watching the kitchen clock, which showed the correct time.

On seeing his mother Billy said, "It isn't bedtime yet."

His mother insisted it was, and Billy answered, "Well, it may be 8 o'clock in the parlor, but it is only quarter to eight here, so I'm going to stay here."

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Be More Friendly.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a boy and I am bashful. What shall I do?

"BROWN EYES."

If you want to make a good impression on him you'll have to cultivate a friendly manner.

Proposition Like This Is Insult, Says Doris Plainly

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"A year ago I met a fellow at a dance. After that we went out steadily for four months. Then he made the proposition to me that I live with him. He said he wouldn't marry unless he was sure the girl was suited to him in every way.

"We had a quarrel as the result of my objections, and broke off. After four months he called me up and said he must see me. We went out again a few times. Then he renewed his proposition. We stopped going out again.

"Six weeks later he came to the house suddenly one evening, saying he was afraid to phone first in case I wouldn't see him. And two weeks ago we broke off again and for the same old reason.

"He is 26 and I am 21. He is brilliant and attractive, gentlemanly and fine in every other respect but the one named. What is your opinion of him?—Helen."

One of your modern minded young men, Helen! I understand from letters from other girl correspondents that he is becoming a rather commoner proposition than we like to admit.

It seems pretty appalling to an older like me that a 21 year old girl should be confronted with the cold blooded proposition named. Also, that having been turned down for it once, a man should keep on pursuing. Is it that your "No" has not the ring of conviction, or what, Helen?

There was a time in the not far distant history of our women when that would have been the crowning insult to offer a girl. And while we have all this modern chatter in books, on the stage, and in Greenwich Village circles about the doctrine of free love and experimental unions, I'm of the opinion that it still is the crowning insult a man can offer a girl. Insulting, first, from the very nature of the request, and insulting because the man hasn't the manhood [guts was the word I really wanted to use] to take his marriage responsibility like a man.

And to fall back upon an old argument, which stands as good today with the men who make decent marriage material as it ever did, there is the girl's virtuous reputation to be considered. Don't laugh, you modern mockers of what you call mid-Victorian prudery! Just listen in on the conversations of men where the free love maiden's name is up for discussion. Or, put the problem baldly to a father, or brother, or any interested male relative. The decent male impulse still is to reach for a shotgun when one of the free love advocates comes within range of his female kin. And that's verdict enough.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL BOTTER

A dominating display of fifty unusual gardens, all but three of them designed and constructed by amateurs, is being set up in the second floor exhibition hall of the Merchandise Mart this week.

That this display, sponsored by the Garden Clubs of Illinois, is to be the largest ever seen in a public flower show is to the credit of Chicagoland's constantly increasing interest in gardening. They will be on view for a week beginning next Saturday morning, March 21, the first day of spring.

In addition to the forty women's garden clubs who are competing for the Garden club special medals, the Chicago parks systems are also to show some novel treatments of modern art in the garden and in landscaping.

North shore estates also will provide floral contributions from their conservatories to be the nucleus for two special gardens by the North Shore Horticultural society and the north shore branch of the National Association of Gardeners.

In the garden of the latter group plants will appear from the estates of Cyrus H. McCormick, Robert P. Lamont, Stanley Field, Warren Wright, Lester Armour, B. F. Grigsby, R. E. McCann, G. L. Pirie, James B. Simpson, F. P. Hixon, DeForest Hulburd, and E. H. Hoover.

Good Health Is Always Basis of Good Looks

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A few years ago if you went through the land preaching that beauty was based on health, your audience would have been much more limited than were you to set out today on a like mission.

You don't have much trouble selling the present generation the idea, in spite of the appalling sums it pays annually for cosmetic aids. Whether it always works on the theory, as we would have it, is another question. But it certainly knows that beauty, as it is recognized today, is three parts good, bounding health and the fourth part cosmetic, dress and superficial aids.

Of course, the economic problems with which most women are faced today does interfere somewhat with the pursuit of health as health enthusiasts would have it pursued. They often do not have the time to do the things they'd like to do. Those long, confining office hours do drain the desire to be up and doing at the end of the working day. The line of least resistance is the one most easily followed.

But the thing is that even this does not exempt women from the beauty expected of them, nor the physical efficiency. They're expected to be endowed, somehow, with that thing called vitality and which often creates beauty where it may not exist in form or feature. To be alert is the thing I am driving at, as one of the most emphatic demands made of women at the moment. And that's exactly what one can't be without the daily stirring up of circulation, limber muscles and joints, a good weight distribution and energy.

It's no idle axiom—this one about beauty being based on health. An eye is no more beautiful than the state of health behind it, nor a mouth, nor a body.

By being alert is not meant being constantly in the state of a bird on the wing. It's being alert—with poise. Poise you can draw from one leg only—and it is the good health one. So, I'd ask all you women today to take a little time to consider the actual state of health you are in and if, lacking the wanted pep and verve and poise, you couldn't do something about said health?

BEAUTY ANSWERS

MRS. E. D. H.: TO MAKE THE breasts firm, bathe them daily with cold salt water, and support the tissues with a suitable brassiere, even during the night. Before going to bed, massage gently with cocoa butter for ten or fifteen minutes.

Society Women Swim Channel at Their Club

BY THALIA

DON'T be too startled if you hear that some of the members of the Woman's Athletic club are "swimming the channel."

They are, in a manner of speaking, although they're not crossing the ocean to do it, and they aren't going in for the coat of grease, goggles, and rowboat accompaniment usual to the procedure.

The channel is a big chart on the wall, and swimming it consists in doing 21 times 88 lengths of the pool (not all at once, however), and having your progress marked with a pin on the map. The 88 lengths makes a mile.

Mrs. David Evans is in the lead at this point, with 22 lengths to her credit; Valerie Harris, the Hayden Harrises' daughter, is second, and Frances Canfield is third. Others who have entered the contest include the other Canfield twin, Kate; Mrs. Morris Townley, Mrs. A. C. Castle, Betty Poole, Virginia Cherry, Nancy Lee, and Barbara Bowes, the young daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome P. Bowes Jr. of Highland Park, and Mrs. Frank Porter.

There are a number of children of the members being taught how to do crawls and such by the club's swimming instructors, and some of the older ones are achieving great proficiency in the fine art of fancy diving. The Ralph D. Husmaghs' 3 year old Diane is one of the youngest pupils, and the Gartz children, Gail, Gloria, and Freddie, are all good swimmers.

The Canfield girls and Valerie Harris, who divided between them just about all the prizes at last year's swimming meet, are beautiful divers, and Bobby Seipp is learning how to do jack-knives, swans, and other trick dives. This year there's to be another swimming meet. It will be held some time about the middle of April, but the plans haven't been made nor the date set yet.

Lorado Taft's Daughter Married on Last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorado Taft announce the marriage of their daughter, Emily, to Paul H. Douglas, which took place on Saturday at their apartment at 5801 Dorchester avenue. Mrs. Douglas was graduated from the University of Chicago, and has been interested in dramatics and civic affairs. She has been organization secretary for the League of Women Voters for the last several years.

Mr. Douglas is professor of economics at the University of Chicago and has written a number of books on economic subjects. He and Mrs. Douglas departed immediately after the ceremony to sail for Europe. They plan to be away for 9 months, while Mr. Douglas conducts a study of unemployment conditions under the auspices of the Guggenheim foundation.

Alma Peterson and Orchestra Given Praise

BY EDWARD MOORE.

ALMA PETERSON, once in the soprano wing of the Chicago Opera, was the soloist with the Woman's Symphony orchestra at the Goodman theater last night. While with the opera she was considered worthy of singing a good many different rôles; she would be considered more worthy now. In fact you will find a good many sopranos whose dealings with Elsa's Dream from "Lohengrin" are less able than were Miss Peterson's, and only a few who are better, or as good.

She has a full toned voice of first rate quality, and she has a musicianly understanding of what the excerpt means as music and as drama. Later in the program she appeared in a group of Swedish folk songs.

The orchestra went through the first part of the program in highly commendable form under the baton of Ebba Sundstrom. In Mozart's "Magic Flute" Overture and in Beethoven's Second Symphony melodic lines were clear, sturdy rhythms were established and held, and there was an evident disposition to let the music speak for itself. This is no bad way to get under the surface of Mozart and Beethoven, by the way.

The Hampton Institute choir, now on tour, appeared at Orchestra hall last night under the direction of R. Nathaniel Dett. It is one of the noted Negro organizations of the country, and it has a good right to be, for singing, a natural endowment of the race, has here become developed and polished.

Great sympathy and consequently great facility was shown in songs from the liturgy of old Russia. They are written in a mobile, shifting sort of counterpoint which the fine voices of the singers brought out with mannerly style. With spirituals they are, of course, entirely at home, so much so that Conductor Dett laid aside his stick and took his seat at the side, permitting them to pick up the songs and carry them along at will, which is also in a way that no white chorus can hope to imitate.

A motet by Dr. Dett, "Don't Be Weary, Traveler," is an admirable composition.

Mr. Fuller, who died March 5, was president of the Fuller Manufacturing company here and director of the E. C. Fuller company of New York, manufacturers and distributors of book binding machinery.

Dotted Swiss Creates Smart Evening Gown

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Cotton evening gowns are going to be 100 per cent chic this summer. Maybe it's hard times that are responsible and maybe it's the charm of the new cottons—but whatever the cause, the result is certain: you'll be just as well dressed in a simple, dotted muslin as in lamé or satin at goodness knows how many dollars a yard.

Organdy, voile, embroidered and dotted Swiss, batiste even, all are announced by important Paris couturiers as evening fabrics due to appear in their summer collections.

Martial et Armand make the evening gown, sketched today, of dotted Swiss in a lovely rose pink, trimmed with Valenciennes lace edging to match, and Mme. Vallet, their everthoughtful creatrice, gives it a separate fichu and mitt sleeves of the lace trimmed dotted muslin that "dress it down" enough for late afternoon, garden party, and dinner wear.

With the mitt sleeves removed it becomes one degree more formal and without the fichu, which leaves a simple décolletage and armholes edged with one Valenciennes ruffle, it becomes a full fledged evening gown.

The skirt is fitted lightly round the hips and has two circular incrustations of the dotted muslin. It is full circular below, with a cut up point front and back, and the lace edging is applied so as to emphasize the line of the circles on the hips.

The belt is in rose colored swede.

Painter Mingles His Colors with His Geometry

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

JOHN STORRS is primarily a sculptor and as such stands high in the ranks of contemporary American sculptors. An exhibit of paintings by him is now current in the Chester Johnson galleries in the Fine Arts building and they come, if the truth must be known, as something of a shock not untinged with disappointment. At first glance the casual visitor, who probably has seen the Leger abstractions which hung in the same gallery last week, thinks that a mistake has been made, that these present pictures are but another leaf from the Leger notebook. They are much the same kind of picture. They are cubes and planes launched in space with color to redeem them.

A gentle voiced guardian of the gallery comes to the visitor's help and gives the assurance that these are not more subtleties of Leger but the offspring of the fertile imagination which is possessed by John Storrs. That much light being shed, the visitor proceeds to look more carefully. He finds the pictures to be puzzles with the key in the title list. When one reads "Mandarin," the yellow takes on significance. When one reads "Portrait of an Aristocrat," the black and white rather high nosed, frilled, pouter pigeon geometric design assumes the air of a person. Similarly "Rusticity" is an impression of ruffled ginghams, blue and red. "Outward Bound" looms clearly as the prow of a ship breasting fathomless leagues of water. "The Bug" becomes an insect of Gargantuan proportions. Likewise "The Signal" comes out of its plain being as a flood of lovely color and takes on the properties peculiar to those mechanical devices which save trains from collision.

Whether these paintings are more valuable than so many pages of algebraic figures is distinctly open to doubt. Mr. Storrs does achieve frequently a pure and beautiful color. In conjunction with their title many of the abstractions possess irony, humor, a sure significance aside from their formal appearance. To my mind, however, this is a cold art, neither to be cherished, loved nor delighted in. One canvas as an example, possibly, of what a sculptor may do in an idle hour is creditable to a collection, but to find many of these in a gallery is to walk in the chill outskirts of an intelligence unlit by human realities.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Talented Young Artist.

At the tender age of 2 my daughter was presented with a large box of water colors, but I thought her much too young to use them and as I didn't care to repair the probable damages that might result I laid them away. In the thank you note I enlarged upon the pleasant moments spent and the talent displayed in the use of the paints.

Recently I found the box and discovered the supposed paints to be bars of milk chocolate wrapped in bright colored papers! F. W.

Favors Drama to Add Punch to the Churches

The possibilities of drama as a method of worship in the church and home ware discussed before the Congregational ministers yesterday by Dr. Fred Eastman, professor of dramatics at the Chicago Theological seminary.

"There are now about one thousand churches in the United States that are having drama programs as their regular Sunday evening service," Dr. Eastman said. "The plays, as they are put on in most of these churches, are not educational novelties or attempts to tell Bible stories, but as an actual service of worship."

Dr. Eastman told how in his own household the use of drama was started after his two sons had rebelled against the custom of reading from the Bible each evening as a form of family worship.

"They agreed that movies would be an ideal change. I asked them if they would like to make the Bible over into plays and put on a show right at home," Dr. Eastman related. "They conceded the point, and I asked them to choose their play for the evening. They picked Adam and Eve. I was a bit dashed, but it was too late to back down then."

Dr. Eastman told how one son took the part of God, another the serpent, he and his wife, Adam and Eve, and the living room furniture and rugs, paradise and the animals.

"God named the fauna and flora, ordered me to get down on the floor, and he gently gathered dust and clay about me with his hands," Dr. Eastman continued, "in an effort to make something out of nothing; then leaned over to breathe the breath of life into the new creature.

"Eve was then brought under the hands of the young creator and life was likewise given to her with appropriate touch of realism. He kicked me in the ribs so that I might realize my part in the process. We have had drama in family worship from that day to this."

Food Talk.

Mrs. A. M. writes: "How can I cook a roast so that it will not be dry and tough?" I assume that Mrs. M. means roasted meats of all kinds.

Meat should never be washed, but should be wiped with a damp cloth. Allowing meat to stand in cold water will cause it to be dry and tasteless. Cold water draws out the juices.

Salting meat before it is seared also draws out the juices. Searing meat over a hot fire or in a hot pan seals up the fibers which contain the delicious juices. A rapid and thorough searing, therefore, is essential to the successful preparation of a roast. This applies to meat that has considerable fat. Searing may be done in a hot oven [525 to 550 degrees F.]. It will require about 30 minutes to sear. After the meat is seared it should be salted. Use ½ teaspoonful salt for each pound of meat. Then cook at a low temperature.

Basting is a process that assists in keeping the juices in. It keeps the surface of the meat moist, thus preventing the loss of moisture from the meat itself. Usually about one cup of water is added to each four or five pounds of meat for basting. Basting may be done by hand or it may be accomplished in a self-basting roasting pan. Water and fat are used for basting. The former is the one in general use. We baste with water when we dip up the liquid in the bottom of the roasting pan with a long handled spoon and pour it over the surface of the meat. Basting with fat is not such a common practice but it is an excellent way of retaining the meat juices, especially in lean meat. Preparing a roast so that it may be self-basted with fat is called larding and barding.

One lesson in larding will give you all you need to know. Larding is done with fat bacon or fat pork. Cut the slices of either about ¼ of an inch thick. Lay them one on top of the other and cut them into strips about two inches long. These fat strips are called lardoons. Place in the refrigerator long enough to become firm. These lardoons are threaded through the surface of the meat and always across the grain. Insert the lardoons with a larding needle which will leave the bacon in the meat as it is withdrawn. If you do not have such a needle, use a sharp paring knife to make shallow stitches in the surface of the meat through which to thread the lardoons. Both ends of the lardoons should protrude a little and be neatly trimmed off.

Barding means to cover a piece of meat or breast of poultry with a thin strip of fat to prevent it from drying out. Fat bacon is used. It must be cut into thin slices and slit in several places to prevent it from curling up. Either larded or barded meat may go into an oven at first for a few minutes to melt the fat and coat the surface of the meat. This coating of fat prevents the evaporation of the meat juices.

The time required for cooking meats is as follows: Beef, if you wish it rare, should be roasted fifteen minutes to the pound. For a medium roast, 17 to 18 minutes to a pound, and for a well done roast, 23 minutes to a pound. Veal should be roasted at least 22 minutes to the pound. Mutton should be cooked as long as beef. Lamb and pork should be cooked from 25 to 35 minutes to the pound. Never stick a fork into meat that is being cooked. That makes a hole for juices to run out. Turn it with spoons.

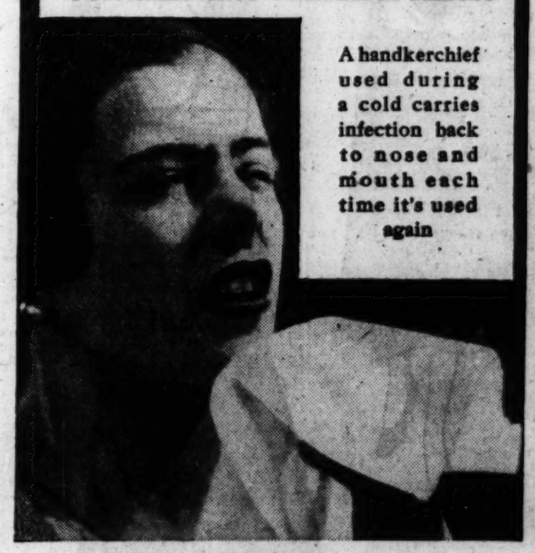
If these rules are kept in mind and you have purchased the proper cut for the method you have chosen for cooking, your meat should be juicy, tender, and full of flavor.

DATE AND NUT COOKIES.

2 egg whites
1 cup powdered sugar
1 cup broken English walnuts
1 cup dates, cut fine
Pinch salt

Beat egg whites until stiff, then add sugar and beat again. Add nuts, dates and pinch of salt. Drop on buttered tins and bake in a slow oven until brown—about 20 minutes.

COLDS contaminate handkerchiefs



A handkerchief used during a cold carries infection back to nose and mouth each time it's used again

Avoid Self-infection! Use Kleenex and destroy

THE importance of Kleenex to health during colds cannot be overestimated. That is the conclusion of latest scientific tests.

Scientists have proved that handkerchiefs used for colds are filled with millions of disease germs—as many as 240,000 when used only once. Think of carrying these dangerous germs in your pocket or handbag—of actually carrying them back to your face. No wonder ordinary colds often develop into more serious diseases! Now by using Kleenex only once and discarding, you avoid danger of self-infection. That is one reason doctors advise Kleenex.

Absolutely sanitary

Kleenex is a soft, super-absorbent tissue, handkerchief size. You buy it in Cellophane-sealed packages. It is as completely sanitary as it looks. So gentle and soothing that irritation is impossible. So inexpensive that you use a fresh tissue each time, then discard. Each tissue that touches your face is clean and fresh. Kleenex will materially reduce your laundry bill. The ideal handkercief for children.

Ask for Kleenex at any drug, dry goods or department store. In three sizes: 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00. If you have not tried Kleenex, send for a free trial package to the Kleenex Company, Lake Michigan Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Bacteriological tests show:

1. That handkerchiefs used by persons having colds may contain as many as 4,170,000 germs per handkerchief.

2. That organisms representative of those associated with colds, when impregnated upon linen and rinsed in boiling water and soap water, were not killed nor appreciably inhibited from growing.

These reports are based on tests performed in the laboratories of Dr. Bertram Fewer, Chicago bacteriologist.

NEW YORK PICKS TEAM TO MEET CHICAGO FIGHTERS

HEAVYWEIGHT KING DISPLAYS POTENT PUNCH

Shows 21,000 College Training Pays.

BY ARCH WARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 16.—A college education pays. If you don't believe it ask Yustin Sirutis, the heavyweight champion of the New York Golden Gloves amateur boxing tournament. He had to use all the knowledge he has acquired at New York university to whip a carpenter named Joe Shelby in the windup of the biggest boxing show New York has had this season.

Sirutis is a junior in the school of physical education at New York university. He earned his way to the championship round by knocking out another collegian, William Yeckley, captain elect of the Princeton football team. The New York boy hammered the daylights out of the grid star from the beginning. Midway in the first round he clipped Yeckley on the chin with a right and the latter sank gracefully to the canvas, thinking all the while that he wished he had remained a football player.

20,142 Watch Battles.

The polished work of Sirutis was the outstanding achievement in the fifth annual Golden Gloves tournament sponsored by the New York Daily News. The bouts drew a crowd that filled Madison Square Garden from the ringside to the last rows of the top balcony. The attendance was 20,142 and the receipts $40,295. The show attracted about 3,000 less than the Chicago finals, only because Chicago Stadium has a larger capacity than the Garden.

The New York boys had a new incentive for victory tonight. In addition to a place on the team which will face Chicago in the same arena two weeks from tonight, they have a chance to be included on the squad of American Golden Glove winners who will fight the champions of France at the Chicago Stadium May 12.

The New York show was run off with minimum delay. There were 20 bouts, ten in the open division and ten in the sub novice. The latter group includes boys who never had boxed in public before the 1931 meet.

Melia Keeps His Title.

For all of the contestants, particularly the beginners, this was a glorious and also a terrifying experience. They were alone in the ring save for a killer in the other corner. And 21,000 were shouting for a knockout. It was a test for any man's nerve, let alone a boy getting his baptism in big time competition.

The only 1930 New York champ to defend his title successfully was Andy Melia, a pipe fitter who seemed to carry one of his pipes in his right mitt. Melia earned a place on the team which will fight Chicago by stopping a savage looking Italian named Antonio Roman in the third round. Roman came into the finals with a record of three straight knockouts.

Early in the second round Melia's right cross sent Antonio back on his heels. A left hook put him down. He got up at the count of seven looking bewildered, embarrassed, and just a bit apologetic. He was sent sprawling in the resin twice in the third round. And after his last descent the referee stopped the bout.

New York Flyweights Strong.

Melia will draw Fred Caserio, the Central A. A. U. champ, in the inter-city bouts and their meeting ought to be a high spot of the show.

New York looked particularly strong in the flyweight division. Jimmy Martin, one of the rapidly vanishing Irishmen, won a hairline decision from Charles Villareale. Both boys showed a ring knowhow and a sharp punch that bodes no good for Rodak, Elliopoulos and Nate of Chicago. THE TRIBUNE team will do well to break even in the two flyweight bouts, judged by the showing of the rival boys in their championship contest.

Another standout on the New York team is Jimmy Farley, a lightweight who is going to make Scotty Sylvano step all the way to win in the inter-city match. Farley whipped Joe Petischek, a tournament favorite, to win his golden glove.

Inter-City Bouts a Tossup.

There apparently are no good amateur light heavyweights this season. Chicago's best didn't set the Stadium on fire last Wednesday night and there was nobody better tonight.

It is our guess that the intercity match is a tossup. But perhaps we are a bit punch drunk. Four hundred and fifty bouts within a few weeks are enough to make a fellow that way.

Kid Kaplan Wins from Buster Brown in 10 Rounds

Baltimore, Md., March 16.—(AP)—Kid Kaplan of Hartford, Conn., tonight was given a judges' decision in his ten round bout here with Buster Brown, Baltimore lightweight. There were no knockdowns.

Golden Gloves Team Goes to Work; 2 Long Drills

BY FRENCH LANE.

Chicago's Golden Gloves warriors went into training yesterday for the intercity battle with New York at Madison Square Garden on the night of March 30, and in two long practice sessions did about everything except box.

The coaches of the Chicago team believed it advisable to give the bruises and cuts picked up in the championship matches at the Stadium last week another day to heal and lose their soreness.

So yesterday's drills consisted of road work during the morning and a rehearsal so strenuous during the afternoon in the Illinois Athletic club gym that most of the boys would have welcomed the opportunity to climb into the ring and do some scientific sparring.

The work they did during the afternoon was equal to about seven or eight rounds of hard boxing. They skipped the rope, whaled away at the punching bag, did shadow boxing, weight lifting and went through other drills at such a lively clip not one of them was more than a few ounces overweight when the day's work was ended.

Every member of the Chicago team was in camp when the afternoon drill started except Jack Kranz, the Gary light heavyweight. Scotty Sylvano and George Holden missed the morning session. They were not able to arrange to get away from their jobs until noon yesterday. Sylvano has a bakery route on the south side and Holden is secretary to a high official in a Chicago business concern.

Kranz checked his baggage at the training camp yesterday morning, but did not show up for either the morning or afternoon rehearsal, although he returned to the club later in the evening.

Coaches Benny Yanger, Johnny Behr, and Jabber Young agreed last night that, as regards getting plenty of hard work out of the members of the Chicago team, their task is an easy one. Their fear at the end of the first day's training was that the Chicago boxers in their eagerness to beat New York will overwork, and a boxer who goes stale is of no more benefit to a team than one who does not do enough work.

Taylor Loses to Massey as Referee Halts Bout in 8th

Philadelphia, Pa., March 16.—(AP)—The 10 round fight between Bud Taylor, Terre Haute, Ind., and Lew Massey, Philadelphia, at the arena tonight was stopped early in the eighth round and the decision awarded to Massey. Referee Reilly disqualified the Hoosier battler for "not trying." Both boxers weighed 128½ pounds.

The pair had battled along on virtually even terms for six rounds, during which there was plenty of action. Massey seemed to be tiring in the latter part of the sixth round after Taylor had landed several heavy body punches. The Philadelphian, however, came back strong in the seventh and a two fisted attack to the head drove Taylor against the ropes.

Taylor apparently made little or no effort to protect himself and grinned as Massey punched away at his head and body. The fans booed Taylor and the referee ordered both to fight. Massey cut loose with both hands when the eighth started and when Taylor did not fight back the referee called a halt after 22 seconds elapsed and awarded the decision to Massey.

BUCK EASTERLING WHIPS MILLER ON WHITE CITY CARD

Buck Easterling of Wichita, Kas., won a six round decision over Joe Miller of Chicago last night in the feature bout of the White City boxing card. The two light heavyweights slugged each other freely and the bout was one long mixup from start to finish.

In the semi-final, George Kerwin beat Tommy Kluth in six rounds, after flooring Kluth for a count of nine in the second round. Nick Broglio of Herrin, Ill., knocked out Joe Rehling, welterweight, in the fourth round.

NORTH CENTRAL MEETINGS OPEN WITH SECRECY

Big Ten Awaits Chance to Fire.

Controversy Not New

MADISON, Wis., March 16.—(AP)—The controversy on over emphasis in college athletics has existed for 30 years but only recently has been designated by that term, Maj. John L. Griffith, western conference athletic commissioner, said here today.

"College athletics are commercialized in the same manner as hospitals and churches are commercialized," he said. "It takes money to run them."

The commissioner, addressing the University of Wisconsin athletic department and members of the varsity track team, said the principles of fair play as taught on the athletic field makes communism impossible in this country.

The North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools opened its annual conference yesterday at the Stevens hotel with several secret committee meetings.

Armed with extensive surveys of the university, college and high school athletic situation in its territory of 20 middle western states, the association was expected to issue far reaching orders to curb the so-called ovenemphasis of sports, and to back up its orders by suspending any member institution rebelling against them.

One of the most interested observers was the Western conference, which recently called a meeting to determine by what authority the association conducted an investigation of Big Ten athletic affairs. If the North Central issues an order to the Big Ten a wide-open battle is certain.

Scott Challenges North Central.

The dispute between the North Central and the Big Ten started a year ago when the North Central ordered all members, including the Big Ten, to cancel national and interstate prep athletic meets. Big Ten members, notably Chicago and Northwestern, complied with the order, but when North Central investigators extended their study of athletic conditions to Big Ten campuses the dispute broke out. President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern challenged the right of the North Central to investigate Northwestern and asked all presidents and athletic representatives of the conference to meet for a showdown. Maj. John L. Griffith, athletic commissioner for the Big Ten, sided with President Scott, declaring that he believed the North Central had exceeded its authority.

Several other conference leaders in North Central territory have also objected to an investigation by the association's investigators.

Nearly 700 representatives of the North Central group were in Chicago last night or on their way. They will hold secret committee meetings today as they did yesterday and then report their recommendations to the public meetings tomorrow and Thursday.

Investigated Two Divisions.

Investigations were made in two divisions,—one embracing colleges and universities in 20 states and the other among secondary schools. In addition to investigations, all institutional leaders were asked their opinions on the supposed overemphasis of college sports and what remedies, if any, should be taken.

Butler college of Indianapolis and Crane college of Chicago, which were suspended by the North Central a year ago for not living up to rules, will seek reinstatement at this week's meeting. No North Central official would be quoted on the reinstatement pleas, but it was understood the applications were looked upon favorably.

Goofy Sports Throne Is Vacant; Pegler Pages Pyle

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 16.— It seems improbable that any promoter will ever reach the heights of goofiness which Charlie Pyle achieved with his two transcontinental limping races, unless Mr. Pyle himself should bob up again with his breezy optimism to organize a transcontinental peanut roll or wheelbarrow push or some similar election bet event.

Mr. Pyle claims to have been cured, but I doubt that this resolution can be taken as final. A man who has run not one but two foot races along the public highways, expecting to make money out of them, probably cannot be cured of what ails him. The first one could have been set down as an error.

He has been sighted in Chicago lately, and I am told that he had that curious restless look in his eye and a recurrence of that strange confidence which got him into trouble before.

"My only trouble," Mr. Pyle said, "was that I was ahead of the rest of the country. I staged my panic two years before Hoover had his."

Ideas Were 50 Years Old.

It would be closer to the facts of the case, however, to say that Mr. Pyle was about 50 years behind the procession. His ideas were so old that they were new to his generation, for the files of the sporting papers of 50 years ago are shot through with news of competitions of the goofy type, and challenges against the world. There were none, however, on public highways, an arena which precluded the collection of gate receipts.

There were hearty challenges from obscure hardboiled egg eaters in Kansas and Minnesota, or persons claiming to be the champion tenpenny nail driver or the champion coffee drinker or horseshoer or oyster opener, and, evincing an early competitive interest on the distaff side, there were several ladies who offered to meet any lady in the world at catch weights for the sock darning and mitten knitting championship of the world for a reasonable side bet.

All these events, it will be perceived, however, were such as could be held behind turnstiles so that the customers, if any, could be properly assessed, as were the early precursors of Mr. Pyle's transcontinental limping race, the six day and thirty day go as you please races, both afoot and aboard the high wheeled bone shakers.

Modern Specialties Silly, Too.

It seems rather absurd now that any one ever hoped to rise to the financial and social eminence of a world champion in such a sport as eating the hardboiled egg or driving the tenpenny nail, but on closer examination I am not sure that these specialties were any more foolish than some others. A man becomes a celebrity nowadays because he has been very successful in hammering other men on the liver or on the back of the head in a ring, certainly a useless occupation. Or advertising agencies pay him huge sums for the sound of his voice on the air because he has learned to hit a certain type of ball better than any one else can with a certain set of implements.

Sport is pleasure and amusement, not necessarily athletic, and it is intrinsically no more goofy to derive amusement from the spectacle of a field of serious minded citizens drinking cups of coffee competitively than to gallop weary miles over a private meadow for an occasional glimpse of Bobby Jones' right elbow through a tiny rift in the crowd as he hits a mashie shot. Golf such as Mr. Jones plays bespeaks a great strain on the nerves, but so does competitive coffee drinking.

Bible Reciters Survive.

Long ago there were religious zealots claiming to be the champion extemporaneous out loud Bible reciters. A survivor of this class appeared at Dayton, Tenn., during the celebrated monkey trial, wearing placards fore and aft proclaiming himself to be the out loud cover to cover Bible champion of the world. This type of competition might be said to have the virtue of piety, and therefore to be a far more laudable form of sport than any other, for those who like it, and there are many such along the route of the tent show revivalist.

But here again, it will be seen, the competition is one which can be held with benefit of the box office. As to the side bets, I suppose there would be some moral compunction. Perhaps there would be some adaptation of the certificate or profit sharing schemes which are used at the horse tracks in states where gambling is held to be immoral.

About Doodle-Bug Battles.

A form of sport which has not been adequately exploited is the doodle-bug fight, a pleasure of childhood's happy hour in some parts of the south. The doodle-bug is a white insect of most unprepossessing mien which bores a hole in the earth about the size of the ferrule of an umbrella. The children dip broom straws in mud and thrust them down the holes. The doodle-bug, which is not overly bright, grabs the straw and is drawn up and deposited in a small ring scratched on the sur-

CUBS REST FOR A DAY; ROOT ONLY PITCHER READY

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 16.—The Cubs today enjoyed their first full day off in the current training season and their only one excepting one travel date. Barring bad weather they will be engaged every day after today until the National league season is well under way. On April 6 they won't have their uniforms on, but they'll be busy traveling from here to Fort Worth, Tex.

Some of the boys went out to Hollywood to watch the manufacture of movies. Others played golf and others just went around hither and thither.

Manager Hornsby welcomed the day of rest, for he said he thinks it will give the boys a much needed physical and mental relaxation ordinarily obtained with the aid of bad weather, something the Cubs haven't encountered in the slightest so far this year.

Pitchers Disappoint Hornsby.

With the exception of Charley Root, Hornsby doesn't feel that his pitchers have shown as much on the mainland as they did at Catalina but he expressed the belief that all hands will appear at Wrigley field at noon tomorrow rarin' to work.

The fact that the Cubs scored 51 runs in their first three games with the Los Angeles Coast leaguers did not afford Hornsby as complete satisfaction as you might imagine. The pitching offered by the Angels, except in very few instances, was worse than mediocre and did not give the sluggers anything like a real test.

The first real workout for the boys will develop next Friday when the team lines up in the first of a four game series against the Pittsburgh Pirates in the new San Francisco ball park. The teams will play Friday, Saturday, Sunday morning, and Sunday afternoon. A week from today the Cubs will move over to Oakland for one game with the Oakland Coast leaguers, then return to San Francisco for a seven game series with the San Francisco Seals. The Goofs will play Oakland in Fresno on March 28 and 29.

April 5 Is Cutting Date.

Despite the desperation of the Los Angeles club in their need for some Cub help, Manager Hornsby will stick by his resolution to keep his squad intact until the club leaves California on April 5.

The series with the Angels will be resumed tomorrow. Jakie May and Lee Sweetland will supply the Cub pitching.

HOSE RALLY TO TIE COUNT, THEN PITCHERS FAIL

Kamm Homer Drives in Two Mates.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Antonio, Tex., March 16.—The White Sox plotted to flatten the Giants in the closing moments this afternoon, but the scheme wasn't a success. The Bushmen, after trailing from the start, did go far enough to shove home five runs and knot the count at six apiece in the eighth, but the unexpected rally merely brought on overtime labor which was settled to the satisfaction of the New Yorkers in the tenth. The final score was 9 to 6.

The finishing and decisive touch applied by McGraw's talent was at the expense of Hal McKain and Pat Caraway. McKain, who had been none too effective in three previous sessions, gave Critz a pass with one out in the tenth and then the trouble began. Leach singled and so did Lindstrom, Critz scoring. This much convinced Manager Bush a change was advisable. He selected Caraway as a rescuer, but the lanky southpaw proved himself unprepared. He was slapped for hits by Ott and Jackson and that completed the winning rally.

Kamm Helps Out.

Although the exhibition was a failure so far as the Chicagoans were concerned, Willie Kamm can't be denied the satisfaction of knowing that he contributed impressively when it looked as if his team was going to be hopelessly smothered. The Sox did nothing against various Giant pitchers for seven innings, but in the eighth the situation changed. A few hits scored a couple of runners and left another pair on the lines when Kamm came up. He shoved them home and tied the score with a drive beyond the barrier in left.

It was Kamm's second hit of the day but in numbers he didn't stand very high. One man who completely eclipsed him was Grube, the young catcher, who uncorked four wallops in five appearances.

Tommy Thomas started as Chicago's pitching choice, and what he displayed indicated there might be some reason to doubt the return of his one time fast ball. He labored for three innings, during which the Giants tapped him for one run and five hits. There would have been a couple of more safe ones if Jolley and Reynolds hadn't stretched themselves chasing long flies. Between Thomas and McKain, three innings were worked by Braxton. He was fair, although yielding one run in the fifth.

Giants Score in Second.

The Giants began tampering with Thomas in the first inning, but refrained from scoring until the second. One run blossomed from this episode. Leslie opened the productive sortie with a line double to right center and moved to third on Verges's roller to Radcliff. Hogan popped to right center, but neither Simons nor Reynolds could catch it, so the ball dropped for a single, Leslie scoring. After Mitchell had flied to left, Critz doubled to the same spot and by a great burst of speed the 250-pound Hogan managed to reach third. Reynolds avoided further trouble by closing the inning with a running catch of Leach's fly.

During the three inning tenure of the ancient Mitchell, the Giants' starting pitcher, the Sox attack was painfully negligent. Only ten white hosed batters faced the old fellow and none of them hit safely. One reached base. This was Cissell, who drew a pass to open the first inning. After this none of the Comiskey employés made contact with first base until Reynolds clicked a single to left off Morrell in the fourth. He was erased hurriedly when Simons grounded to Critz for a double play.

Another Giant Run.

Braxton's appearance for the Hose in the fourth was quiet and orderly, but a quantity of things happened to make him uncomfortable in the fifth. This sent another New York run across the plate. Lindstrom started it with a hit on which Kamm made a great although futile stop. Lindstrom was safe at second on an intended steal when Appling dropped Grube's throw. Ott walked and Jackson then doubled to right, Lindstrom scoring. Leslie popped out, and a pass to Verges filled the bases. Hogan obligingly flied out to center.

The Sox nicked Morrell for two hits in the fifth, but the effort didn't produce a dividend. Kamm and Grube exploded the smashes after two were gone and expired on the bases when Braxton looked at a third strike. Another limited opportunity appeared in the sixth. Radcliff doubled to left center with one out, but assistance was not forthcoming from either Reynolds or Simons.

McKain Yields Tally.

The New Yorkers registered their third run as soon as McKain assumed the pitching rôle in the seventh. Kamm brought on the trouble by booting Lindstrom's roller after which McKain walked Ott. Jackson's sacrifice moved the two runners along and Leslie hit a fly to center, Lindstrom scoring after the catch.

The Sox finally broke in with a run in their seventh, but had to have the assistance of McKain's bat to do it. Berly, a rookie from Rochester, walked Kamm with two out and Grube singled to left. McKain doubled against

SHAMROCKS FEEL LUCKY TONIGHT IN DULUTH BATTLE

Five Irishmen Look for Aid from St. Patrick.

The Shamrocks will meet the Duluth Hornets tonight in a game bearing on the Chicago team to land in the American Hockey league playoffs.

The Shamrocks, with Dennenay, Burns, Riley, Taylor and Mulligan in the lineup, believe they'll have good luck on St. Patrick's night.

The Duluth outfit, under the direction of Shorty Green, former boss of the New York Americans, is points enough ahead of the Shamrocks to make it necessary for the latter to win all their games to tie their rivals even if the Hornets lose a game or two.

The Shamrocks and Hornets have met seven times. Each team has scored three victories and there was one tie.

Heading the Duluth attack will be Laurie Scott, veteran center, who has climbed into third in individual scoring during the past month. Sharing the offensive burden will be Jack Leswick and Gus Forslund.

Kwariani Pits Brawn Against Londos' Skill

Statistics give a physical advantage to Kola Kwariani in his match for the heavyweight wrestling championship tomorrow night at the Coliseum against Jimmy Londos of Greece, the defending champion.

Kwariani is younger, taller and heavier, but in endurance, skill and experience Londos has the edge.

Kwariani will finish a strenuous training program today. The big fellow has whipped himself into splendid condition, which means that both will be at the peak of their form, since the husky Greek always is in shape.

Londos is favored to win. He successfully tossed back challenger after challenger since winning recognition as champion and has not lost a single fall while doing it. Since Londos plays a waiting game and allows his foemen to tire themselves before he leaps into action, a long battle seems likely.

In the semi-windup, Frank Brunovics of Poland will try to extend his winning streak against squatty Hans Bauer, German campaigner. Another match claiming interest will bring Jack Smith, Chicago, former amateur star, into action against Rudy Laditzi, bundle of muscle from Hungary.

Karl Pojello, Lithuanian, will match holds and grunts with Marshall Blackstock of Georgia. A duel between Rudy Dusek of Omaha and Mike Romano, veteran Italian, rounds out the bill.

RUTH, LAZZERI BAT YANKEES TO 8 TO 6 VICTORY

New York Makes It 4 Out of 5 from Braves.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 16.—(AP)—With Babe Ruth and Tony Lazzeri setting the pace, the New York Yankees walloped the Boston Braves, 8 to 6, today for their fourth victory in five starts against the National leaguers.

Ruth connected only once in five times at the plate, but the hit was a double and was delivered with the bases loaded. Lazzeri helped the Yanks' cause with three doubles.

Home runs by Red Worthington and Wes Schulmerich were among the 11 hits made by the Braves off Ed Wells and Roy Sherid. Ed Brandt, who started for Boston, was pounded hard, but Fred Frankhouse held the Yankees to two hits and no runs in the last four innings. Score:

Boston	1	2	0	0	0	2	1	6	11	1

CARDS TOP A'S, 7 TO 4.

Bradenton, Fla., March 16.—(AP)—Brilliant pitching by "Wild Bill" Hallahan and "Dizzy" Dean featured the St. Louis Cardinals' 7 to 4 victory over the world champion Philadelphia Athletics this afternoon. This was the Cards' third victory in the four game spring "world series." Dean's pitching was more sensational than that of Callahan, who, like Dean, shut out Connie Mack's men in his three innings on the mound. The Cards made fourteen hits off Rommel, Walberg and McDonald, a rookie.

St. Louis (N.L.)	0	0	1	2	2	0	1	7	14	3

Batteries—Rommel, Walberg, McDonald and Boley; Hallahan, Derringer, Dean and Wilson, Almaraco.

PRAISE BRAVE INFIELDER.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 16.—(AP)—Those who profess to know at the Braves' camp say that it looks like Charlie Wilson has earned himself a regular berth at third base. He's been performing in a manner that makes even the old timers blink and if he can hit like he can field they say the job is his without a battle. Charlie was star shortstop on the Rochester team last season.

FILLS REEVES' SHOES.

Pensacola, Fla., March 16.—(AP)—Paddy Creeden is filling Bob Reeve's shoes at second base for the Red Sox these days and he doesn't need any padding in the toes, either. The little Brockton, Mass., boy is doing a great job both on the second sack and at bat. Paddy played baseball at Boston college and since then has coached freshman football at Fordham college.

FOUL BREAKS HURST'S NOSE.

Winter Haven, Fla., March 16.—(AP)—Don Hurst, Phillies' first baseman, was hit on the nose by a foul off Whitney's bat in practice today. Dr. W. T. Simpson, who set the nose and placed a cast on it, said Hurst would be out of the game only a few days.

The Phillies were to play the St. Louis Browns at West Palm Beach today, but rain caused cancellation of the game.

RAIN HALTS BROWNS.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 16.—(AP)—Rain today prevented the St. Louis Browns from playing their scheduled exhibition contest with the Philadelphia Nationals. Walter Stewart, ace of Bill Killefer's mound staff, probably will make his first appearance in a game this season when the Browns and Phillies meet Wednesday at Winterhaven.

REDS BEAT COLUMBUS.

Lakeland, Fla., March 16.—(AP)—After losing four exhibition games to clubs of their own classification, the Reds went into the minors today and won their first contest over the Columbus American Association club, 12 to 1. Score:

Columbus (A.A.)	0	0	2	2	0	0	5	0	11	1	2
Cincinnati (N.L.)	5	0	0	4	0	0	2	1	12	11	1

Batteries—Chairman, Beckman, Dunford, and Hinkle, Gillespie; Frey, Streckli, and Rice.

NASHVILLE GETS TWO RED SOX.

Pensacola, Fla., March 16.—(AP)—Charley Cronin and Sumner Collingwood, semi-pro pitching candidates taken south with the Boston Red Sox, were turned over to the Nashville club of the Southern association today by Manager Shano Collins.

The Red Sox batsmen stung the ball hard in the daily six inning practice game, during which the regulars scored a 12-9 win over the scrubs. Hal Rhyne, Otis Miller, Tom Winsett and Al Van Camp each hit a home run.

K. C. CAGE TEAMS TO PLAY OFF TIES TOMORROW NIGHT

Ties in the north, south, and west sections of the Knights of Columbus basketball league will be played off tomorrow night at White City to eliminate all deadlocks before the championship series opens Sunday at the Coliseum.

Four contests will be held, the most important of which will be between Penn and Loyola-Hyde Park for the south division title. Setters and Carroll of the west division will fight it out for third place in that section, while Father O'Connor and Marquette will hook up to determine second and third places in the north division. The final game will be between two of the three teams in the south division third place deadlock—Dowling, Aquinas, and Englewood.

Officials Tell Iowa's Effort to Dodge Ban

Des Moines, Ia., March 16.—(AP)—Disqualification of 14 athletes as the price of reinstating the University of Iowa in the Big Ten conference was described today to the legislative investigating committee by two members of the athletic board.

Dean C. C. Williams, chairman, testified that the board in October, 1929, decided not to declare the athletes ineligible, on the ground that they had borrowed money from the "Belting" slush fund without knowing its source.

Agree to Ban Athletes.

After the conference refused two months later to take Iowa back into the fold, Dean Williams said, the board agreed that disqualification of the athletes was necessary to "save the university and perhaps save the boys." Substantially the same evidence was presented by Dr. R. A. Fenton, dental school member of the board.

Dean Williams held Paul E. Belting former athletic director, responsible for violating the Big Ten rules by establishing the fund.

A defense of the athletes as innocent parties to the transaction was presented to the conference, he said, but the faculty representatives ruled the school could return only when the boys were disqualified.

Committee Ignores Athletes.

When the board disqualified the athletes, Dean Williams replied, a resolution was adopted requesting the conference to send a committee to Iowa to inquire into the situation. This was done in January, 1930, but Williams said the committee appeared not to be primarily interested in the athletes.

Instead, he said, the members spent most of their time investigating reports that another slush fund had been set up after Iowa's suspension. He testified Reed Lane and Charles Sessions, alleged creator of the fund, signed affidavits they had not contributed.

15,000 TO WATCH ANNUAL WESTERN ELECTRIC BOUTS

Fight fans of a single industry will take over the Chicago Stadium tomorrow night for the annual Western Electric wrestling and boxing championships. Fifteen thousand telephone makers have purchased tickets. The previous high mark for attendance at the annual event was 5,000.

Sixteen titles will be at stake in nine boxing and seven mat bouts. The boxing windup will be between Karnoff [Scowler] Hansen and Mike Karbens. Hansen won a hard fought battle with Karbens last year.

The feature wrestling bout will be the clash between Joe Krivickas, holder of the 118 pound title for seven consecutive years, and Kaynard McCormick, former Iowa State university star and last year's Big Six champion.

On the boxing card, John Carbone meets James Kucaba at 112 pounds; C. V. Langevain will defend his 126 pound title against Louis Valchar; George Root will mete Julian Pikor, 130 pound champ; Pete Smagatz will meet L. Sutter at 175 pounds; Eddie Lada clashes at 160 pounds with James Lyons; George Sluka and E. J. Zacowski meet at 147; Clint Endsley and George Nagrodski mix at 125, and Karbens and Hansen will wind up the show at 160 pounds.

The wrestling finals will see the following in action; C. Staudinger vs. F. Carfagnini; J. Krivickas vs. K. McCormick; P. K. Vorres vs. S. Fultyn; V. V. Vosen vs. E. C. Robertson; E. F. Zid vs. R. Volpe; F. Stejskal vs. E. Poplauskis, and C. T. Grendahl vs. E. Dvorak.

Izaak Walton League to Promote Boxing Show

The Northwest chapter, Izaak Walton league, will promote a boxing exhibition tomorrow night at the Fronton, Lawrence avenue and Clark street, with seven amateur bouts and one wrestling match. The profits of the show will be used in various projects which the chapter has undertaken, among them being the stocking of its game bird sanctuary near Wauconda, Ill., and its campaign to improve the condition of the Des Plaines river and the north branch of the Chicago river.

the wall in left, Kamm counting. The session closed with Cissell's pop foul.

McKain's own error got him into a jam from which the New York crowd extracted three runs in the eighth. A pass to Hogan opened the inning. Berly bunted. A double play should have resulted, but McKain pegged wild to second and both runners were safe. Allen ran for Hogan and went home on a single by Critz. A two bagger by Leach and a single off Ott's bat shoved home the two other runs.

Sox Go to Work.

The large sized riot by which the Sox tied the count with five runs in the home eighth got under way on a single by Radcliff. Reynolds also singled. Simons popped out, but Jolley stepped in with a double, Radcliff and Reynolds crossing the plate. Appling helped with a scratch hit off the pitcher's glove. Then Kamm sent his homer over the left field signs, scoring Jolley and Appling ahead of him. Grube followed with a double, but Walker rushed to Berly's assistance and what might have been the winning run was halted when both McKain and Cissell failed in the pinch. Then nothing happened until the Giants settled it in the tenth.

The Sox today released Infielder Blondy Ryan to the Atlanta club.

EX-LOYOLA U. STARS TO MEET BADGER GRADS

Two styles of basketball will be on display tonight at the Loyola gymnasium where a quintet composed of former Loyola university players meets a team of former Wisconsin stars. The ex-Loyolans, led by Charley Murphy, will present practically the same team that won 33 in a row with Bremner, Durburg, West, Flynn, Lawless, and McGraw assisting him.

John Paul and Ed Chmielewski, co-captains of this season's Wisconsin team, will lead the ex-Badgers, aided by Bud Foster, Maurie Farber, and Carl Mathusen. The St. Andrew's north side Youth league championship team will meet SS. Peter and Paul, south side champs, in a curtain raiser.

National Forest Tracts Provide for Recreation

BY BOB BECKER.

If Uncle Sam comes into Illinois and purchases large tracts of land for national forests the residents of the state may be pretty sure that they are going to get a lot of recreation in these forests, because Uncle Sam's policy for these national units seems to be a combination of growing trees and outdoor fun for everybody. At least that is the way the government is administering forests in Minnesota and Wisconsin.

This policy was the subject for a campfire discussion one night when we camped with E. W. Tinker, chief forester in charge of the lake states, in the heart of the new Argonne national forest east of Three Lakes, Wis. Sitting around a blazing log fire not far from the Pine river, we asked him question after question regarding the system which provides for reforestation and recreation at the same time.

He explained that the tracts which the government has bought (nearly all cut over land which can be made to grow more tree crops) were first cleaned up and then roads put through. Fire towers were then built so that the unit could be adequately protected against forest fires. Then millions of young trees were planted. As Tinker explained, this tree crop will be scientifically logged, so that there always will be a revenue from the forest, yet its beauty and utilitarian purposes will not be destroyed.

One of the most interesting items regarding the policy which Tinker discussed involved the use of the forest for recreational purposes. In many respects such a forest is virtually an open air playground for those who like to camp or fish or just enjoy life among the trees. If there are lakes or streams in the national forest it is possible for one to make a long term lease with Uncle Sam for a tract of ground on the water. In some of our northern national forests outdoor fans have built large, beautiful log cabins for summer homes. The camper may pitch his tent and live in the forest if he behaves himself with fire, and the public in general is invited to enjoy these areas.

Thus a national forest may become a real asset to a state in growing a future tree crop, as well as wild game, and in providing thousands of acres for outdoor recreation. Incidentally, Tinker explained that when the government cut "ripe" timber in the forest part of the money return went to the county in which the forest was located, so the land included is not drawn wholly from the revenue column.

At present Illinois is behind Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Michigan in the establishment of national forest tracts. Our neighboring states are building up fine systems, taking in many thousands of acres, which are a factor in game production, because there is no hunting in these forest areas.

Goofy Sports ThroneEmpty; Page Mr. Pyle

face of the ground. Another doodle-bug is then placed in the ring, and the children bet on their respective doodle-bugs, which then fight to the death rather than leave the ring.

A doodle-bug which is champion of the back yard might be considered a more distinguished fighter than any heavyweight champion prizefighter that ever lived. They fight to a finish and they fight all comers, and, as there are always plenty more doodle-bugs where those came from, their young managers, of both sexes, do not connive or look for soft touches for their doodle-bugs.

Pyle's Events Still Goofiest.

None of these sports is as goofy as Mr. Pyle's transcontinental limping races were, so Mr. Pyle himself may be regarded as a champion, too, in the sense that he twice out-goofied all the generations of promoters that ever lived.

A few years ago Mr. Pyle engaged the grand dining saloon of the steamship Paris at her dock in New York, and entertained about 300 members of the haute monde and the bon ton of New York at a dinner in which the guests of honor dined off the ceremonial gold service.

"Three years ago," Mr. Pyle said, after that dinner, "I dined at a beanery in Chicago. A thousand on a plate for a dime, and the fork was tin. But I am still Charlie to my pals."

"You are very goofy," one of Mr. Pyle's friends said to him, "to spend all this money for this caviar and truffles and breast of spring duck, cooked in champagne, and the gold service."

"Goofy?" Mr. Pyle said. "Who is goofy for spending what money? The steamship company picked up the tab for this dinner. I pointed out to them that the affair would be very fine advertising for their line."

At times there was method in Mr. Pyle's goofiness.

ST. IGNATIUS AND DE PAUL BATTLE TO ENTER MEET

The right to play in the eighth annual national Catholic basketball tournament will be at stake tonight when De Paul academy plays St. Ignatius High school at De La Salle gymnasium, 35th street and Wabash avenue. The winner of the game will take the place of the Virginia entry in the national tournament which opens tomorrow night at Loyola gymnasium.

St. Ignatius has made several appearances in the Loyola tournament, but has never gone beyond the third round. De Paul has not played in the meet since 1924.

Two Danville Bowlers Advance in A. B. C. Meet

Buffalo, N. Y., March 16.—[Special.]—Two Danville bowlers landed berths among the American Bowling congress tournament leaders here late today when Henie Rebenschied crashed through to fourth place in the singles event with 661 garnered from games of 204, 201 and 256, and M. Hart tied Art Cook, Chicago, for seventh berth in the standings with a 650 total.

High scores featured the day's scheduled. Paul Day, 21 year old Louisville pin toppler, crashed through to the lead in the all-events with a total of 1,918 to tie Bert Meyers, Syracuse, for second place in the singles with 664. It was Paul's second appearance in national pin competition.

Numerous totals were chalked up by Chicagoans which will qualify in the prize division. Harry Pratt, after opening with 243, followed with 214 and 182 to top the Chicagoans, carded with a 639 total. Tom Guerra registered 613 and Jerry Peck 609.

Oscar Knebelsberger and Tom Guerra were high among Windy City pin smashers in the doubles event with 1,213. W. Kempward, M. Schansker, Indianapolis, took the lead early in the day with 1,287.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 7,000; hogs, 23,000; sheep, 15,000.

Prices of all classes of live stock broke yesterday, under pressure of large receipts. Cattle receipts were largest of the year at 20,000. Hog receipts at 60,000 were largest since Feb. 23 and compared with 38,125 the previous Monday and with 39,916 a year ago. Sheep receipts at 23,000 were only 2500 under the largest daily total this year.

Considering the size of hog receipts at all leading markets, prices held up well. The general average was down 20c at $7.55, while the extreme top showed 15c loss at $8.25, being 25c under the high point of last Friday's market. All interests bought medium and weighty butchers readily at the decline and part of the loss was recovered on late rounds.

Hog Futures Slow.

Trading in hog futures was slow and steady to lower yesterday. September light weights were offered at $9.50, March mediums were bid $7.75 and offered at $7.90, while May mediums were offered at $8.60 and bid $8.00. May heavy were bid $7.75. On the "to arrive" market, light weights for today's delivery were bid $8.25, mediums $7.75 and heavy $7.50, but there were no sellers at these figures.

The cattle market sagged badly when receipts increased more than 80 per cent compared with the snowbound supplies of a week ago. All points reported liberal supplies and weak to lower quotations, adding to the depression later in the day when thousands of head were still in the pens on unsatisfactory bids. Good grades shared in the full loss.

Lamb Market Unsettled.

Considerable haggling over prices delayed trading in the lamb market yesterday when erratic markets were reported at other leading points. Sharp gains were scored in the eastern part of the country, one point in the far east quoting wool lambs up to $10.25.

Bulk of offering on the local trade went into the afternoon rounds and sold on a steady to 15c lower basis. City butchers and shippers bought at $9.10, while packers took good lambs at $8.85@9.00. Aged sheep and yearlings were unchanged.

LARD STOCKS DECREASE

Lard stocks in Chicago decreased 887,089 lbs since Feb. 28 and are 25,713,899 lbs. A year ago they were 46,508,000 lbs. Trading in lard yesterday was fair, with commission house buying of deferred futures and offerings light.

Export clearances were 14,906,000 lbs. against 12,857,000 lbs last year. Of bellies ther were 5,653,000 lbs for the week, against 6,313,000 lbs last year. Saturday's clearances of lard were 491,000 lbs, and of bacon 2,108,000 lbs. Cash trade was fair. The larger receipts of hogs than expected have lowered prices sharply, but they were without effect on the market for futures. Prices follow:

REGULATION OF ALL TRANSPORT AGENCIES URGED

Threat to Railways Cited by Robinson.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The competition of unregulated transportation agencies, whether motor buses and trucks, pipe lines, or intercoastal steamships, seriously threaten the welfare of the western railroad. And unregulated water transportation between the Atlantic and the Pacific coasts, via the Panama canal, imposes a severe handicap on industries in the middle west.

F. W. ROBINSON.

These warnings were given by F. W. Robinson, traffic vice president of the Union Pacific system, before a meeting of the Western Railway club at the Sherman hotel last night. However, he expressed the hope of railroad men that state legislatures will take constructive action on truck competition and that some relief will be granted from recently imposed rate reductions.

Opposes Favoritism.

"No industry, or specifically no transportation method, is entitled to any prior right to public favor, provided it is accorded a fair chance with its competitors," Mr. Robinson said. "The operation of intercoastal steamship service, aggregating 2,695,320 tons westbound and 6,368,830 tons eastbound during 1930, and from which the railroads were prohibited from meeting the competition, has greatly changed the industrial map of the country. It has done much to cut down the markets which manufacturing concerns of Chicago, Milwaukee, Omaha, St. Louis, and Kansas City formerly enjoyed on the Pacific coast and to the benefit of manufacturers nearer the Atlantic seaboard.

"There is no way to recover this trade except that the railroads be permitted to meet fairly the competition with which they are confronted. Not only are these steamship rates, under normal conditions, very much lower than the rail rates, but recently, because of the breaking up of the intercoastal conference committee, there is open warfare between these lines. The result is that there is no stability in their rate structure and rates as low as 20 cents a hundred pounds have been quoted on iron and steel products from Atlantic to Pacific points."

Outlines Results.

Mr. Robinson then outlined results from other competitors of the railroads. One factor is that, although existing railroad rates of western railroads do not yield adequate or fair returns, they are still too high to hold the traffic.

"Trucks are cutting into railway tonnage and are constantly broadening their sphere of effort," he said. "They take more risks in their operations with regard to the handling of goods, operate on no schedule or hours of service, and their rates are largely a matter of barter and trade.

"There are now approximately 80,000 miles of natural gas pipe lines in the United States. It has been estimated that consumption of natural gas in 1929 displaced about 59,000,000 tons of coal, or 2 per cent of all tonnage handled by the railroads.

Loss in Coal Traffic.

"This would represent $132,750,000 of gross revenue which the railroads lost in coal traffic alone in 1929. It is equivalent to displacing 6,600 men in railroad employment and to a $16,000,000 decrease in wages."

Mildly cheerful news came from the automobile industry yesterday. Production last month was estimated above 230,000 units, while it is expected that output this month will approximate 300,000 and that April production will be between 300,000 and 400,000 units.

Automobile Sales.

The General Motors corporation in February sold 96,003 cars, compared with 89,349 in January and 126,196 in February, 1930. This included both domestic and foreign sales. Sales to dealers in this country last month were 80,373, compared with 76,681 in January and 110,904 in February, last year. Dealers' sales to consumers in the United States totaled 68,976 in February, compared with 61,566 in January and 88,742 in February, 1930.

Hudson Motor Car company sales for the week ended March 7 showed an increase of 17.5 per cent over the previous week, according to E. H. McAnneeny, president and general manager.

Silver Bullion Advances to New High Price for the Year

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 16.—Silver bullion advanced more than 1c an ounce today to a new high price for the year, above 31c, on its sharp recovery from the historic low price at 25¾c touched last month.

Heavy buying of the metal in London, attributed chiefly to covering by far east speculators who had been selling short on the decline, resulted in a jump of 1¼c to 31½c an ounce, the New York price. The previous high for the year was 31¼c on Jan. 2. The rise was the sharpest of recent gains.

Contributed to Depression.

Silver had a long and precipitous fall and the consequent drastic curtailment of purchasing power of the Far East contributed to world-wide depression. The current recovery had its inception partly in the recent Anglo-Indian agreement.

Continued strength in silver, with prospects of further improvement in the price, has had a favorable influence on business sentiment throughout the world. Local dealers in silver were bullish, but said there was little speculation for the rise going on here. Chinese speculators are believed to have had the largest hand in the recent buying as well as in the selling. The highest quotation for silver last year was 46¾c early in January.

SHOWS PROFIT SHRINKAGE

New York, March 16.—(AP)—The 1930 slump in nonferrous metals resulted in a shrinkage of net profits of International Nickel company of Canada to 67 cents a common share from $1.47 a share reported in 1929. The pamphlet report mailed to stockholders today showed net profit of $11,770,060 for 1930, compared with $22,235,996 for 1929.

The report said nickel sales for the first half of last year, though less than for the corresponding period of 1929, were reasonably good, but during the last half of the year business fell off rapidly and sales in November and December were the lowest for years. Sales of rolled nickel were off 64 per cent, due largely to heavy curtailment in the radio industry.

Dips Into Surplus.

To maintain the $1 annual dividend rate, $4,312,800 was taken from earned surplus during the year. At the close of 1930 earned surplus was $20,646,169, compared with $24,958,970 at the beginning of the year. Net current assets were $30,102,999, compared with $32,231,839 at the end of 1929.

Robert C. Stanley, president, said the "management does not regard the present industrial depression, serious as it now appears, as of major importance in the life of a company so well equipped to serve an expanding world market," and adds: "It seems probable that the trend of the company's business in 1931 will be the reverse of that reported in 1930."

MACHINE FIRM SHOWS HEALTHY EARNINGS GAIN

New York, March 16.—(AP)—International Business Machines corporation today reported for 1930 an appreciable increase in net earnings over the peak year of 1929.

Net income applicable to stock after federal taxes was reported at $7,357,816, equal to $11.53 a share on 637,954 capital shares outstanding Dec. 31, 1930. This compared with $6,705,967, or $10.51 a share for the year 1929 on a like number of shares.

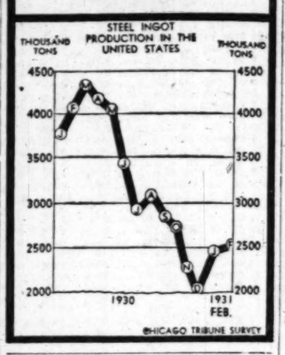
STEEL INGOT OUTPUT INCREASED DURING FEBRUARY



SIMMONS SALES TOTAL $32,018,741 DURING YEAR 1930

Simmons company, including subsidiaries, for the year ended Dec. 31 reports net loss of $1,015,278 after interest, depreciation and taxes, but before subsidiary preferred dividends, against net profit of $4,695,572 in 1929.

Sales during 1930 totaled $32,018,741, including subsidiaries not owned and not included in 1929, when sales amounted to $41,087,429.

Sales for the first two months of 1931 were $4,585,031, compared with $6,818,557 in the same 1930 period.

Recent unofficial reports from New York have been that current sales of the company's bed division have been satisfactory, but that the general furniture business has been poor.

Low Priced Shares Feature Trading in Chicago Mart

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

With another important crop of 1930 reports from the first line corporations out of the way the speculative community is devoting more of its attention to the current situation in the hope of anticipating first quarter results. Some indication has already been gained of the recuperative powers of some industries, but much is still a matter of speculation.

The automotive accessory shares have been the chief beneficiaries on the Chicago exchange in recent weeks of the upturn inspired by the improved tone of the trade news. There has been a slackening in activity in these in the last few days, however, with some shifting of attention to other sections of the list.

Two Issues Prominent.

Yesterday's trading here was featured by bursts of activity in some of the low priced shares. The motor issues were moderately active and showed mild improvement but no noteworthy gains were recorded in the group. Two stocks, Polymet and Q. R. S. De Vry, which util recently have not been accorded more than passing attention, were the speculative features of the day.

Transactions in Polymet exceeded 10,000 shares while volume in Q. R. S. fell just short of that figure. The former issue advanced only a fraction but the final quotation represented the best price the issue has commanded this year. Q. R. S. leaped into the speculative spotlight with a net gain of 2 points bringing the stock to a new high quotation for the year of 5. Since the first of the year the stock has sold as low as 1½.

The market action of these two stocks stood out from a background of generally listless trade and, insignificant price changes. The tendency was toward slightly higher levels but the advance was not uniform and many issues sustained minor losses. The total turnover for the day amounted only 110,000 shares.

Katz Drug Sales.

The Katz Drug company yesterday made public its February sales figures, which reflect the expansion made by the concern during the last year. Net sales for the month were $572,081, which was an increase of $139,667, or 32.29 per cent, over the corresponding month last year. For the first two months of 1931 the company had net sales of $1,200,326[against $885,104 in the same period of 1930. The expansion in 1930 resulted in the biggest sales in the company's history which amounted to $6,688,891 for the period.

According to word received from Kansas City more than 200,000 shares of Gleaner Combine Harvester stock has been deposited with the protective committee, thus giving the body full control. Federal court action on the application to issue $200,000 in receivers' certificates is scheduled for March 26. Proceeds of the issue would be used to meet current obligations and for production purposes.

Another New York house is acquiring a seat on the exchange. Notice of a seat transfer to David H. Sulzberger of the firm of Halle & Stieglitz was posted yesterday.

New York, March 16.—What little nourishment there was in today's share market went to the bulls. It was a rather empty victory, however, for the trading was almost entirely professional, with the gains spotty as they were belated. Most of the gains were run up in a burst of pool activity and short covering in the last hour.

Speculative interest was at about the lowest ebb it has been since the current reaction set in, the sales barely topping 2,000,000 shares. The bear element, evidently discouraged by their failure to bring about a break of importance when the list dropped through its more or less mythical resistance levels last Friday, appeared to have toned down their aggressive operations for the time being. The constructionists, so-called, restrained

"WHAT'S A GOOD BUY?"

• A lawyer is seldom greeted by his friends with the question, "What's a good plea, today?" • And yet the common greeting to the investment man —"What's a good buy?"—is no less illogical.

• In both cases there is no proper answer except an invitation to sit down and to discuss a lot of facts. • The "good buy" approach is rarely the way to successful investment. Its prevalence reflects a costly misconception as to the nature of this very important activity.

• Fundamentally, the business of investing money is a different thing from a series of security purchases. Its processes are dictated by its essential purpose — the conservation and effective employment of savings. It starts with a comprehensive plan resting on individual circumstances. It is made effective by strict adherence to well tested principles. It calls for a sense of proportion as to the place of securities in the scheme of things.

WHEAT FUTURES SLIP AT START; EDGE UP LATER

Reports Farm Board Sales Only 460,000 Bu.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A bearish construction placed on news developing over the week-end resulted in scattered selling of wheat futures at the start, with the September declining ¾c to 62¼c, a new low on the crop. However, the surplus in the pit was absorbed on resting orders and holders of bids, and when the early sellers started to cover they found little for sale. This caused a rally of 1¼c from the low, with the finish at net gains of ⅝@¼c on the new crop months, with July 63¼@63¾c and September 63¼@63½c. Old crop months finished unchanged, with March 79½c and May 81⅛@81⅝c.

According to a report put out by a leading local commission house the federal farm board program for exporting 35,000,000 bu of domestic wheat has met with a cold reception on the part of importers. The house estimated that total sales since Feb. 21 have been only 460,000 bu, of which 240,000 bu were to Antwerp, 40,000 bu to France, and 180,000 bu to Japan, the latter going from the Pacific coast. The small business was a surprise to the trade, and was construed as distinctly bearish.

Winnipeg Wheat Rallies.

There was no evidence of important foreign demand for Manitoba wheat, and Winnipeg broke early in sympathy with Chicago and a little selling by American houses only to rally toward the last and close ⅛@⅜c higher, with short covering the main influence. July there finished at 61¾c. Lack of speculative interest in wheat has become a market influence and to some extent is responsible for erratic price changes both here and abroad. Liverpool was ⅝d lower, with July 63¾d. Buenos Aires developed independent weakness and closed ⅞@1⅛c lower.

Owing to the fact the old crop months are selling at a premium of around 18½c over the July, practically all the pressure on the latter is by shorts, as the hedges are in the nearby months. This results in the market quickly becoming oversold, regardless of the character of the news.

Foreign Demand Disappointing.

Export sales of around 200,000 bu Manitoba wheats were reported during the day, the foreign demand being distinctly disappointing. An increase of 1,836,000 bu was shown in the visible supply for the week, with the total now placed at 199,714,000 bu, compared with 153,561,000 bu last year.

There was no material pressure on the corn market, and, while there was a dip at one time in sympathy with wheat, the close was at the top, with net gains of 1@1⅛c, with March, 42⅝c; May, 62⅛@65¼c; July, 67¾@67⅝c, and September, 67¼@67⅝c.

Cash Corn Movement Falls.

The falling off in the movement of cash corn to terminal markets the previous week was reflected in an increase of only 897,000 bu in the visible supply, making the total 21,182,000 bu, against 24,745,000 bu last year. Buenos Aires finished ⅛@⅜c higher.

Oats futures dealt within a range of ⅛@⅜c, with cash interests moderate buyers at times, while locals and the northwest sold. Final trades were ⅛@⅜c higher, with March, 30c; May, 32¾, and July, 32½c. Favorable crop comments were received from the southwest during the day. Rye rallied with wheat and closed ⅛@⅞c higher, with March, 37½c; July, 40⅛c, and May, 41⅝c.

Wheat in Southwest Promises Good Crop

"Snow in the southwest melted and soaked into the ground and moisture conditions are favorable," says the Santa Fé railroad crop report. "Winter wheat is generally in good condition. Early seeded oats have sprouted and are coming up well to a good stand. An increased acreage of corn and feed grains are being sown. Little cotton has been planted in west Texas as yet. Frost on March 9 damaged vegetables in the coast territory."

COTTON CROP FOR 1930

A cotton crop of 15,733,000 bales is estimated for the season of 1930 as given by the E. H. Miller-J. E. Bennett & Co. final crop report. This compared with an estimate of 13,665,000 bales on Dec. 1, 1930, and 14,848,000 bales for 1929. Present indications point to a decrease of 15 per cent in acreage this season.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Technically the wheat market, as viewed by traders at the close yesterday, exhibited an easy tone due to liberal covering by shorts in the last hour. This movement, it was said, was due mainly to strength in corn, leading shorts not being disposed to stand out with no pressure on corn and prices advancing, with big local shorts leading the buying. It is said that one of the largest local professionals had sold July and September early, which was considered short stuff.

"No one will claim that the entire decline in wheat prices 1929 to 1931 is due to the effort to fix prices, but it seems pretty definitely proved that government not only cannot, but should not attempt to fix prices of a product which is produced in so many other countries," says Bradstreet's in an extended review of the world wheat situation. "This has been tried before and failed. The United States is in the price fixing business, however, and it would seem the part of good sense to charge off the loss and stop the drain on the pockets of the American taxpayers."

"Millers in Tunis now are permitted to include 20 per cent foreign wheat in their grindings, which will tend to stimulate the demand for durum and Manitoba wheat," says a Broomhall cable.

COTTON CLOSE NEAR TOP

Active buying to cover shorts by professionals, with no particular pressure of offerings, resulted in an advance of around $1.25 a bale on cotton futures yesterday and a close slightly below the top figures. The recession was due to profit taking by early buyers, yet net gains in Chicago were 206@23 points and other markets up 206@24 points. Liverpool was strong and helped the American markets by gaining 6@7 points, with spot sales of 5,000 bales, including 3,000 bales American. Spot markets were up 20 points in New York to 10.95c, with New Orleans up 25 points to 10.65c, Galveston, 10.90c and Houston, 10.90c.

Mild weather prevailed over the cotton belt, with too much rain in south Texas. Plowing and planting is going ahead over the entire cotton belt and sufficient rain has fallen to stimulate germination.

Exports for the week were 154,784 bales against 76,376 bales last year. Since Aug. 1 they aggregate 5,200,000 bales against 3,600,000 bales last year. Into sight movement for the season was 12,295,411 bales compared with 13,117,800 bales last year. Prices follow:

LOOKING AHEAD WITH BUSINESS

The Union Pacific railroad's 1931 budget covering maintenance of way and equipment and capital expenditures totals more than $70,000,000. The road plans to spend $27,000,000 on maintenance of way, $33,000,000 on maintenance of equipment, and $10,200,000 on capital expenditures.

Signalized by advances in every industrial group over the two preceding months and marking definitely increased industrial activity, February operations in American manufacturing establishments gained 13 per cent over January, according to returns received on electrical energy consumed in 3,800 plants throughout the country, Electrical World reported yesterday.

Bond issues called in whole or in part in February numbered 64, to a total value of $56,756,900, Standard Statistics company reports.

In railroad circles it is stated that the purpose of the Canadian Pacific's plans to increase its authorized common stock by $50,000,000 is to obtain funds for acquisition of the Pacific Great Eastern railway.

The Orient No. 1 mine of the Chicago, Wilmington and Franklin Coal company, which has been closed for the last month, will open soon and give employment, on a divided time basis, to more than 1,000 men, according to action of the Benton, Ill., union. The union is said to have agreed to the plan of the company to fully mechanize the plant and begin production at an early date.

Cash dividends paid by the Pennsylvania railroad amount to nearly one billion dollars, according to figures just compiled for 1930. Including the dividend just paid on Feb. 28, 1931, out of 1930 earnings, Pennsylvania stockholders have received a total of $995,084,433 since 1856. Last year $52,030,987 was paid in dividends to Pennsylvania shareholders, representing an eight per cent return on the par value of the outstanding stock. This was the largest annual dividend payment in the railroad's history. The preceding year, with dividend payments aggregating $46,835,965, also established a record to that time.

ELECTRIC BOND & SHARE SHOWS GAIN IN INCOME

Earnings $10,000,000 Higher than in 1929.

New York, March 16.—(AP)—Electric Bond and Share company today reported a $10,000,000 increase in net income for 1930 and an extension of its interests in the several utility holding companies to which it supplies technical and financial services.

Net for the year ended Dec. 31 was $42,355,163, equal to $2.43 a common share, compared with $32,511,823, or $1.97 a share in 1929. The extent to which security prices, particularly utilities, have improved since the end of last year was reflected in the statement that the value of assets per common share on March 7 was $51, whereas on Dec. 31 it was $39.

Total balance sheet assets as of Dec. 31 were $1,002,673,150, of which $910,-173,525 represented investments whose market value on the same date was $685,698,000. This had risen to $756,-960,000 by March 7.

As of the yearend, the corporation owned 53 per cent of the common stocks of American and Foreign Power company, Inc., the only member of the so-called "Bond and Share group" which it controls. At the end of the previous year it had owned slightly less than 50 per cent. Investments in American and Foreign Power preferred stocks and option warrants also increased.

Holdings of American Power and Light common rose to 31 per cent from 30; of American Gas and Electric to 19 per cent from 16; of Electric Power and Light to 32 per cent from 30, and of National Power and Light to 45 per cent, from 40. Voting control of United Gas corporation, another client, is owned by Electric Power and Light, but Electric Bond and Share itself owns more than 10 per cent of the United Gas common and smaller amounts of the preferred stock and option warrants.

Total current assets on Dec. 31 were $31,886,416, against current liabilities of $6,768,882. Common stockholders numbered 93,944, while 22,752 held Electric Bond and Share preferred.

NORTH AND SOUTH SIDE RAILWAYS REPORT INCOME

The Chicago Railways company, which owns and operates the north side surface lines and is in receivership, yesterday reported net income for the year ended Jan. 31 of $572,641 after all charges, including interest on adjustment bonds. This compares with net profit of $1,584,109 in the preceding year. Total income for 1930 was $5,375,703, against $6,521,961 in 1929.

At the close of the year the company had $14,616,141 in cash, including renewal and depreciation fund, as compared with $16,760,872 at the close of 1929. Investment in lines and equipment was increased from $101,461,090 to $102,381,508 during the year.

The Chicago City Railway company, in receivership, which operates the south side lines, reported net income of $1,406,098 after charges, equivalent to $7.81 a share on 180,000 shares of stock. This compares with $1,929,237, or $10.72 a share, in the preceding year.

YOUNG BENSINGER FOLLOWS DAD AS HEAD OF FIRM

To the increasing ranks of youthful executives was added another recruit yesterday when Robert Frank Bensinger, 33 years old, was elected to the presidency of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company, to succeed his father, B. E. Bensinger, who has occupied the position since 1905. The elder Bensinger was made chairman of the board.

ROBERT F. BENSINGER.

The younger man has been first vice president of the company since 1926 and his election marks the fourth generation of the family to hold the presidency of the company. The firm now manufactures billiard tables and bowling alley equipment, having disposed of its musical business to Warner Brothers last year.

The young president classifies himself as an optimist who believes that business is definitely on the upgrade. He was educated at Phillips Exeter and Lake Forest academies and served in the navy during the war. He married in 1923 and has two children.

IF YOU BUY YOUR USED CAR FROM STUDEBAKER

And you can buy with confidence. 5 days' free driving trial goes with each sale.

JORDAN SEDAN. If we advertised this car for $250 more than our reduced price, you'd still think it a good buy. It's a 7 pass. with 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, spare tire, Pines winter front, etc. This Jordan is in wonderful all-around condition. $145.

HUDSON COACH. It's unusually clean throughout and has a sweet running motor. Equipped with shutter fronts, spare tire, bumpers, driving light, etc. $165.

FORD ROADSTER. Late model A that's unusually sporty and has spirited performance. Has a wealth of extras and it's a rare buy at our price of $195.

ESSEX SEDAN. Recent model that cannot be duplicated any place else at anywhere near our price. This Essex is de luxe in every respect and comes equipped with shutter front, practically new spare tire, bumpers, etc. $345.

NASH ROADSTER. It's positively the best Nash buy in Chicago. Duco'd a handsome two-tone color combination. Has excellent tires and a roomy rumble seat. Equipped with 6 whl. brakes, snubbers, spare tire, bumpers, etc. It's certainly worth twice the price we are asking for it, which is $245.

CHEVROLET CONV. COUPE. 1929 six finished a robin's egg blue. Rumble seat. This is a snappy looking and fine performing car with excellent tires and a wealth of extras. Priced at $295 for quick sale.

OLDSMOBILE SEDAN. Late 1928 that shows the result of very careful treatment on the part of its original owner. The maroon finish has not a mar on it, and the tires look as though they'd run but a few miles. Motor is Al and the extras are shock absorbers, step-plates, bumpers, spare tires, etc. $350.

GARDNER 8 VICTORIA. A late model that never left the Chicago block. If you inspect this car carefully from bumper to bumper and then take it out on a personal demonstration you'll agree with us that it looks and runs like a brand new car. It's very fully equipped. $445.

CADILLAC SEDAN-LIMOUSINE. This car was owned by a wealthy family in conjunction with a Pierce-Arrow and a Rolls-Royce. As a result, it was only driven occasionally and now the finish, upholstery and motor are okay in every respect. Has dandy 7-door tires. Equipped with 6 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, 2 spare tires, etc. $550.

HUPMOBILE VICTORIA. 1929 4 pass., that will satisfy the most exacting buyer. The tan finish is beautiful and the upholstery is luxurious. The tires have only a few hundred miles on them. Motor is unusually efficient. $645.

STUDEBAKER DICTATOR 8 SEDAN, 1930. We could go on record and claim this to be the best used car buy available today. The motor was carefully checked over in our shops and now it carries a 30 day free service guarantee. Has attractive finish and distinctive appointments inside. Equipment includes 6 driving light, spare tire, bumpers, etc. Actually driven only a few thousand miles. $795.
